Senate Votes Two Billions For Distress To President

Bill Is Second Largest Appropriation in Peace Times.

Speakers Predict New Slump Ahead

$400,000,000 Limit Set on RFC Funds Use Draws Fire.

Making available approximately $2,400,000,000 for the use of President Roosevelt in relieving distress and unemployment during the next fiscal year, the urgent deficiency appropriation bill was passed last night by the Senate.

It was the second largest appropriation bill to pass the Senate in peace time, being exceeded only by the $3,300,000,000 public works-National recovery act passed last year. Of the $2,400,000,000 total for relief $1,713,000,000 represents new money to be taken out of the Treasury. The remainder comes from the RFC.

The Senate voted, 57 to 25 to limit to $500,000,000 the amount of RFC unobligated funds which the President is authorized to use for relief purposes should the occasion arise. The House gave the President carte blanche authority to use all unobligated RFC funds, estimated variously between $2,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000.

Byrnes Demands Raise.

But the Senate Appropriations Committee limited the Presidential use of RFC funds for relief to $400,000,000. On motion of Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, spokesman in the Senate for the White House, this figure was raised to $500,000,000.

Senators Robert M. La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin, and Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, fought to have the provision limitation rejected on the ground that the President's hands should not be tied in case of a greater need of relief than now be foreseen.

"It is the height of folly to place this restriction on the President," Senator La Follette warned the Senate. "There are indications that we are sliding into another slump—another crisis within a crisis and unless Congress wants to be called back here in special session during the autumn campaigns it had better remove this limitation."

Adams Says Funds Ample.

Senator Alvin Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, in charge of the bill, however, argued that the bill certainly contained sufficient sums for relief during the next six months and that Congress would be in regular session again in January to act on an extraordinary situation that might develop.

'Judges of Hell' Hit Paris Again

Five More Bombs Found, One Explodes; Police Seek Madman.

Paris, June 15 (AP).—As if literally operating from a supernatural sphere, "the three judges of hell" struck again and again today throughout Paris.

The police frantically admitted they have no clews to the source of the spectacular bombing campaign aimed at the French people "without distinction as to age, sex or rank."

Altogether ten identical infernal machines have been found in the mail, five of them today, and two have exploded. The packages have been mailed from various branch postoffices in Paris, thereby scattering the work of the detectives.

The police theory is that the bombs are being sent by one person, rather than three, and that he is a madman whose mind became unbalanced from worrying about the Stavisky scandal and other national issues.

Two of the bombs went to American firms, and one exploded today when it was unwrapped in the office of Andre Citreon, 'the Henry Ford of France." A clerk was injured.

Two days ago a bomb exploded in a postoffice, injuring three persons, and calling attention for the first time to the "judges of hell."

Police are seriously worried about the safety of President Lebrun, Premier Doumergue and the cabinet, who have been threatened.

Recipients of the bombs have included the powerful Hachette publishing house, Les Galeries Lafayette, famous department store; Tokalom, an American beauty products firm, and the French branch of the Venus Pencil Co., an American firm.

Mail Robber Given Death.

Fort Worth, Tex., June 15 (AP).—O. D. Stevens, mail robber, was convicted of murder and given the death penalty by a jury today in connection with the slaying of three men, two of whom allegedly were killed to deprive them of their share of $71,000 loot taken in a holdup at the Texas & Pacific Railway Station here.

Mrs. Dall's Reno Trip Forecast of Divorce

MRS. ANNA ROOSEVELT DALL.

The second divorce in the White House family since President Roosevelt's inauguration loomed last night, as Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, only daughter of the Chief Executive and First Lady, speeded toward Nevada to establish a temporary residence at Lake Tahoe, close to the California border.

Her move was reported to be a preliminary step toward divorcing her husband, Curtis B. Dall, New York and Chicago broker. Mr. and Mrs. Dall have not lived together for the last 12 months. With her as she hastened west were her two

Bomb Injures Mendieta, Kills Two in Cuba

Ten, Others in Official Party Hurt; 10 Are Arrested.

Havana, June 15 (AP).—A terrorist's bomb intended to kill President Carlos Mendieta exploded behind the President's chair at an official luncheon today, slightly wounding him and killing two naval men, one of whom the chief executive credited with saving his life.

Ten other persons were injured, among them Secretary of Communications Gabriel Landa and Capt. Salvador M. Villoch, chief of the navy. The President was wounded in the hand and the Secretary on the arm.

Police said the bomb was brought to the luncheon room, in the immigration detention camp at Tiscornia, across the bay from Havana, concealed in a camera box.

Ten persons, all described as photographers, who had been admitted to the official gathering, were taken into custody, and a Havana photograph shop was raided by sailors.

The explosion came as President Mendieta was about to take his seat after delivering an address to the assembly, which included high-ranking civil, military and naval officials.

"The man standing behind me saved my life, but lost his own," said the President after he had been treated for his injury at the palace.

He referred to Matas Tapia, a seaman. The other man killed was Naval Lieut. Manuel Colomar.

Naval Capt. Rafael de la Paz, commander of the naval garrison at Tiscornia, put his pistol to his Knoxville, Tenn., June 15 (AP).—John R. Neal, Knoxville attorney, who qualified to oppose both Senators Kenneth McKellar and Nathan Bachman for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, announced today he will make his race solely against McKellar.

Polish Cabinet Member Slain By Two Shots

Assassin, Familiar With Habits of Official, Makes Escape.

Warsaw, June 15 (AP).—Minister of the Interior Bronislaw Pieracki was assassinated today by a man who fired two shots into his body as he entered the Government Party Club. A third shot was fired after the minister had fallen.

The assassination, apparently, was carefully planned by some one familiar with the minister's habits, for the killer was waiting at 4 p. m., the regular dinner hour of the bachelor statesman.

As Pieracki started up the club steps, a man who had been following him opened fire and paused long enough to send the third bullet into the prostrate body.

Assassin Escapes.

The assassin, whose hat was pulled over his face, fled. A policeman, however, chased the man, who turned around and fired a shot which wounded his pursuer.

The numerous gardens in the section of town where the killing occurred—Foksal street—aided the man in his escape.

Pieracki, taken to a hospital unconscious, died while an operation was being performed to remove a bullet from his head. The shots were fired at such close range that his hair was singed.

Police worked on the theory that the assassination was connected with recent arrests of Ukrainian terrorists or with other political activities of recent weeks.

Pieracki had just returned to Warsaw from an inspection tour of eastern Galicia, where he was born in 1895.

He was a member of the Pilsudski Legion in the World War and also fought in the Polish-Bolshevik War, being wounded several times.

As a result of his wounds, a portion of his skull had been removed and replaced by a platinum plate, a condition which physicians said would have made it impossible for him to recover from any serious wound in the head.

Libby Holman Abandons Torch Songs for Dramatic Comeback

Philadelphia, June 15 (AP).—Mrs. Elizabeth Holman Reynolds returns to the stage tomorrow night—a stage not precisely the same that made Libby Holman famous; nor a role like those of yesteryear, when she "wowed 'em" with torch songs.

Libby is making her bow in serious dramatics. It is her first stage appearance since she became a central figure in a series of occurences that included the death of her husband, Smith Reynolds, tobacco fortune heir.

The scene of Libby's emergence from private life is the Hedgerow Playhouse, modest home of one of the country's surviving repertory theaters, nestled in Rose Valley, a ten-mile jaunt from this city.

Her vehicle is the Spanish play, Sierra's "Spring in Autumn," but she will have neither a starring role nor a big audience, both of which are just a few of the things to which she had been accustomed.

Libby will appear as Pura, the maid to an opera singer. If there's a full house, only 168 seated patrons of the Hedgerow Players will be looking on.

As Pura, the erstwhile torch singer invokes song in nothing more than a comic imitation of her prima donna mistress, who is Miriam Phillips. She really doesn't sing at all.

Two weeks hence will see the former Miss Holman appearing in the world premier of Sherwood Anderson's "Winesburg, Ohio," a play he adapted from his own book. She will play Belle Carpenter, described as "one of the important roles."

Libby has been devoting herself to the drama since last December. She and her 17-month-old son have been making their home with a friend in Montchanin, Del.

Berlin Cash To Be Seized By British

Moratorum Is Rejected; Clearing Office to Be Set Up.

Germany, Learning of Move, Threatens Ban on English Goods.

London, June 15 (U.P.).—Great Britain frankly told Germany today she will not accept the Reich's six months' moratorium on all foreign obligations, but will seize all the German cash she can lay hands on to protect British interests.

Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons the government shortly would establish an Anglo-German clearing office.

He plainly indicated that the government had no intention of letting the Reich succeed in its scheme to cut off all foreign debt payments, regardless of kind—commercial, government, bonds, &c.—and permit British holders of German credits to suffer.

The chancellor said the British Ambassador in Berlin had informed the German government of this intention, but that "we would refrain from exercising these powers if a satisfactory agreement insuring fair treatment of British bondholders can be negotiated before July 1."

May Make Separate Deal.

He thus indicated he hoped to make a separate deal with Germany to protect British interests in the next six months, rather than put into effect the drastic seizure program, but assured Parliament the government would take the latter step if Berlin refused to consider her alternative.

Under Chamberlain's plan businessmen would receive compensation for commercial debts as well as holders of German bonds, including the "guaranteed" Dawes and Young plan loans which placed Germany under her moratorium.

The British move, it was feared, may react unfavorably on the United States, making it more difficult for American creditors to get payment. Lack of German funds in New York would make a similar move useless, it was believed.

Chamberlain told a questioner that imports and exports between Germany and the British dominions will not be involved in the proposed seizure legislation.

Financial District Pleased.

Chamberlain's action pleased the financial district in London, men there holding that the arrangement would provide protection for traders. It was expected to work out so that traders buying goods from Germany should pay the amount due into the clearing house here, instead of remitting to Germany.

Those selling goods to Germany would be reimbursed from the clearing-house fund. The balance of receipts over payments would be used to meet the claims of investors in German bonds.

Investors in Britain hold about $217,150,000 in Dawes and Young

Gen. Cole Is Endorsed In Massachusetts

Worcester, Mass., June 15 (AP).—Gen. Charles H. Cole was indorsed early today by the Massachusetts Democratic preprimary convention as candidate for governor as delegates gave him a majority on the third ballot.

Plot on U. S. Charged To Civil Liberties Man

Belleville, Ill., June 15 (AP).—A. J. Muste, of New York, a member of the executive committee of the American Civil Liberties Union, was held to the grand jury after a hearing before a justice of the peace here today on charges of "plotting to overthrow the Government by unlawful means."

The charge against Muste grew out of his arrest Monday as he was conversing with pickets near the closed plant of the Knapp-Monarch Co.

Teachers, Still Unpaid, Start Payless Vacation

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—School's out today, and so are Chicago teachers—out seven and a half months' pay.

They end an almost payless year and start a payless vacation. They were paid recently for work done in September and October and some of last year.

The city owed them $23,016,505 when they dismissed their 400,000 charges today, two weeks earlier than usual.

Girl Foils Kidnapers By Iron Rod Attack

Denville, Okla., June 15 (AP).—Police here are seeking two kidnapers who were thwarted by a girl.

Bela Martain, young girl of the Rock Creek community, calmly reached for an iron rod when she was seized and hit the man nearest her across the nose. The pair put their hands over her mouth to prevent an outcry, and hustled her away. About a quarter of a mile from the house, the man she struck fell over in a ditch in a swoon. His partner freed Bela, who ran home.

Carpenters Spurn Strike Arbitration

Council to Act Today on Another Proposal to End Walkout.

Builders Suggest Both Sides Appoint Committees.

A peace conference ran up against a stone wall yesterday when the striking carpenters' union flatly rejected a proposal to arbitrate.

Its refusal, in defiance of the sentiment of other organized building trades whose jobs hinge on the strike's outcome, came simultaneously with the announcement that the only three crafts outside the A. F. of L. Building Trades Department have been accepted into membership.

One of them is the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, largest building trade in the Nation, with 250,000 members. The others are the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, both with headquarters in Washington.

Peace Move Futile.

Some 30 officials, including Representative Loring Black, of New York, and representative of the Carpenters' District Council, Washington Building Trades Council, Central Labor Union, Labor Department, Master Builders Association and out-of-town contractors met yesterday in the office of Commissioner George E. Allen, mediator.

When they left, the carpenters' strike, which has resulted in the introduction of open shop conditions here, was as far as ever from settlement.

The only ray of hope came in the form of a new proposal by the builders that committees be appointed by both sides to meet and settle between themselves their wages and hours differences. This suggestion will be acted upon at a meeting of the carpenters' council at 10 a. m. today.

"If, and when," said the employers' memorandum, which was read to the assembled group, "the carpenters' local council appoints a committee to act for their membership, who will be bound by their acts and who will report to Commissioner Allen with the proper credentials, we will have our committee with the same authority meet them and Commissioner Allen."

Refrain From General Strike.

This in itself does not constitute arbitration, the builders emphasized. If the respective committees were unable to reach an agreement, then they might conceivably consent to place the matter in arbitration by a disinterested outsider.

The Washington Building Trades Council refrained from calling a general strike on those Federal and private jobs where nonunion carpenters are being employed.

The council, local unit of the Federation's Building Trades Department, immediately called a special meeting for Monday morning to pass on the contractors' proposal. It is expected to approve the plan.

Meanwhile, the open shop, last resort of contractors who are far behind schedule on sorely needed Government buildings, continued in force yesterday almost universally. No violence was reported. The police guard in the downtown triangle was sharply reduced com-

Langer Jury Still Out; Governor Back at Desk

Bismarck, N. Dak., June 15 (AP). Gov. William Langer was at his desk devoting full time to the business of State for the first time since May 22 today, as a Federal district court jury continued efforts to reach a verdict in the case in which the Governor and four others are charged with conspiracy.

While no official word had come from the jury room, rumors stated the jury was evenly divided after more than 24 hours of deliberation.

Crazed Man Kills Self By Exploding Dynamite

Morgantown, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Monongalia County police said today that Joseph Petroski, 39, whose mangled body was found yesterday on a pile of leaves on the Hickman-Miller Hill in the Scotts Run section, had killed himself by exploding dynamite tied around his neck.

Police also said he had been adjudged insane and committed to the State Insane Asylum at Weston July 25, 1931, and that there was no record of his discharge.

Miss Gillespie Gives Astor Back His "Alice"

New York, June 15 (AP).—When Eileen Gillespie said she returned to her former fiance, John Jacob Astor 3d, everything of a nonperishable nature he had ever given her she meant it—even to the extent of a copy of "Alice in Wonderland."

The return of a $100,000 engagement ring was the main item in the settlement, but Miss Gillespie also returned the handsomely bound and engraved copy of "Alice in Wonderland," another book, a bracelet, an aquamarine ring and a ring guard.

Steel Strike Postponed By Green's Peace Plan For Arbitration Board

Labor Fight Is Settled, Congress Ends Today

Compromise Is Agreed Upon as Substitute for Wagner Bill; Other Legislation Speeded With Adjournment at Hand.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Agreement late yesterday on a compromise measure for the Wagner labor disputes bill forecast adjournment of Congress tonight—the end of the most important and eventful peacetime Congress in the history of the Nation.

In order to clear the path for an adjournment tonight and passage of the modified labor disputes measure, the Senate tayed in session last night to pass the $2,300,000,000 deficiency relief appropriation bill and to make the Administration's housing bill the unfinished business for early today.

It was not until after 3 p. m. yesterday that adjournment today become more than a possibility. But shortly after that hour Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson and Republican Leader Charles L. McNary agreed on the draft of a resolution placing in the President's hands machinery with which to handle labor disputes.

When Robinson laid the new compromise measure before the Senate, McNary announced that acceptance by the Democrats of Republican-sponsored amendments made the resolution acceptable to a majority on his side. He expressed the hope that passage of the resolution might be expedited to bring about a quick adjournment.

Robinson also succeeded in winning from the progressive Republicans, who are flatly opposed to the compromise and want the Wagner bill pending on the calendar enacted, a promise to make their fight as short as possible and permit a vote today. Earlier in the day Robinson won President Roosevelt's approval to the amendments proposed by the conservative Republican conference.

Thus all elements to the controversy seemed appeased. Had it not been for the bitter hostility to the Wagner labor bill, which caused Republicans to filibuster against other measures, Congress probably would have closed its doors several weeks ago.

The Republicans early in the day worked out their amendments to the Administration compromise offered several days ago. Robinson took this to the White House where it was discussed by him with President Roosevelt, Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, Secretary

Acceptance Likely With Amendments

Roosevelt Appointment of Arbitration Unit of Three Provided.

By Raymond Clapper.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 15.—The threatened steel strike, set originally for tomorrow, was temporarily postponed late today.

Delegates attending the special convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in session tonight adopted the counter proposal for a settlement offered earlier in the day by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and adjourned.

Before taking official action, the convention permitted delegates to telegraph their local lodges to hold strike plans in abeyance pending further instructions. It was explained that this was done to prevent walkouts which were to have occurred in some plants at midnight tonight, and to hold the situation in status quo while the convention deliberated whether to accept the Green plan and delay the strike threat.

Calls for Mediation Board.

The Green plans calls for appointment by President Roosevelt of an impartial board of three to hold elections among steel employes, to have employes represented in collective bargaining discussions by representatives selected by a majority of employes, the board to arbitrate disputes when mutually requested by both parties.

It was put forward as a counter proposal to the employers, whose plan for a board representing employers, labor and the public was rejected by the union recently.

President Green urged the convention to take his plan and send it to President Roosevelt as an "ultimatum" offering a last hope of a peaceable settlement. He argued that the public's support would be won by this step and advised against strike action now as a step likely to provoke widespread disapproval which would react against the labor movement.

His appeal was so eloquently put that it cooled some of the strike ardor of the insurgent left wingers. President M. F. Tighe, of the Amalgamated, appointed a committee representing both factions of his union to consider the Green proposal and bring in recommendations to the convention. The committee reported late this afternoon and the convention went into executive session to consider the report.

President Green mustered all of his oratorical persuasiveness in a spectacular effort to talk the young rank and file element out of their

Indians, Colonists and Southern Belles Give Maryland's History.

By Frank Getty.

St. Marys City, Md., June 15. On the high promontory to which the Ark and the Dove brought Maryland's first settlers 300 years ago, the Free State celebrated its tercentenary with glittering pageantry today.

Scenes of the seventeenth century were reenacted in the presence of a throng which overtaxed the capacities of this quiet little colonial town.

Against a backdrop of history, the founding of St. Marys and the State was retold in song and story, round dances and brilliant tableaux.

The sparkling waters of St. Marys Bay were dotted with ships of the Old World and the New. The hilltop, under a blazing sun, was thronged with uniformed "colonists," war-whooping "Indians," Southern bells in the costumes of 1634, and thousands who came to witness this most picturesque of State tercentenaries.

Through a long afternoon in which the blistering heat sent more than a score to hospitals and drove hundreds of spectators to the shade of the little town's dozen homes, costumed Marylanders relived the days when Leonard and George Calvert first completed their perilous journey across the Atlantic and took foothold here in the name of civil and religious liberty.

It was so hot that the red paint ran off the "Indians." Wigs of the "Cavaliers" hung in waxen dejection against their necks.

Fortunately, only a few thousand of the anticipated 100,000 journeyed to the promontory on which this first city of Maryland was founded. The scorching pine bleachers on the hilltop were uncomfortably packed, but the opening day's guests did

Hitler, Il Duce Agree to Keep Austria Free

German Chancellor Gives Up Plan for Union of Nations.

Venice, Italy, June 15 (AP).—An agreement that Austria, troubled little republic between Germany and Italy, just remain an independent nation and work out its own destiny was reached today by Premier Mussolini of Italy and Chancellor Hitler of Germany.

This decision meant that Hitler, himself a native of Austria, has given up his plan to unite the two German-speaking countries.

The future of Europe may be affected by the agreement, which came at a time when an Austrian government friendly to Italy is being harassed by Nazis within its borders.

Before revealing this important result of their two-day meeting, the two premiers had advised the press that Mussolini had not been able to induce Hitler to return to the Geneva Disarmament Conference.

Count Galeazzo Ciano, member of the Italian staff here, told newspapermen that Hitler informed Mussolini Germany will go back to the conference and the League of Nations if the league recognizes her right to parity in armaments.

In this matter, Count Ciano said, Italy will not take the initiative, as the views of Premier Mussolini already have been stated. These views are that Germany should be allowed a partial rearmament while other nations maintain their present forces.

Il Duce and his visitor did not draw up or sign any agreements, Count Ciano explained, but expressed "concordance of view" in regard to Austria.

A German spokesman said formation of an Italian-German bloc to offset other European combinations is not contemplated.

Kidnaper Held In Texas Killing

Seized 3 in Davenport, Iowa, Thursday; Caught in Missouri.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 15 (AP).—Captured 15 minutes after he released a policeman and two Iowa men he had kidnaped to avoid identification and arrest, Joe Palmer, 32-year-old escaped convict, wanted in Texas for murder, was held in jail here today awaiting extradition to the Lone Star State.

Shortly after his arrest, Palmer readily agreed to return to Iowa to face robbery and kidnaping charges, saying "if they take me to Texas, they'll sizzle me." He explained "sizzle" meant the electric chair.

Iowa officers, however, relinquished their claims.

He is wanted in Texas for the murder of Maj. Crowson, penitentiary guard who was killed when Palmer, Raymond Hamilton and several other prisoners escaped from a prison farm January 16 in a raid engineered by Clyde Barrow, slain bandit. Hamilton was convicted and given the death penalty this week for the Crowson killing.

The three kidnap victims—Al Schultez, a baseball club official; Elmer Schleuter, Davenport policeman, and Dr. W. D. Fitch, Walcott, Ia., veterinarian—were freed by Palmer here early today after being held prisoners during an 18-hour drive.

He released them upon their promise to return to Davenport. The Iowans hastily notified police, a search was started, and Palmer was found. Although armed, he surrendered without resistance.

A. F. of L. Leader Dies.

Philadelphia, June 15 (AP).—Joseph M. Richie, for the last 20 years general representative of the American Federation of Labor with headquarters in the Philadelphia district, died today.

Father Sends First Lady $1 For Quintuplets, Asks Drive

If there is a Father's Day movement for dollar contributions in behalf of the fathers of quintuplets, present and future, blame it onto a father who wrote a letter to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, says the Associated Press.

His unsigned letter was postmarked Ithaca, N. Y. Inclosing a dollar bill, he said:

"I am father of twins, with interest and principal on a mortgage due in July.

"For this reason the situation of Ernest Dionne, of Corbeil, Ontario, has haunted me.

"Those quintuplets are a pretty heavy responsibility for any one man. When I think of the spinach and the modified milk and the cod liver oil alone, I sigh with weariness.

"Of course this will bring a cry of indignation from you mothers—'the father heaves a sigh of weariness.'

"Well, I'm thinking of that mother, too. So I'm inclosing a dollar bill. It isn't much, but it may help for some items.

"Father's Day is approaching. Let me suggest that fathers of the United States celebrate by sending a little cash contribution to this brother in fraternalism—and distress!

"And if the amount so collected should prove considerable, let's give a goodly sum to Ernest and let the balance accumulate for the next father of quadruplets, quintuplets or what have you."

Mrs. Roosevelt, laughingly reading the letter to her press conference yesterday, said she sent the dollar on to the father of the quintuplets.

Steel Strike Is Postponed On Green's Plea

determination to strike. The enameled-top kitchen tables which had been strung in rows down the assembly hall of Elks Temple were lined on either side by union delegates. Most of them seemed young, in their thirties or under. They were in shirt sleeves, many with shirt collars thrown open. It was a decisive moment in American industrial history and the union leaders, some 200 of them, listened closely, seldom interrupting with applause, but leaning forward to catch every word.

With a sympathetic approach, President Green begged to be considered as a miner addressing fellow workers in the steel industry. He sketched his early career as a boy working in the mines, with the family larder empty during the hardships of an 18-month strike.

"I am speaking your language," he said. Then he turned his guns on the steel employers, winning rounds of applause as he denounced them.

Steel Barons Scored.

"You are dealing with the most powerful foe in the United States," Green said. "There is no more autocratic, domineering, dictatorial group in America than those who represent the steel corporations of the United States. They have little regard for section 7 (a), nor have they much regard for public interest and public welfare. Representatives of the steel corporations stand apart in the cloistered rooms of their luxurious council chambers in the City of New York and say that no matter what Section 7 (a) may say they are not going to permit steel workers to organize."

Thus putting himself sympathetically on the side of strikers by denouncing their common enemy, Green told the men that the public was with them.

"I have confidence in the American people and in public opinion," he continued. "I do not believe that when the autocratic attitude of the steel barons is made plain to the American people that they will tolerate it. Ultimately these men will have to yield to the powerful force of public opinion."

Asks Strike Delay.

Then, swinging into his direct appeal for a delay in the strike, Green continued:

"But we can't permit the steel barons to choose the industry's battlefield, nor the hour when warfare shall be waged. We must use strategy, meet issue with issue, and so conduct ourselves as to command the support of public opinion."

Declaring that were he to be guided by his feelings, he, too, would be for a strike at once, but he insisted that the wise man bides his time.

"It is my judgment," he said, "that the time will come when your wrongs will be righted, but I do not believe the time to act is here."

Silence greeted this first direct suggestion against a strike now.

Then he read his four-point proposal slowly, and with careful emphasis. There was no applause when he finished reading it.

Sees Sympathetic Public.

"I hope," he continued, "you will adopt this and send it to the President of the United States as an ultimatum of this convention. I believe if this is done it will cause consternation in the steel corporations and will win a big response from public opinion, which will require the corporations to accept it.

"I believe I can assure you the President will bring to bear all his pressure and out of it will come acceptance. But if that does not take place, Congress is in session. There is a feeling in Congress that these steel magnates must recognize the right of the workers. I think they feel the steel barons are largely responsible for the threat of a strike.

"You can rely on the sympathy of the President. Acceptance of this proposal will put you in stronger position. It will be good strategy. It will win the support of labor and of many employers. It will show that you are willing by every means to avoid industrial conflict and to strike only after every avenue to peace has been explored. You do not surrender your right to strike if this plan is rejected. But I am of the opinion that if you make this your ultimatum, it will and must be accepted, and that the public will directly, or through Congress, require the steel industry to accept it."

For Wagner Bill Action.

Green interjected a renewed plea for enactment of the Wagner disputes bill before Congress adjourns—if it takes another month. He said the substitute proposal of the President did not go far enough, in his opinion, but that if it should be passed it would carry some power to force the steel industry to bargain collectively.

"I have been treated with insults, but I would not be worthy of my position if I did not rise above personal feeling," he continued. "I do not want you to risk all when the odds are against you for a loss would set us back and we can not afford to have a setback at the present time. Therefore I insist upon you acting favorably upon this proposition."

After reading his four-point proposal, Mr. Green declared he was confident President Roosevelt would select a board that would command the respect and support of labor and the public. He emphasized that no restrictions whatever are made upon the type of men to be selected, except that it be impartial, which he interpreted to exclude anyone connected with employing interests. He emphasized that it provides for arbitration only when agreed to by both sides, thus not interefering with the right to strike. He said it provides for mandatory collective bargaining.

Bargaining Is Recognition.

President M. F. Tighe of the Amalgamated said that this collective bargaining guarantee would constitute recognition.

"In trade unionism collective bargaining means recognition. You must recognize the representatives with whom you sit down to negotiate," he said. "The Green plan conforms to the strong feeling in Amalgamated for majority representation only—that is, whichever side carries elections in a given plant, whether the outside union or the company union, the spokesman of that majority group would speak for all of the plant's employes."

It is expected that the steel industry will balk at this proposal, for it has insisted that its employes, as now organized in company unions, are satisfied with their present representatives. Management favors representation of each group in proportion to voting strength, if there is to be any change in the present system of dealing only with company unions.

Text of New Labor Measure

Authorizes President to Set Up Boards Which May Call Employe Elections to Determine Collective Bargaining Delegations.

Text of the revised labor legislation introduced in House and Senate by Administration leaders:

To effectuate the policy of the National industrial recovery act.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Section 1. In order to further effectuate the policy of Title 1 of the National industrial recovery act, and in the exercise of the powers therein and herein conferred, the President is authorized to establish a board or boards authorized and directed to investigate issues, facts, practices or activities of employers or employes in any controversies arising under Section 7A of said act or which are burdening or obstructing, or threatening to burden or obstruct, the free flow of interstate commerce.

Section 2. Any board so established is hereby empowered, when it shall appear in the public interest, to order and conduct an election by a secret ballot of any of the employes of any employer, to determine by what person or persons or organization they desire to be represented in order to insure the right of employes to organize and to select their representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining as defined in Section 7A of said act and now incorporated herein.

For the purpose of such election such a board shall have the authority to order the production of such pertinent documents or the appearance of such witnesses to give testimony under oath, as it may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this resolution. Any order issued by such a board under the authority of this section may, upon application of such board or upon petition of the person or persons to whom such order is directed, be enforced or reviewed, as the case may be, in the same manner, so far as applicable, as is provided in the case of an order of the Federal Trade Commission under the Federal Trade Commission act.

Section 3. Any such board, with the approval of the President, may prescribe such rules and regulations as it deems necessary to carry out the provisions of this resolution and to assure freedom from coercion in respect to all elections.

Section 4. Any person who shall knowingly violate any rule or regulation authorized under section 3 of this resolution or impede or interfere with any member or agent of any board established under this resolution in the performance of his duties, shall be punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

Section 5. This resolution shall cease to be in effect and any board or boards established hereunder shall cease to exist on June 16, 1935, or sooner if the President shall by proclamation or the Congress shall by joint resolution declare the emergency recognized by section 1 of the National Industrial Recovery act has ended.

Pilot to Scatter Ashes Of Friend From Plane

Memphis, Tenn., June 15 (AP).—Pilot Warren Vine will take his buddy, J. M. (Pat) Barron, on his last airplane ride tomorrow when he scatters Barron's ashes over the Cleveland-Memphis route on which they had worked together.

Barron, a copilot, was killed with six others in the wreck of a passenger plane near Livingston Manor, N. Y., a few days ago.

Girl in Suicide Pact May Die From Illness

Highland Park, Ill., June 15 (AP). Although Miss Margaret Bott today had apparently recovered from the effects of her attempted suicide by drowning, in which her mother died, she was believed to be losing ground against an attack of a mastoid condition.

It was the fear of a third operation for the mastiod trouble that led the two to tie themselves together and swim into Lake Michigan so that they could leave life together.

Peery Asked to Name Madison Committee

Richmond, June 15 (AP).—Gov. Peery, in a communication from Senator Harry F. Byrd today, was called upon to name a Virginia committee to attend James Madison memorial day ceremonies at Madison Tomb June 28.

Senator Byrd said it was hoped that preparation would be started this year for the observance of the centennial anniversary of the death of Madison June 28, 1936.

Roosevelt May Visit Colombia On Hawaii Trip

Would Become First U. S. President to Call in South America.

For the first time in history a Chief Executive of the United States will visit a South American republic this summer, if present plans of President Roosevelt materialize. He plans to call on President Enrique Olaya Herrera of Colombia.

The President disclosed he hopes to stop en route to Hawaii at the ancient seaport of Cartezena for a chat with President Herrera, who, before taking office, was the Colombia Minister to this country.

Soon after Congress' adjournment the President plans to go to New London, Conn., to see his son, Franklin D., jr., row in the Harvard freshman crew. Then he may return to the Capital to put his desk in shape before boarding the cruiser Houston at Annapolis shortly after June 26.

According to his present itinerary, the President will stop briefly at Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands before heading for the Canal Zone. Some 40 miles off the course, he plans to put in at Cartagena.

Colombia has named a new President, Alfonso Lopez, but he will not take office until a month after Mr. Roosevelt's visit. President Hoover made a battleship trip down the South American Coast, but that was before he assumed office, which gives to President Roosevelt the precedent of making a Presidential visit.

After several days in Hawaii, the President probably will land at Seatle, Wash., for the return East, although that is not definite. En route he intends to visit the Columbia River projects, the Fort Peck, Mont., construction and other Governmental works. During the remainder of the summer he probably will spend much time at his Hyde Park home in the Hudson Valley.

Labor Dispute Ends; Congress Closes Tonight

of Labor Frances Perkins, Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York; and others.

The Republican changes were designed chiefly to confine the authority of the proposed boards to disputes arising under the NRA act between labor and industry or which threatened to burden or obstruct the free flow of commerce. The language providing for court review of orders of the proposed boards was made clearer and more specific.

Another amendment gave the boards authority in making rules and regulations for the holding of secret elections to determine the representatives of labor to "assure freedom from coercion in respect to all elections." The penal clause would apply, under another amendment, only when an infraction of rules of the boards is "knowingly" made. The Republicans also proposed that the authority granted to the proposed boards shall cease after one year.

Accepted by Roosevelt.

These changes were accepted at the White House. Robinson laid the revised resolution before the Senate. Chairman David I. Walsh, of the Labor and Education Committee, immediately assembled that group and within a half hour the committee favorably reported the resolution back to the Senate with two amendments. One would authorize the President to fix the salaries of members and employes of the proposed boards and the other restricted the power of the boards to making regulations in connection with its investigations and the holding of elections.

Meanwhile House Democratic Leader Joseph W. Byrns introduced the revised compromise in that body so that the House might be in a position to act promptly today as soon as the Senate votes its approval.

D. C. Elks Boys' Band To Play at Annapolis

For the third successive year the Elks Boys Band of Washington will play at the Flag Day exercises Sunday afternoon, held by the Annapolis Lodge of Elks on the grounds of the Statehouse in Annapolis.

Because of other engagements, the band had not intended to make the trip to Annapolis this year, but decided to go when a special request was received from Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, member of the Annapolis Lodge. The special concert, to be given at 2:30 p. m. in the presence of the Governor, will be conducted by James L. Kidwell, director, assisted by Lawrence Leer.

Butler Tells Veterans To Vot as Soldiers

Galesgurg, Ill., June 15 (AP).—Gen. Smedley Butler, retired commander of the U. S. Marines, told the Veterans of Foreign Wars at their convention last night, "Go to the polls and vote as soldiers; don't adhere to party lines."

War, he said, was a racket in which a few make billions and soldiers were not paid. He heaped invectives on the National Economy League. "Find out who is for the soldier and vote for the side of the soldier," Gen. Butler advised.

District Urges A Big Fourth

Calls for Celebration on Day to Stimulate Recovery.

Washington was urged yesterday by the District Commissioners to fly flags on the Fourth of July to stimulate ideals "vital to National recovery."

Under the Commissioners' proclamation it is permitted to place flags on the street on metallic poles the afternoon of July 3, and let them remain until the morning of July 5.

"It seems to be unusually appropriate," Melvin Sharpe, chairman of committee on city decoration and illumination, said, "that we take advantage of this opportunity this year to display our National colors. The world is passing through unprecedented times and anything that we can do to foster improved conditions and better patriotism should be sought eagerly by all good citizens."

Sharpe also urged organizations to arrange celebrations. The massing of colors and fireworks exhibit will be held on the Monument Grounds at 7:15 p. m., July 4.

Snell Casts Off Congress Cares, Goes to Reunion

Congress may legislate far into the night in an effort to wind up the session this week, but it will be without benefit of Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican floor leader.

Adjournment or no adjournment, Snell is on his way to Amherst, Mass., to attend the fortieth reunion of the class of '94. He's president of the class.

"They don't seem to know what they want to do, and I can't wait for them to make up their minds," he said in parting. "Besides, I've been here every minute since January, I'm going to the reunion."

Carpenters Spurn Strike Arbitration

Peace Parley Fails Despite Sentiment Among Other Trades.

pared to Thursday, when jobs on the Archives, Labor-I. C. C. and other Federal buildings were first thrown open to "experienced carpenters."

May Be Up to Hutcheson.

Should the carpenters' union turn down the latest conciliatory offer, negotiations between committees, the only hope for breaking the deadlock, will rest with William L. Hutcheson, president of the international.

As chief of the union, 1,700 of whose 250,000 members are in the Capital area, he has authority to order the district council's officers to take final action, without putting settlement up to the full membership, as has been done heretofore.

The membership of the council, which comprises five locals, is still holding out for $1.37½ an hour and a five-day, 30-hour week. Under their old agreement with the Master Builders Association they received $1 an hour on a five-day, 40-hour-week basis.

The latest compromise, rejected by an overwhelming majority, offered $1.25 an hour and their choice of a 32-hour or 40-hour week. Carpenters are now being hired at $8.80 for an eight-hour day, regardless of their union affiliations.

Plenty of Labor Available.

All contractors approached yesterday declared the supply was greater than the demand. Nevertheless, they were unanimous in expressing the hope the open shop was only a temporary expedient and a satisfactory agreement could ultimately be reached with the union.

Acceptance of the carpenters, electricians and bricklayers into the Building Trades Department created an anomalous situation.

Three weeks ago Michael J. McDonough, president of the department, ordered a general strike on the Labor-I. C. C. buildings in support of operative plasterers who were contesting the casting and setting of acoustical stone by members of the bricklayers' organization.

Trades Defied Order.

At that time the bricklayers were outside the department, although affiliated with the A. F. of L. itself, while the plasterers were in.

Several trades defied McDonough's order, remaining on the job. Among them were the electricians, hoisting engineers, tile and marble setters' helpers and bricklayers. For this they were suspended from the local council. They are still on an "unseated" status.

About a week ago the operative plasterers applied in District Supreme Court for an injunction compelling the bricklayers to divide the stone work with them. Yesterday the defendants were to have appeared in court to show cause why the writ should not be granted, but the hearing was postponed until Monday.

McDonough declined to say yesterday whether admission of the bricklayers into his department had any influence on the postponement, which was asked by that craft. Nor would he say whether he would call off the general strike, now that both rival unions are united in the department.

Two in Good Standing.

Furthermore, the bricklayers, who were admitted into the local council only a few weeks ago, now find themselves in good standing in the parent organization while under suspension in the Washington unit. The electrical workers are in the same situation.

Union officials, including McDonough, hailed the three trades' admission as a forward step in prevention and settlement of jurisdictional disputes such as have wrought havoc with Federal building here for the last year. They increase the department's membership from 400,000 to 800,000, McDonough said.

Bricklayers have been outside the group since 1927, carpenters since 1929, and electrical workers since 1931.

Two Accused Demand Jury.

Two union carpenters, involved in the only serious violence which has occurred since last Tuesday, when member firms in the Master Builders Association went open shop, pleaded not guilty to assault yesterday and demanded a jury trial.

Identified as Robert Reid and Joseph C. Harding, they are accused of attacking William Gray and T. J. Jackson as the latter were working at the new Church of the Reformation last Wednesday. Six men were said to have been in the raiding party, but only two were arrested.

Judge John P. McMahon set June 26 for the trial and fixed bond at $500 each.

Harding lives in the 600 block of E street northeast, and Reid in the 300 block of East Capitol street. The complainants, Jackson and Gray, live in Silver Spring and at 225-A Bates street northeast, respectively.

Robinson Is Declared Nominee for Congress

Harrisonburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.). Maj. Willis A. Robertson, of Lexington, today was declared the Democratic nominee for the House of Representatives in the November election by William E. Carson, of Riverton, chairman of the Seventh Congressional District committee.

Maj. Robertson was unopposed, so the August primary will not be necessary.

He won the nomination originally two years ago.

Park Band Schedule Announced for Week

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, yesterday announced the following band schedule for next week:

Monday, D. C. World War Memorial, Army Band; Tuesday, D. C. World War Memorial, Navy Band; Thursday, D. C. World War Memorial, Marine Band; Friday, Community Civic Band, Judiciary Park. All concerts begin at 7:30 p. m. and terminate at 9 o'clock.

13 Mount Vernon Deer Thrive in Shenandoah

The 13 deer recently transferred from Mount Vernon are thriving in their new home, Shenandoah National Park, according to Director Arno B. Cammerer.

They have been released in the wildest section of the area, Cammermer was told by J. R. Lassiter, engineer in charge of the newly acquired Federal area. Food is plentiful and human intrusion is rare in Big Run Valley, where the animals were liberated. There are no inhabitants along the ridge within 8 or 10 miles of Big Run.

plan bonds, on which $10,847,500 in interest is due July 1.

France Files Protest, Plans United Front

Paris, June 15 (U.P.).—France officially protested today against Germany's halting the payments on the "guaranteed" Dawes and Young plan payments.

The foreign ministry is preparing to communicate with the United States, British, Swiss and Dutch government to create a united front among Germany's creditors.

France is unlikely to bar German exports, however, because of the danger that Germany would retaliate in a trade war worse than the loans moratorium. However, the government is preparing to block private payments of French businessmen to Germany, which is practically equivalent to halting commerce.

Berlin Makes Threat Of Quick Retaliation

Berlin, June 15 (AP).—In an official communique with a distinctly bellicose tone, the German government announced tonight that any economic reprisals by England for the moratorium on the Young and Dawes loans will be met by quick retaliation in kind against English imports to Germany.

The communique was regarded as a flat statement of the German policy against possible reprisals by the creditor countries as well.

Pointing out that Germany has announced readiness to enter negotiations on the moratorium question, but insisting that such negotiations will not be possible "under pressure," the communique ironically states, "The British government seems to proceed from the idea that Germany is not a very important factor in British trade."

German Advantage Seen.

Attention was called to the fact that during the first quarter of this year Germany had a passive trade balance of 60,000,000 marks with the British Empire, the inference being that Germany has the advantage in a possible battle of compulsory clearings.

"Germany in all events is ready and determined to retaliate against any such measures against German imports in whatever form with corresponding counter measures," the communique said.

"In the interest of mutual trade relations, which would be further reduced if such compulsory measures were adopted, it would be opportune if the thought of such one-sided procedure against German exports were not indulged in."

Strength Pointed Out.

The communique was accepted as further proof that Germany finds strength as far as economic reprisals are concerned in the lack of harmony between obligations which pay interest and trade balances.

In this connection the German Institute of Business Research, taking the first quarter of 1934 as a basis, pointed out that 40 per cent of the total obligations paying interest are to countries with which Germany has a large debit trade balance.

Almost 95 per cent of the interest payable is owed in the United States, with which, as well as the British Empire, Germany now has a debit trade balance.

U.S. Revocation Of Repeal Law Sheppard's Aim

Dry Advocate Still Sure Prohibition Was Best Solution of Issue.

Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, last night introduced a resolution to repeal the twenty-first amendment to the Constitution, which scrapped National prohibition.

Sheppard, lifelong dry advocate and "father" of the eighteenth amendment, suggested instead a more flexible amendment, which would give the Government power to regulate the liquor business but not make it compulsory.

Only through this system, Sheppard said, can States which desire to remain dry be afforded adequate protection against a deluge of liquor.

Sheppard interrupted debate on the deficiency bill to offer his resolution and to make a short speech, attacking conditions throughout the Nation under repeal.

He quoted from a recent statement by the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, declaring that the Nation is living "in a fool's paradise," and said the situation is "shocking."

"I am still convinced," said the Texan, "that the eighteenth amendment was the best solution to this vexing problem."

Capital Youth Second In Class at West Point

Eugene Stanizewski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Stanizewski, of 744 Quebec street northwest, has just been announced as placing second in the fourth class at the United States Military Academy. He has also won numerals in fencing and chevrons as a corporal.

Stanizewski is a native of Washington and received his preliminary education here, graduating from Central High School in 1933. He spent last year at the Devitt School, preparing for his West Point entrance examinations.

children, Anna Eleanor, 7, and Curtis, jr., 4, who, as the White House grandchildren are known the Nation over as "Sistie" and "Buzzie."

Mrs. Dall left Washington late Thursday. Only a little more than a year ago Elliott Roosevelt the second son of the President, went to Nevada to divorce his wife, the former Elizabeth Donner, of Philadelphia.

Has Written Much.

Since her father took the oath of office, Mrs. Dall has lived at the White House almost continuously. She has devoted much time to syndicate and magazine writing, and has become familiar as a society favorite. Only recently she won a cup at the Fort Myer horse show.

It has been an open secret in official circles of the Capital for some months that the tall, blonde matron and her husband were estranged. Those close to the family frequently whispered that Mr. and Mrs. Dall temporarily patched up their difficulties in deference to Mr. Roosevelt's Presidential campaign.

Dall mingled with the guests and the Nation's first family at the inauguration party, but left shortly afterward. He has not been an official guest at the White House since a few days after March 4, 1933, although he has paid several unannounced visits there. First concrete news of the rift occurred in January, when the New York social register listed Mr. and Mrs. Dall in separate domiciles—hers the White House and his Panache, an estate in North Tarrytown, N. Y. He is an independent broker.

Mrs. Roosevelt Silent.

At a White House conference yesterday Mrs. Roosevelt declined to comment on her daughter's departure. She said merely that Mrs. Dall had gone to Nevada with her two children, and that when her daughter left she was not even certain at what town she would stop.

The couple was married June 5, 1926, on the President's ancestral estate in Hyde Park, N. Y. Their honeymoon was a three-month trip to Europe. It was in December, 1932, that Dall announced he would become an independent broker.

While residing at the White House, Mrs. Dall has been active on other works than syndicated material. She has produced a children's book, "Scamper, the White House Rabbit," and a magazine article about her mother, entitled "Grand Person," as well as numerous other articles. She is not yet 30 years old.

Following the divorce of her brother, Elliott, just a year ago, Mrs. Dall attended his wedding at Burlington, Iowa, to Miss Ruth Googins, of Fort Worth, Tex.

Will Live At Lake Tahoe.

From Reno, the Associated Press reported that Mrs. Dall has retained the Reno law firm of Samuel Platt and John S. Sinai, the same attorneys who represented her brother.

Platt said Mrs. Dall would pass through Reno Saturday afternoon.

"She probably will proceed to Truckee, Calif.," Platt said. "From there I will drive her to Lake Tahoe, Nev., where she expects to reside in a private residence on the shores of the lake. The residence is in Washoe County, Nev."

Although Platt would not say where the probable divorce suit will be filed, it was regarded as likely here that, like her brother Elliott, she will remain at Lake Tahoe for six weeks and then file suit in the little Minden, Nev., courthouse made famous by Mary Pickford when she divorced Owen Moore there many years ago.

Code Changes Are Indicated At White House

Revision of Electric and Shipping Agreements Is Expected.

Revision of proposed codes for the shipping and electric power and light industries will be ordered by President Roosevelt, it was indicated yesterday at the White House.

The President made known he would refrain from signing the pacts in their present form. He gave no inkling, however, of what provisions caused his dissatisfaction. NRA officials remained noncommittal.

Organized labor has protested the electric utility compact containing outright indorsement of company unions. It was recalled, too, that in early stages of the negotiations the industry objected to a code because it was regulated by the Federal Power Commission.

One of the hearings on the utilities agreement was marked by testimony of Harry B. Hunt, speaking for Secretary Ickes, who challenged the right of NRA to entertain codes for public utilities.

Both Hunt and Frank R. McNinch, of the Federal Power Commission, assailed many provisions of the code as either intentional attempts or unguarded opportunities for the Edison Electric Institute to seize much of the power over the industry held by Federal and State governments, and designed to weaken State and municipally-owned power projects.

Suggestions that NRA fix steamship fares and freight charges drew brisk objections from operators of small vessels at an April public hearing.

Several witnesses agreed rate-fixing would demoralize independent lines and create a monopoly for the dominant American conference exporting steamship companies.

Finland Only Nation to Pay U. S. War Debt

(Associated Press.)

Closing of the war debt ledgers last night disclosed that the United States had collected $166,538 of the $477,843,644—approximately 1-28 of 1 per cent—due from 13 European nations.

Finland alone maintained its high financial rating, making its customary cash payment of its semi-annual installment on its total debt of $8,726,645. Eleven nations sent notes without any drafts attached.

Yugoslavia did not even reply to the American note requesting payment of $525,000 past due and $300,000 due today on its total debt of $61,625,000.

Lithuania, the tenth successive nation to announce default, delivered a note through Mikas Bagdonas, charge d'affaires, explaining that adverse economic and financial conditions made it impossible to remit any payment.

Lithuanian Note.

In the past, the note said, Lithuania had made token payments, but aggravated adverse conditions now make it imperative for that country to make further reductions in the State budget and to resort to the most stringent methods of National economy.

Lithuania's total debts amount to $6,554,544 of which $221,169 is past due and an additional $147,864 was due today.

Yugoslavia's diplomatic silence was not wholly unexpected by State Department officials. That country made its nonpayment attitude clear in a note on June 15, 1933.

It made no formal answer to "please remit" notes last December but the Yugoslavian Minister made an informal verbal report at the State Department to the effect that his country's attitude was unchanged.

"The chief reason (for default)," the note last June explained, "is nonpayment of German reparations due to Yugoslavia, which have not been paid to us, in spite of the fact that we did not accept the moratorium proposed by President Hoover. This situation was continued by virtue of the Lausanne agreement.

Nation Hard Hit.

"Yugoslavia was inequitably and harder hit than any other country by this moratorium and was placed in quite a singular position, for it the annuities due by Yugoslavia on her debts are deducted from the reparations due her by Germany, she is a loser to the extent of $16,000,000 per annum.

"This money was devoted to carrying out the obligations imposed upon the country by the expenses of the war and the enemy occupation, such as the payments to war invalids, war damage to property, &c. In addition, the reparations money was used for repayment of foreign debts contracted for the restoration of the country devastated by war operations and enemy occupation."

Yugoslavia was the only country which declined to accept the Hoover moratorium and has since consistently maintained that since it secured no reparations it would pay no debts.

Past due payments of $303,196,205 and June installments of $174,647,439 due today were defaulted by the 12 nations, leaving the grand total of war debts still due this country $11,628,318,614, minus Finland's $166,538.

Geneva Pact Providing for World Arms Control on Long List.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate set a record yesterday by approving 12 treaties in an hour one of which was the 9-year-old Geneva pact, providing for supervision of the international traffic in arms.

The State Department felt this ratification and that of two other pacts were long strides for world peace. The recently negotiated convention with Mexico, calling for a lump sum settlement of $411,000,000 of American claims growing out of Mexican revolutions, was approved as was the treaty of nonaggression and conciliation between seven American republics.

There was debate on the Mexican convention only. All the treaties were approved without record votes.

Reservations Attached.

Two reservations were attached to the resolution ratifying the arms treaty. One, by the foreign relations committee, provided it should not take effect so far as the United States is concerned until the nine other principal arms producing countries — the British Empire, Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Soviet Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden—have ratified it.

The second reservation, by Senator King (Democrat), Utah, declared the pact should not be considered as infringing in any way with the sovereignty of Persia over the Persian Gulf and its waters.

The treaty, indorsed by Presidents Coolidge, Hoover, and Roosevelt, limits exportation of arms and other war materials to governments and public authorities authorized to receive them and sets up a system of export declarations and licenses.

Other Pacts Signed.

Other treaties approved were:

The convention on rights and duties of states adopted by the seventh international conference of American States at Montevideo and signed December 26, 1933, by the United States and many others.

It sets forth the principle of nonintervention. Senate ratification was with the reservation that existing treaties be not disturbed.

Miss Lenroot Gets Support For U. S. Post

Advocated for Chief of Labor Department Children's Bureau.

The name of Miss Katherine Lenroot was brought forward in political and women's group circles here yesterday as the probable successor to Miss Grace Abbott, who has resigned, effective July 1, as chief of the Labor Department Children's Bureau.

Miss Lenroot, a veteran of 19 years in the bureau, is now in the office of assistant chief. She is the daughter of the late Senator Irvine L. Lenroot (Republican), of Wisconsin.

Her former political affiliation, it was contended by various women's organizations sponsoring her for head of the social agency, is not believed to be an obstacle in the appointment path. Previously, chiefs of this bureau have been promoted by the Civil Service merit system. Group leaders said they believed President Roosevelt would follow this rule.

Meantime, it was reported in other quarters that Miss Josephine Roche, mine operator, might be a candidate for the office, despite her announcement a short time ago as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Colorado.

Miss Lenroot's friends pointed out yesterday she has not taken part in partisan politics and has devoted her career to social work among children. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

head as if to shoot himself after the explosion but was deterred by friends who seized his hand.

"Stern Measures" Planned.

Paz said he was motivated by worry over the fact that such a thing could have happened to the president while visiting in his jurisdiction.

One of the men arrested was Alberto Guerrera, who claimed to be a newspaper photographer, but was said by officers not to hold such a job. Guerrera was said by police to have been seen entering the dining room with a camera which he did not have after the explosion. He was held incommunicado.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the army, left his sick bed and rushed to the presidential palace where he conferred at length with President Mendieta.

While he denied that military law or a state of siege was contemplated, Col. Batista said that "from now on we are taking stern measures."

House, Ready To Quit, Passes Score of Bills

By Robert C. Albright.

Setting a fast pace for the Senate, the House yesterday raced toward adjournment, passing last-minute legislation with a feverish abandon that comes only in the final hours of a session.

A railway retirement bill, paving the way for more sweeping old-age pension legislation; a railroad disputes bill, expediting settlement of rail labor quarrels, and a new bill of rights for the Indians were swept to passage in the adjournment stampede.

As word quickly spread that the session is closing the House, already several laps up on the Senate, prepared to leap the final hurdle today—the revised Wagner labor board bill, introduced yesterday by Majority Leader Joe Byrns.

Over Score of Bills Pass.

Amid the hubbub and bustle typical of a Legislature closing up to go home, the House passed more than a score of measures running the gamut from unimportant private bills to legislation on the White House "must" calendar.

While Speaker Rainey continued to insist it was "ridiculous" to talk of adjourning before early next week and a few members hooted at plans to get away tonight, Majority Leader Joe Byrns insisted the House would be ready if the Senate could wind up its slate.

Bill after bill was raced through the House mill under unanimous consent agreements and rules suspensions limiting debate, with virtually no opposition to measures given right of way.

Standing out from the mass was a resolution establishing a select House committee appointed by the Speaker to investigate practices of bondholders' committees in real estate receiverships throughout the country.

Tin Investigation Ordered.

Another ordered a House investigation of the "dangerously dependent position of the United States" on the tin resources of other nations, and the possibility of manufacturing munitions, motors and daily necessaries without tin, in which this country is deficient.

The two railroad measures, setting up a National Adjustment Board to settle disputes between rail labor and carriers, and the pension bill, establishing a uniform railroad retirement system, were viewed as forerunners in the President's program of social legislation. Both measures were sponsored by Chairman Robert Crosser, of the Democratic steering committee.

Approved by the Senate Thursday, the rail pension bill passed the House without a record vote and was immediately sent to the President. It provides for compulsory railroad labor retirement at 65, with year-to-year extensions by agreement with employers, but not beyond the age of 70.

Pensions would be limited to a $100 maximum, with 30 years of service necessary for retirement. A railroad retirement board of three would administer a $90,000,000 retirement fund, $30,000,000 of which would be paid in by workers, and $60,000,000 by the railroads. After four years of "experience," the board would report recommendations for improved legislation.

"It is obvious that retirement of any considerable number of older employes will make possible greater employment opportunity and will tend to promote efficiency and safety in interstate transportation," said Crosser.

Second Bill Sent Senate.

The second railroad measure, making arbitration of rail labor disputes virtually mandatory, was sent at once to the Senate for action.

It specifically prohibits railroad managements from requiring employes to sign "yellow dog contracts" forcing them to join company unions, and forbids use of carrier funds to support labor organizations.

A National board of adjustment would be set up for the prompt and orderly settlement of all disputes growing out of grievances and pay rate interpretations, to avoid any interruption to commerce or transportation.

Indian Bill Is Rushed.

Machinery would be provided for the taking of a secret ballot to enable the board of mediation to determine what workers the employes desire to have negotiate for them. They would be free to join any labor union.

The Howard Indian bill, rushed to passage in the legislative landslide, went immediately to conference to iron out differences in House and Senate bills. Laying a foundation for responsible Indian management of their own business affairs in the future, the bill legalizes and regulates a system of tribal organization with limited powers. Broadly, the bill is designed to rehabilitate the Indian's economic life; gives him a chance to develop the initiative destroyed by a century of paternalism.

Court Rules Beer May Pass Through Georgia

Atlanta, June 15 (AP).—In its first ruling on beer transportation through dry Georgia, the State Supreme Court held today that the Georgia sheriff can not interfere with a cargo of 3.2 beer being transported through this State from Tennessee to Florida.

The ruling reversed Judge Hawkins, of Cobb County Superior Court.

Former Convict Given Death for Police Killing

Dallas, Tex., June 15 (AP).—Richard Charles Rehm, 28, former New York convict, was convicted by a jury today and sentenced to death for the slaying of Luke J. Bell, police car driver, here May 18.

Bell was shot with his own pistol in a scuffle with Rehm when the latter made a break for liberty.

Distinguished Veteran of the Theater Celebrates Anniversary

Bosworth Does 533d Picture Since Year '09

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

We note with feeling of warmest friendship and pleasure that Hobart Van Zandt Bosworth, familiar figure on Sunset Boulevard's bridle path in Beverly Hills, Calif., astride Cameo, his snow-white Arabian charger, and a veteran whose professional activities have contributed to the finest traditions of both stage and screen, is celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary in motion pictures by enacting a character role in his 533d screen play.

Bosworth, whose life once was despaired of, displays all of the health and vigor that one would expect of a lineal descendant of Myles Standish.

It is true that for this 6-foot, white-haired, blue-eyed patriarch of the theater it is nearly 30 years since a huge benefit was given in New York to raise funds to defray his funeral expenses. He came back, however, from what his friends believed to be the very portals of death to a life of rich vitality and splendid attainment in his chosen profession.

Ran Away to Sea.

"Hobe" Bosworth was born in Marietta, Ohio, August 11, 1867. Adventure began early in life for him, just as it had for many of his distinguished ancestors. At the age of 12 he ran away to sea and circumnavigated the globe on clipper ships and then joined a whaling expedition into Arctic waters. On his return from the sea he appeared as a wrestler in San Francisco and later apprenticed himself as assistant to Herman, the Great, the magician, with whom he toured the West and Mexico.

Eventually he reached Broadway and became a member of the famous Augustin Daly Stock Company, one of the most celebrated organizations in the annals of the American theater. From this association he acquired a love of the classic drama that caused him to devote many years of his life to the portrayal of characters from Shakespeare. He has appeared in more Shakespearean roles than any other American actor—a fact that is conceded by Otis Skinner and other close rivals—and, I believe, is the only American player ever to have appeared in a series of Shakespearean productions on the lawns of the Stratford-Upon-Avon Theater in the birthplace of the Bard.

Health Failed.

After many years of distinguished service to the theater, Bosworth's health suddenly gave way and death seemed imminent. His lungs were affected and his case seemed hopeless to everyone but him. First to Canada, then to Denver and finally to Tempe, on the Arizona desert, he went in quest of restoration to health. For three years he lived on the desert at Tempe in a tent, his only companion being a faithful Great Dane dog.

On his last visit to Washington, Mr. Bosworth related many vivid incidents of those three years to me. For example, at one period his resources became so low that he used to trudge to the nearest butcher shop and beg scraps of meat for his dog, which he took back to camp and converted into a stew which they both shared, there being no other provender for either. But his optimism and courage finally triumphed and he returned to a less primitive civilization, sound as a dollar and eager to carry on.

Learned to Paint.

The weary weeks on the desert, despite the many handicaps to creative effort, were not wasted. They served to make of Hobart Bosworth a painter and horseman of note. The one has given him a helpful vocation; the other, an asset that has stood him in good stead in pictures.

Bosworth was one of the pioneers in pictures whose faith in the industry a quarter of a century ago, along with Jesse L. Lasky's, Sam Goldwyn's, Cecil B. DeMille's and Dustin Farnum's paved the way for what is now the Paramount company.

For Hobart Van Zandt Bosworth, descended from a line of the most distinguished figures of America's Colonial days, I entertain feelings of deep affection and profoundest regard. He is an able actor, delightful companion and distinguished gentleman.

I congratulate him upon 25 years of useful service to the films and to the American public and trust he may continue in his chosen field for 25 years more.

Rebecca Tarwater, a gifted young Tennessean who has appeared brilliantly under the sponsorship of the King-Smith Studio School in Washington on more than one occasion, will appear in the role of Alice in the Washington Community Players' production of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," when the famous fantasy is put on in the huge stadium at Charleston, W. Va., Saturday night as the highlight of the celebration of West Virginia "State Day." Bess Davis Schreiner, assisted by George Farrington, is in charge of the production and has succeeded in mustering most of the original cast that scored such a hit in the classic in Washington a year ago.

Another "Permeer."

Tonight at 8:45 "Operator 13," the romantic drama of the Civil War period, which brings together for the first time as co-stars Marion Davies and Gary Cooper, will be accorded what has come to be known as a "Hollywood premiere" at Loew's Fox Theater.

A late bulletin from City Manager Carter Barron conveys the information that more than 100 of the leading dignitaries of the Capital have accepted invitations to be present. These, of course, include members of the President's Cabinet, heads of the Army and Navy, members of the Diplomatic Corps and leaders of Washington's social, professional and commercial circles.

The usual exterior concomitants of these gala occasions—flashlights, floodlights, microphones, &c.—will be in evidence and, inside, the spacious lobbies of the theater will be draped with the Stars and Stripes, the Stars and Bars and other colors, in a measure interpretative of the content and spirit of the picture.

Speaking of Loew's Fox, a letter from Edgar A. Waite, formerly in charge of advertising and publicity for the Loew houses in Washington, indicates that since his recent overnight visit here he has been moving about a bit.

Says one paragraph: "Flew back to Seattle (after you had committed me, how could I do otherwise?) and since that time have driven from Seattle to San Francisco, have flown from 'Frisco to Seattle and back and have driven from San Francisco to Los Angeles and back. I have a small but persistent hunch that in their stubborn efforts to make me work they are going to frame another Eastern trip for me within the next few months."

Mr. Waite, in case you are curious, is head of the National Code Authority for the Mayonnaise Industry on the West Coast. The reason, naturally, that mayonnaise does not come down is that mayonnaise is dressing!

Summer Festivals.

Owing to many inquiries concerning chair privilege tickets for the weekly Summer Festivals in the National Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument Grounds, it is announced by the Community Center Department, through Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, chairman of the committee, that chairs for the festivals will be 25 cents each.

Tickets are on sale prior to each festival at the ticket offices of the American Automobile Association, the Willard and Washington hotels and at the Community Center office in the Franklin Administration Building, Thirteenth and K streets.

Sure Thing Note.

There was never any doubt in my mind that my good friend Maxie Baer would win the world's heavyweight championship. He told me so himself when he was here!

He learned—believe it or not—in making that picture with Carnera, "The Prizefighter and the Lady," that he could hit the champ with a right hand.

"And that," quoth Max in his dressing-room at Loew's Fox, "is all I want to know."

Pythians of Crisfield Hold Annual Banquet

Crisfield, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—More than 200 Pythians were present at the annual Pythian banquet, entertainment and dance held in the State armory here last night.

Visitors from lodges in Worcester, Wicomico, Dorchester and Somerset Counties were present. The Rev. Dr. John J. Bunting, of the Wilmington (Del.) Methodist Episcopal Conference, delivered the principal address.

Stars Who Continue Their Runs

Winchester Guard Rifle Team Wins In U. S. Contest

Winchester, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Brig. Gen. Samuel Gardner Walter, the adjutant general, was informed today that a Virginia National Guard company—Company I, of the 116th Infantry—has won the indoor rifle-shooting championship of the National Guard from 283 competitors, and will be awarded the 1934 trophy.

Company I, commanded by Capt. Paul R. Hartman, is stationed here. The team consists of Sergt. Glenn Seabright, who in 1933 won the President's Trophy at Quantico; Sergt. J. P. Blount and Privates W. E. Blount, Edwin H. Smith and I. R. Golightly.

The team scored 2,852 points out of a possible 3,000. Each member will be awarded a silver medal, and the Virginia company will retain the National Guard Bureau Trophy for one year, or until defeated.

Company K, 116th Infantry, Charlottesville, placed seventeeth. Other Virginia units rating high were Company G, 116th, Petersburg; Company I, First Infantry, Alexandria; Company G, First Infantry, Petersburg; Company C of the 116th, Harrisonburg, and Company E, 116th, Chase City.

Winchester Plans $45,000 in Building

Winchester, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—A mild building boom has started in Winchester with permits for the renovation and erection of a number of small buildings which will give employment to upward of 100 men, at an estimated cost of $45,000, reports at the city manager's office disclose.

Hoye Riley has completed the remodeling of a storeroom for use by Spillman & Alexander as a drug store. B. G. and J. W. Headley are building a new home for the Virginia Antique Shop. A new city abattoir is being erected by Howard F. Perry, and workmen are pushing the work on the new Greyhound Bus terminal, to be occupied August 1. Bertie Smith, Paul De Haven and Justa Prince have been granted permits to build homes, and C. M. Copenhaver, retired mail carrier, is having an apartment house erected.

The Continental Oil Co. has about completed a new filling station, and Earl L. Loy and W. E. Lupton are finishing a large garage and filling station near Kernstown.

Court Orders Union to Halt Plant Pickets

West Virginia Woolen Mill Wins Fight Before Judge.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—An injunction was granted here last night by Circuit Judge D. H. Rodgers to the Berkeley Woolen Co. restraining Local Union No. 1756, and 88 members "from maintaining the picket line in front of the (plant) property of the plaintiff, annoying, abusing, threatening or intimidating any person desiring to enter the mill to be employed therein or who may seek employment with the plaintiff, and to restrain the said defendants from loitering, congregating about or close proximity to the manufacturing plant."

Request for the injunction was supported by 29 affidavits.

The plant, which ordinarily employs about 400 workers, and makes woolen cloth, has been tied up by strike since Wednesday. Workers said that they went out and established the picket lines, because of complaints of discrimination against union workers and the "stretch-out" problem in the work. The management denied any ground for either grievance.

The management said today that it planned to reopen its plant under protection of the injunction, but had not arranged details or time.

The picket lines this morning had dwindled. There has been no serious violence. Police are being kept advised of the situation but have taken no action.

Hughes Wins Suit Over Danville Land

Danville, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Litigation developing here over the sale to the Government of the site of the new Federal Building was terminated yesterday when Judge Turner Clement in the Pittsylvania County Circuit Court handed down a verdict for Dr. S. E. Hughes, sued by J. W. Nunn for $3,000.

Nunn claimed that in the division of the purchase money he failed to get $1,000 due him in the transaction, which netted a group of land-owners $109,000, and that he was not liable for his share of the expense in negotiating the sale.

Hughes contended Nunn could not deliver part of his property owing to a joint alley provision, and that as result the Government cut $1,000 from the purchase price.

Farmer, Killed by Fall, To Be Buried Today

Hagerstown, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—The funeral of J. Elmer Lehman, 60, Smithsburg farmer, who died last night at the Washington County Hospital from a broken neck, received when he fell from a cherry tree, will be held tomorrow.

Blue Ridge Man Visits City First Time in 22 Years

Berryville, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Jefferson McDonald, 61, a resident of the Blue Ridge section of Clarke County, west of here, for the past 22 years, made his first trip to Berryville this week.

Mr. McDonald has lived in his semimountainous home not more than 8 miles from here, preferring the solitary life.

His chief connection with the outside world has been the annual payment of taxes. For 21 years he regularly paid the levies, sending them by a friend. This year he decided that he would like to know what the county seat looked like, so he came to Berryville to pay the taxes—but not without escort.

On the trip to Berryville Mr. McDonald was accompanied by Sheriff W. W. Smallwood of Clarke County. Hardly had Mr. McDonald finished his business with the tax collector's office than he announced that he was ready to depart for his solitary home. Leaving here, he expressed little desire to return.

McDonald is a native of Fauquier County, where he resided prior to moving to Clarke County 22 years ago.

Faculty Changed At Wilson College

Chambersburg, Pa., June 15 (Spl.).—Three faculty changes and one addition to the teaching staff was announced at the meeting here of the board of trustees of Wilson College.

Prof. Carl Seifert, who came to the college two years ago to fill a temporary vacancy caused by the absence of Prof. John D. Brooks, was appointed to a full professorship in education. Dr. Brooks died while on a European trip. Miss Roberta Johnson was assigned to the department of mathematics, filling a vacancy caused by the retirement of Miss Beatrice Hadam, and Miss Mildred Wilsey was appointed instructor in English, succeeding Miss Lillian Knowles, resigned.

The Rev. Dr. John S. Meeter, formerly a member of the faculty at Princeton Theological Seminary, was added to the Bible staff.

Waynesboro Police Report Girl Missing

Waynesboro, Va., June 15 (AP).—Police of four States and the District of Columbia have been advised to watch for Virginia Houghton, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Smith, of Waynesboro, who disappeared from her home here this morning.

She was described as having light hair and blue eyes. She was wearing a white coat when last seen.

238 Graduate At Exercises In Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Graduation exercises were held this afternoon at the Strand Theater for Allegany High School.

Diplomas were presented to 238. William C. Henry received the diploma for his son, Clifton P. Henry, 18, who was killed Tuesday night in a motor accident. Young Henry had been a messenger boy. His motorcycle collided with an automobile. After the exercises the class attended his funeral.

The school orchestra played. Stratton Bruce gave the class oration. The senior members of the Girls' Choral Club sang, as did the boy members of the class. The Rev. Dr. Hixon T. Bowerson gave the invocation and benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Frederic C. Briggs. Singing by the Boys' Glee Club and by the octet were features.

Dr. F. H. Gaige, professor of history at Millersville State Normal School, Millersville, Pa., gave the address. Diplomas were presented by Ferman G. Pugh, president of the Allegany County Board of Education. Principal James E. Spitznas announced the honors and awards as follows:

Welcome home, boy, posted by Liberty Trust Co.—William Ross.

Ford Tugs Leave Virginia for Soviet

Norfolk, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Remaining in port less than 12 hours, the tugs Baymead and Bathalum, sold to Russia by Henry Ford, steamed out of the Virginia Capes early today on their way to San Francisco.

They will be delivered to a representative of the Soviet government in California and will sail direct for Russia.

The tugs were built in 1919 and were used by Ford for traffic on the Great Lakes, with their base at Detroit. They are of 426 gross tons and 142 feet long. There are 21 in their crew, but they are expected to increase their complement to 35 when they arrive at San Francisco.

Theft Attempt Laid to Youth

Member of Well-Known Augusta Family Faces Arrest.

Waynesboro, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—A warrant was issued here today for the arrest of Paul Simmons, 21, member of a prominent Augusta County family, in connection with an alleged attempt to hold up Patrick Coleman, Afton merchant.

State Traffic Officer L. J. Cosby said he would place Simmons under arrest tomorrow.

According to Coleman, he had just closed his store and was talking with Eugene Baber, a late customer, in front of the store, when a youth, whom both he and Baber have identified as Simmons, walked up, pointed something resembling a gun at Coleman and demanded that he "stick 'em up."

The approach of an automobile apparently frightened the young man. Coleman said, and he ran to his car where two companions were waiting. His youthful companions also have been identified as members of well-known families of this county by both Coleman and Baber, but they were undecided as to whether they would secure warrants for their arrest as accomplices.

Clarke County Ousts FERA

Berryville, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Retention of the county agent and abolition of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration office in Clarke County has been voted by the Board of Supervisors.

An appropriation of $500 was made for the county agent's work after Trial Justice L. C. Kackley broke a tie vote of the Board of Supervisors. Similar amounts are to be appropriated by the State and Federal Government.

J. T. Lindsey and J. M. Fishpaw, members of the Board of Supervisors from Greenway and Longmarsh districts, opposed retention of the county agent, while William Fenton and Clifton Price, of Chapel and Battletown districts, supported continuance of the place. C. C. Funkhouse is the present county agent.

The FERA office has been under fire here for some weeks. Although no official statement was made regarding the reasons for abolishing the office, it was unofficially learned that payment of wages much higher than the prevailing wage scale in the county met with considerable opposition from agricultural interests.

Mrs. Roosevelt Predicts Slash In D. C. Relief

Points Out Capital Has Proportionately More on Aid Rolls.

Relief rolls for the District will be cut even further, Mrs. Roosevelt intimated at a White House press conference yesterday.

She pointed out that the District has, in proportion to its population, more persons on its relief rolls than any other city of its size in the United States.

The Federal Emergency Relief administration declined to comment on Mrs. Roosevelt's prediction. It was stated at FERA headquarters that the relief organization is watching the District relief problem closely, but that it is not ready to announce any decision.

Mrs. Roosevelt stated that she had written a letter to Elwood Street, director of the welfare board, suggesting that the nursery schools, adult education and school children's luncheons be conitnued during the summer. She expressed the hope that in reorganizing the rolls Street might find enough funds to continue these projects, with special emphasis on the luncheons.

The importance of continuing the luncheons to children who have found it necessary to accept the free meals during the school term was particularly stressed by the First Lady.

"We can not let these children just go hungry," she said.

Divorce Refusal Reversed; Colbert Is Awarded Decree

Fredericksburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Refusal of the Circuit Court of Fauquier County to grant a divorce in the case of Emmett R. Colbert, of this city, vs. Elizabeth E. Colbert on grounds of misconduct or desertion was reversed yesterday by the Supreme Court of Virginia in session at Wytheville.

Yesterday's decision, which denied him a separation on grounds of misconduct, granted a temporary divorce on grounds of desertion, directing that it be made final at the end of the newly set statutory period of two years from date of desertion.

Legal custody of the infant child was granted to the father with provision for the child to be with her mother at such times during the year as the judge of the lower court might determine, with power to change the legal custody later if developments, i. i. the judgment of the court, justify it.

Of wide interest in this section, the case was first argued before Judge J. R. H. Alexander at Warrenton on October 12, 132. Suit for divorce on statutory grounds and asking for custody of the infant child was filed by Mr. Colbert in Corporation Court here on February 15, 1932. Judge Frederick W. Coleman transferred the case to the Circuit Court of Fauquier County, stating that it was improper for him to sit in the case.

The decree of Judge Alexander on March 27, 1933, awarded cutody of the child, Anne Colbert, to her mother every month of the year except August, providing that in other months the child was to be with her father each week-end. The husband was further directed to pay his wife $100 per month for the support, maintenance and education of the child and ordered to pay counsel fees of his wife's attorneys.

An appeal was promptly noted by the complainant.

$1,500 Balm Won From Murderer

Mother of Victim Given Martinsburg Verdict.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Mrs. Jane Kees, mother of Charles Kees, for whose death Joe Bear, aged mountaineer, pleaded guilty in circuit court here and faces a prison term, was awarded $1,500 by a jury here late yesterday in her suit for $10,000 against Bear to compensate her for "mental anguish, sorrow, physical suffering as well as actual damage" incurred in the loss of her son, who was said to be the chief support of his parents.

The jury had the case only a short time after a three-day trial.

Bear was indicted on a charge of first-degree murder of young Kees, whose body was found near the Bear home late in March. Subsequently the State accepted a plea of guilty to second-degree murder.

Orphans School to Give Diplomas to 23 Today

Chambersburg, Pa., June 15 (Spl.). Diplomas will be presented 23 graduates of the Pennsylvania Soldiers' Orphans School, Scotland, near here, tomorrow, at the thirty-ninth annual commencement exercises.

Otto F. Messner, State commander of the American Legion, will be the commencement speaker. The diplomas will be presented by Brig. Gen. E. C. Shannon, lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania, and president of the board of trustees.

Colonial Pageant Given By St. Michael's School

Frostburg, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—St. Michael's Parochial School presented a pageant of Colonial Maryland tonight in connection with graduation exercises.

The Rev. Joseph P. Nolan, pastor of St. Michael's Church, delivered the address to the graduates. Announcement of awards was made by the Rev. Joseph A. Weber. The Rev. Nolan also conferred the diplomas and awards. Music was furnished by the Community Cluo Orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Ernest Seifert.

Danville Not Affected By Gasoline Price War

Danville, Va., June 15 (Spl.). The Virginia gasoline price war did not reach Danville today and straight gas was still selling at 21.2 cents, whereas at South Boston, 40 miles away, the so-called "spur track" competition had forced the price down to 16½ cents.

Tank car lots run on to sidings and sold direct to the consumer were responsible for the price cut.

Milton Group Wins Fire Parade Prize

$20 Travel Award Taken at Salisbury, Md.

Salisbury, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—The fire department from Milton, Del., won first award of $20 last night for the company, with 20 or more men in line traveling the longest distance to attend the annual parade sponsored by the fire department of this city, in connection with the firemen's carnival being held here.

Cambridge won two prizes of $15 each, one going to the band from that city, and the other to their drum and bugle corps. Delmar, Del., was given a prize of $10 for making the best appearance in line. Companies taking part in the parade were from Cambridge, Princess Anne, Crisfield, Pittsville, Willards, Berlin, Ocean City, Parsonburgh, Fruitland, Hebron, Sharpstown, Easton, Md., and Milton, Harrington, Delmar and Elendale, Del.

Besides bands, drums and bugle corps and marching firemen, there were 25 pieces of fire apparatus in the line of parade.

Garments for Needy To Be Made by Women

Front Royal, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Miss Lucy Poindexter, of Louisa County, representing the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration Richmond, assisted the Warren County Relief Offices yesterday in organizing a new county project for the manufacture of garments for distribution among the needy next winter.

Forty women will be given employment in making garments and in working over used clothing for children's wear. The project will extend through a two-month period. New materials and used clothing have been donated and a number of sewing machines have been loaned for use in this work. The supplies will be distributed next winter through the local Associated Charities. The women will be paid out of Emergency Relief funds.

Annex Is Approved At School for Deaf

Richmond, June 15 (AP).—Gov. Peery today said he thought a satisfactory arrangement could be made whereby the State School for the Deaf and Blind at Staunton could begin at once on the construction of a new combination classroom-dormitory building.

The General Assembly appropriated $125,000 for the project, but split the appropriation, with half available on July 1, 1934, and the other half a year later. School authorities said they needed all of the money the first year for the building.

The two-day Maryland tercentennial celebration at St. Marys City yesterday and today is being featured by pageantry depicting the landing of the Calverts and the first English settlers there in 1634. Above (left to right), Indians waiting on the shore of St. Marys River awaiting the landing of Lord Calvert and his followers from the "Ark." Ships anchored in the bay, the Ark and the Dove, the British destroyer, Dundee, and two American destroyers.

Trecentenary Is Celebrated At St. Marys

Indians, Colonists and Southern Belles Give Maryland's History.

not come within one tenth of the number expected.

The scene on St. Marys Bluff resembled nothing so much as Derby Day at Epsom Downs. Concession tents, with long lines waiting their turn for beer and hot dogs, were pitched on the rolling hillside. Picnic parties disputed for the shade of trees and even bushes. Every third person was in costume.

Interrupted occasionally by the whine of ambulance sirens as those overcome by the heat were carried away, the morning's ceremonies consisted of a series of presentations, all of the principal patriotic societies of Maryland contributing something for the Statehouse. Chief among the gifts was a massive "freedom of conscience" statue designed for St. Marys City by Hans Schuler.

The lovely old houses of this Chesapeake Bay country for miles round were overtaxed to extend hospitality to Tercentenary visitors.

The booming of naval salutes and the shrill whistle of small craft greeted the appearance around the point of the Ark and the Dove, accurate replicas of those tiny vessels which brought Maryland's first settlers here 300 years ago.

From the sun-drenched hilltop the throng watched the approach and landing of the "hopeful colony."

Welcomed by "Indians."

Three score youngsters, stripped to the waist and daubed with streaky red paint, represented the braves of Archibuthe Tayac, headman in these parts before the Calverts' expeditions, and war-whooped their way across the pageant grounds to welcome the visitors.

After a deal of peering under hands by the "Indians," it appeared that the landing party was in safe territory, and bewigged and costumed representatives of Gov. Calvert, his commissioners, Mr. Jerome Hawley and Capt. Thomas Cornwallis, stepped gingerly ashore.

The pageant grew somewhat involved, what with the spreading of the gospel among the home boys, the conversion of the Tayac himself, and the stirring notes of "God Save the King" from a military band. There also was depicted the "first meeting of American Governors"—"Gov. Harvey" of Virginia breezing down the Potomac to pay his respects to the "First Governor of Maryland. In elaborate pagentry the various steps of the founding of the Free State were portrayed, with the reading of poems, the playing of folk music and even a raid by "enemy Indians," portrayed by neighboring CCC boys.

Water Pageant Presented.

From the high bluff, St. Marys Bay and St. Georges River, sparkling blue in the bright sunshine, presented a striking water pageant as a compliement to the events of the parade ground.

The British light cruiser, Dundee, and the American destroyers, Manley and Overton, flew gay pennants while smaller boats and canoes, with gaudily painted "Indians" at the paddles, swarmed around them.

The arrival of Gov. Ritchie aboard the State yacht Dupont was the signal for a salute of 19 guns. Scarcely had the Governor taken his place in the reviewing stand before the heat prostrations began, literally at his feet. Overburdened with costume, a page boy collapsed against the Governor's chair, and Chairman Marbury followed suit a moment later. A few hours later Marbury was reported recovering from his attack, and there were any number of beribboned officials to fill his duties.

Anticipating a crowd which failed to materialize, police from five neighboring States had been mobilized to handle traffic. Their duties were largely confined to assisting the heat victims. The concession holders, with their vast stands of beer unpatronized, were moaning in hapless protest before the afternoon was half over. Hundreds of Marylanders came to St. Marys by water. The Potomac, of the Western Shore Steamship Co., brought nearly 1,000 to the wharf where Calvert and his companions first stepped ashore in 1634.

The arrival of the first of the American Calverts 300 years ago was the opening event of the afternoon's pageant.

Struggling up the steep hillside, the "Governor" and his staff were surrounded by "Chief Archibu's" braves and escorted to a log backdrop, in front of which a council fire smoked.

Through the loud speakers it was announced that "the Indian village of Yeocomico is no more."

St. Marys was christened in its place, in the name of Lord Baltimore.

By this time, the beaches held perhaps 2,000 persons.

In the bay, the replicas of the Ark and the Dove, looking strangely out of place among the twentieth century craft, anchored about them, were inspected by hundreds of others who were unable to bear the fierce heat in the stadium.

"The tuck of drums," sounded from the hilltop, summoned the "free men" of Maryland to their first assembly and the pageant unfolded the story of the Free State's first proprietary and manors.

Children Participate.

Hundreds of children took part in the tableaux, two very bashful little youngsters representing "two Indian boys who are hereby found guilty of pilfering the Calvert orchard, and are fined 20 lengths of Roanoke."

Mistress Margaret Brent, who took out a patent for "sisters free hold" in 1638 or so, was not forgotten—the "Portia of Maryland" being portrayed in several stirring tableaux.

Then followed the wedding festivities of the new Governor—in 1666—Charles Calvert, the third Lord Baltimore, with a group of generously costumed young women in what one of them described as a "Gavoot."

The climax of the afternoon's pageant, which will be repeated tomorrow, came with the playing of "Maryland, My Maryland," and the passage of "St. Marys nine governors" in ceremonial review before the box of Gov. Ritchie. The last of the costumed performers rode away down the hillside as "Indian braves"—a new red under the sun despite their loss of paint—shot arrows across St. Georges River, symbolizing the end of the pageant.

Md. Endeavors Open Conclave At Frederick

More Than 400 Delegates Expected to Attend 3-Day Meet.

Frederick, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—The forty-fourth annual convention of the Maryland State Christian Endeavor Union convened today at Hood College and will continue three days.

More than 400 delegates are expected.

Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, pastor of old First Presbyterian Church, Newark, N. J., and vice president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor spoke at the opening business session tonight. The Rev. Dr. John E. Kuizenga, Princeton Theological Seminary, will make the final address Sunday.

Conferences will be held tomorrow, led by Dr. James H. Ranck, professor of history, Hood College; the Rev. Harigg Sextion, pastor of Huntington Ridge Presbyterian Church, Baltimore; Dr. A. Austin Pearre, this city, and Miss Mary C. Ott, professor of history, Hood College. The annual banquet will be held in the evening.

Addresses will be made by Franklin F. Marsh, vice president of the Frederick Society; Carl Thomas, Adamstown; Carl L. Mitchell, Baltimore; Dr. Pearre, and others. A sunrise service is scheduled Sunday morning. Warren P. E. Smith is president of the Frederick Union.

Crisfield Installs Council Winners

Simmons P. Tilghman Is Only New Member.

Crisfield, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Crisfield's new town officials, elected last Wednesday in one of the most spirited municipal elections held here in recent years, were installed yesterday. They are William H. Bradshaw, mayor, and Raymond K. Woodland and Simmons P. Tilghman, councilmen.

Bradshaw and Woodland were reelected. Tilghman defeated Benjamin F. Gibson, who was seeking reelection. The other council member is Lorie C. Quinn, sr., who has two more years to serve.

Fishermen, 20 Miles Off Ocean City, Md., Sight School of Black Finbackers; One Capain Is Prevented From Shooting to Get Trophy.

Ocean City, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Startled by the appearance of a school of from 18 to 25 black finback whales, measuring around 75 feet in length, occupants on two Ocean City power launches, engaged in bluefishing 20 miles off the Maryland coast, had a whale of a story to tell upon their arrival in port last night.

The mammals, swimming north, were first sighted by Capt. Crawford Savage, of the Hilda, shortly before noon 20 miles off Ocean City. Soon after, Capt. J. B. Huntington, of Annapolis, and his companion, William G. Rounds, Ocean City hotel owner, fishing on the Drone not far from the Savage craft, noted the giants of the deep.

Motors of both power boats were silenced as the anglers anxiously watched the approach of the whales. Spouts of vapor flew skyward from the mammals like so many geysers. One giant whale leaped partly in the air and plunged beneath the Atlantic with a roar.

The whales came closer to the two boats. Abreast of the Drone the group halted momentarily only a few hundred yards distant. It was then that Capt. Huntington, veteran angler, cast aside his rod and reel and grabbed a high-powered rifle.

Rounds, realizing Huntington intended to shoot at the whales, pounced upon him and wrested the rifle from his hands. To have attacked the whales out there on the Atlantic would have been suicidal, Rounds said last night. "Had they turned upon our small boats in anger, they might have killed us all," he said.

In Capt. Huntington's mind, when he grabbed his rifle, was probably no thought of possible disaster. He had visions of annexing a big silver loving cup which the Ocean City Chamber of Commerce is offering to the angler catching the biggest fish during the month of June. And so he figured if he could nab a whale the cup would be his.

HighCourt Upholds "Oyster War" Case

Punishment for Felonies Sustained in Appeal.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—The decision of Judge Frederick W. Coleman in the case of the Commonwealth against Nelson Mahoney, heard in the Circuit Court of King George County last winter, which fixed the method of punishing persons convicted of dredging oysters in the Potomac River, was affirmed yesterday in a decision by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

Judge Coleman's decision prescribed punishment for felonies rather than for misdemeanors of 20 in the case of King George court, which grew out of the Maryland-Virginia "oyster war" last year.

The King George court fined Nelson D. Mahoney $100 under the Stuart oyster law in October, 1933. Mahoney and about 20 other residents of the county had been arrested in the "oyster war," during which one resident of Maryland was shot by Maryland State police.

Price Hike May End Gas Station 'Strike'

Hagerstown Advance Seen as Alleviating Snarl.

Hagerstown, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—A situation brought about by the "strike" of gas station operators at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., where gas sales have been discontinued for a week because of the disparity of prices there and Hancock, Md., 5 miles away, was believed to have been alleviated today by the action of large gasoline companies here, which advanced the price 3 cents, to 18 cents a gallon.

The Berkeley Springs dealers contended the wholesale price to them was higher than the Hancock retail price.

Washington County has long been known as "subnormal" territory because of an almost continuous war among dealers.

Police Probe School Attack.

Boonsboro, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Police began an investigation of the smashing of 14 large windows in the high school here. Large stones were found inside the building.

Tercentenary Half Dollars Will Be Issued Next Week

Baltimore, June 15 (Spl.).—Issuance of Maryland Tercentenary half-dollars will be delayed until next week, it was learned today by the Maryland Tercentenary Commission.

It had been hoped that a portion of the 25,000 coins would be available tomorrow, designated as State Day by Gov. Ritchie in honor of Maryland's 300th birthday.

When the coins arrive, they will be distributed through banks of the State. They will cost purchasers $1. The extra 50 cents will go to the Maryland Tercentenary Commission to pay expenses of the celebration today and tomorrow at St. Marys City.

Protest Made On Abolition Of Work Office

Fredericksburg Group Sees No Savings in Proposed Set-up.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Protest by local citizens and business men has already been launched against the announcement yesterday that the District 3 National Reemployment Service office here would be abolished on June 21 and its nine component counties be absorbed by Districts 1 and 6 as a matter of "economy and efficiency."

Frank E. Cavedo, State Director of Reemployment, in a letter to E. W. Koontz, district director, told of the change scheduled within one week.

It was pointed out here that at the present and for some time in the future District 3, with headquarters in this city, would be the busiest in Virginia. One thousand men have been put to work on 20 projects here, and subcontracts within the next two weeks will engage 500 more.

This district office places workers in Fredericksburg and the counties of Stafford, Spotsylvania, Caroline, King George, Westmoreland, Essex, Richmond, Lancaster and Northumberland. The first five counties listed have been changed to District 1, with headquarters in Alexandria, while the latter four have been shifted to District 6, at Newport News. B. H. Cook is director of District 1 and E. P. Hornlein of District 6.

A number of officials and business men here today began to form a delegation to call on Mr. Cavedo to show him that it would effect no saving to eliminate District 3, as officials of other districts would consume more in transportation expenses than is represented in the salaries of the office force of this district.

Should the State director refuse to reconsider his action, the local delegation plans to seek the intervention of Congressional representatives of this section.

Operations in District 3, stated by officials to exceed those of any other single district in Virginia, include the James Madison Memorial Bridge, landscaping of Routes 2 and 17, local street paving, Piper's Bridge over Kinsale Creek, which will take a year to erect and cost $100,000; Westmoreland State Park, Battlefield Park roads, which will employ more than 300 men before July 1, and several projects at Fredericksburg State Teachers College.

Harrisonburg Milk Hearing Set June 26

Richmond, June 15 (AP).—The State milk commission announced today that it would hold a public hearing on the extension of its authority to the Harrisonburg milksted in its rooms at the State Capitol here on June 26 at 10 a. m.

616,894 Trees Will Reforest Virginia Land

Distribution by State This Spring Far Above Previous Years.

Charlottesville, Va., June 15 (AP).—Chapin Jones, of the Virginia Forest Service, today calculated that 616,894 trees were distributed for reforestation this spring from the Virginia Forest-Tree Nursery.

The spring season began March 16 and ended May 1, Mr. Jones said, and the number of trees distributed this spring was 103 per cent greater than last spring and much over all previous years.

"Forest tree seedlings are grown by the State forest service, in cooperation with the United States Forest Service, at its forest-tree nursery on the property of the commission for the blind near Charlottesville, and distributed to any landowners in Virginia at a cost low enough to encourage reforestation of idle lands," said Mr. Jones.

Must Take at Least 1,000.

The trees are distributed for reforestation only, and are only of the species and of the small sizes considered most practical and economical for that purpose. They are not distributed for use as shade and ornamental trees. A minimum of 1,000 trees are distributed to any one purchaser, which is about enough to reforest one acre of land if planted solid, about 6½ feet apart.

The Virginia Forest Service does not, of course, have a positive explanation of the increased demand for trees for reforestation this spring. It is believed, however, to be due in part to the general increase in interest in forestry incident to President Roosevelt's leadership in establishing the Civilian Conservation Corps.

"While the bulk of the trees were scattered over the State, usually in lots of from 1,000 to 5,000 trees per man, and planted by the landowners themselves or their own families or employes, about 238,000 trees were distributed for planting on publicly owned land by the CCC.

Used Publicly Owned Lands.

These lands included steep parts of the nursery itself, the Gallion State Forest in Prince Edward County; the George Washington National Forest, seven Virginia State parks, the Warren County poor farm and the ground surrounding one of the fire lookout towers.

"More than a third of the total distribution this spring consisted of loblolly pine, the common native pine of the Tidewater section, which thrives and grows rapidly when when planted in suitable locations in other sections of Virginia, except at high elevations.

"The other principal species distributed were red or Norway pine (a Northern species), shortleaf pine (the original 'forest' pine of the Piedmont section), black or yellow locust and white pine. These pines might be called the 'standard' species for reforestation, looking toward timber production and utilization of otherwise idle land, while the locust is a great tree for fence posts and other special products and is peculiarly adapted to reclaiming land that is eroding. It will thrive when planted even in the bottoms and sides of gullies or 'galls,' and its roots quickly spread and hold the soil in place. The other principal species distributed included pitch pine, Scotch pine, Austrian pine, red cedar and tulip poplar."

Only 37 of 2,000 Convicts Violate Virginia Paroles

Richmond, June 15 (AP).—Among the more than 2,000 convicts granted strict conditional pardons in the past 12½ years, only 37 have violated terms of the pardons and returned to the State penitentiary, Gov. Peery disclosed today.

The figures were given in a report by Maj. Rice M. Youell, superintendent of the State penitentiary.

Most of the 37 were returned for "minor violations" of parole terms, the Governor said. Among these minor violations were a number of prohibition law cases.

Virginia's conditional pardon figures were advanced at the last session of the General Assembly as testimony that there should be a more modern parole system.

Pageant Ends Church Session In Winchester

1,500 See Production at High School, Closing Convention.

By C. B. Carr.

Winchester, Va., June 15.—An elaborate pageant, "Judean Hills Are Holy," produced under the direction of Prof. H. Augustine Smith, of the College of Music, Boston University, and participated in by 80 young people of Winchester, tonight brought to a close the forty-second annual convention of the Virginia Council of Religious Education which opened in First Baptist Church here Wednesday.

More than 1,500 persons witnessed the pageant in Hanly High School auditorium.

Today's program was given over largely to conferences, a feature of which was the presentation of the cooperative Sunday school programs in Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and Delaware. Dr. Ross W. Sanderson, Baltimore, general secretary, Maryland-Delaware Council of Religious Education; the Rev. Minor C. Miller, Dayton, Va., general secretary, Virginia Council of Religious Education, and Dr. Z. B. Edworthy, Charleston, W. Va., director of young people's work and leadership training, told of the programs for Sunday school work in their respective States

Section conferences this afternoon were held for all departments of the Sunday school. Speakers included Dr. Paul D. Eddy, director of week-day and vocation church schools, international council of religious education; Dr. Z. B. Edworthy and Prof. H. Augustine Smith.

Dr. Deets Pickett, Washington executive secretary, Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals, rapped the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and urged those in attendance to work for the control and prohibition of the liquor traffic.

The place of meeting in 1935 is to be decided by the executive committee. Present officers will continue until the executive committee selects another group later this year. The officers of the Virginia council include: Dr. M. E. Sadler, Lynchburg, president; the Rev. W. M. Bunts, Tazewell; F. Frank Robertson, Norfolk, and Dr. J. J. Scherer, jr., Richmond, vice president; Dr. E. B. Paisley, Richmond, chairman of the educational committee, and E. L. Carruthers, University, chairman of the executive committee.

Baltimore Plans 3-Day Fete To Celebrate Tercentenary

Baltimore, June 15 (Spl.).—Plans are being made for Baltimore's celebration of Maryland's tercentenary, August 10, 11 and 12. The fete will have as its theme "The History of the Ship," sponsored by the Maryland Yacht Club, which is celebrating its silver jubilee.

Present plans call for a three-day international regatta in the harbor. At least 300 boats are expected to participate. A water pageant is considered appropriate for the celebration, as this State has played a leading part in maritime affairs.

President Roosevelt, who has been invited to attend the festival, has indicated he will be present if his work will permit. At least 1,000,000 persons are expected to witness the pageant.

Baltimore's waterfront will be decorated. Detachments of infantry will camp at the Maryland Yacht Club, Broening Park, and concerts will be given daily by a military band.

Three United States warships have been assigned to the fete. British and French war vessels also are expected to be sent here. Details of officers and men from the ships will take part in a street parade. On one of the nights there is to be a reproduction of the bombardment of Fort McHenry.

Board Choices Are Revealed By Methodists

Trend of Times Flayed at Western Maryland College Session.

Westminster, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Committee and board appointments featured the second day of the Maryland Annual Conference, Methodist Protestant Church, in session at Western Maryland College.

Those named on committees were: Official relations committee, the Rev. H. L. Elderdice, Westminster, chairman. Audit committee, the Rev. A. F. T. Raum, Baltimore, chairman; the Rev. John W. Townsend, Washington; the Rev. D. K. Sturgis, Philadelphia, Pa., and the Rev. K. H. Warehime, Fawn Grove, Pa., assistant secretaries.

The Rev. J. A. Trader, Cherrydale, Va., was appointed secretary to the president of the conference. The Rev. J. G. Eaton, Laurel, Del., replaces the Rev. Mr. Trader on the literature and education committee.

Trustees of the Maryland Annual Conference, named for three years, include the Rev. G. W. Haddaway and the Rev. W. B. Judefind, Baltimore, Md., ministerial members; F. G. Usilton, Chestertown, Md., and W. C. Scoft, Baltimore, lay members.

Funds Plan Approved.

Business included approval of a plan to raise $150,000 through direct gifts and other sources to liquidate indebtedness on the building housing headquarters of the conference in Baltimore.

During the session yesterday, Dr. G. W. Crabbs, Antisaloon League leader, gave a 20-minute talk in which he charged a serious condition was created by drug stores and confectionery stores which sell bottled alcoholic beverages and candies filled with alcoholic beverages to children and young people.

The Rev. Leonard B. Smith, of Baltimore, retiring president of the Maryland annual conference, Methodist Protestant Church, in his annual report, delivered at Western Maryland College on the opening day of conference, expressed conditions in the church today by quoting from an annual report made 38 years ago.

The quotation, contained in a report of former President J. D. Windsor, during what was known as the "Cleveland depression" follows: "The stagnation in business, and the general depression in finances, have made aggressive movements difficult. The work has advanced only by great sacrifices.

Pastors' Work Praised.

"In some charges the people, with little money at their command, have done nobly for the church. The collections for general interests will doubtless be deficient, but I have been gratified to know that many charges will, in spite of hard times, meet their assessments in full. Failure of business and low prices of farm products have carried timidity into the church. Progress in some cases has been made by the triumph of the pastors' faith and courage over the inertia and hopelessness of the church."

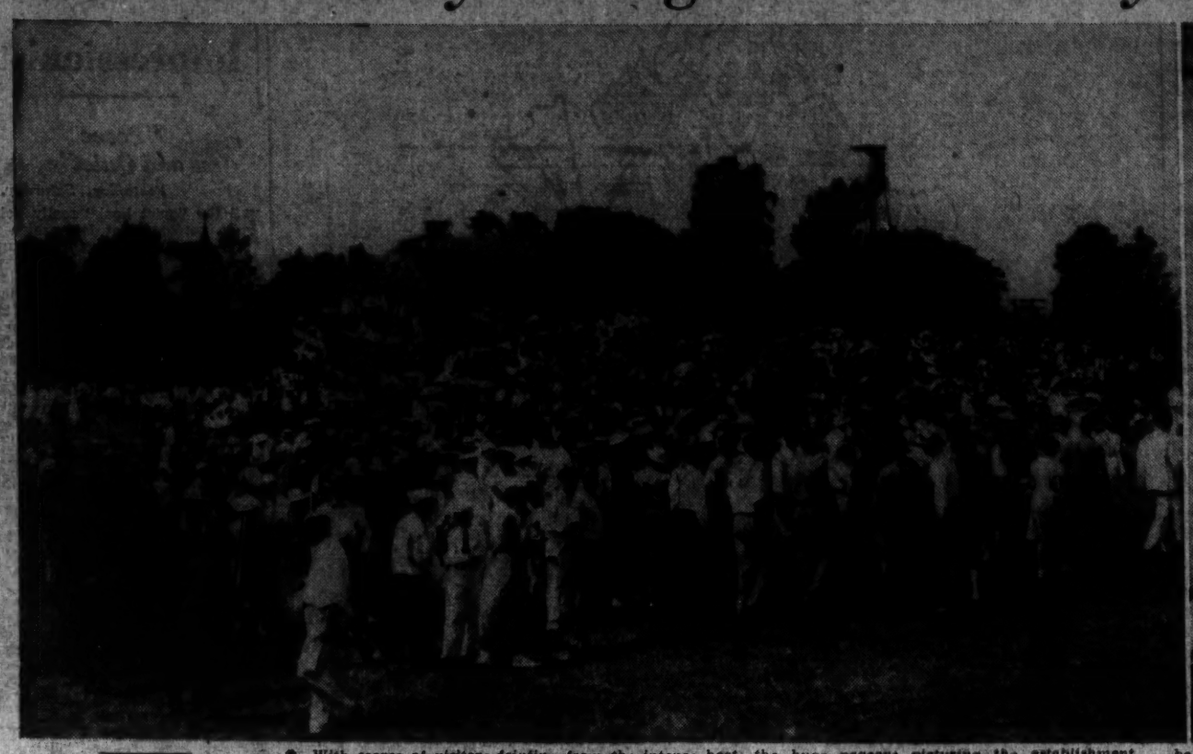
The Rev. Mr. Smith spoke of prohibition repeal, and pointed out: "The most alarming phase of this great question is that which involves the members and families of our own churches. Applications to sell liquor have been signed by members of our churches.

"It is time for aggressive and specific action along all lines—education, evangelization, crusade for legislation and redemption of victims from the curse. Our National leaders professing to champion, like Jeroboam, the overburdened and 'forgotten man,' have already made for themselves a reputation like that of Jeroboam, 'who made Israel to sin.'"

Virginia Baptists Hear Capital Pastor Speak

Richmond, June 15 (Spl.).—The annual meeting of the Negro Baptist General Association of Virginia and the thirty-fourth annual meeting of the Woman's Baptist Missionary and Educational Association of Virginia, were concluded tonight with a joint session of the two organizations, at which the principal address was made by the Rev. Earl L. Harrison, D. D., pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church, Washington.

Heat Fells Many as Huge Tercentenary Pageant Is Presented at St. Marys City



With scores of visitors fainting from the intense heat, the huge pageant picturing the establishment of Maryland 300 years ago at St. Marys City, was enacted on schedule yesterday afternoon. It will be repeated today. Above, view of the crowd with the replica of the original State house, which will be dedicated this morning, in the background; Indians precede Lord Calvert and his followers after the Colonists have just set foot on American soil for the first time prior to founding Maryland and establishing St. Marys City as first capital.

Lord Calvert is seen addressing the Colonists after landing from the Ark and Dove; Seventeenth century pirates who harassed the Colonists find time for a bit of sword play.

More than 1,000 actors were in the pageant.

Heat Strikes Tercentenary Fete Leader

William L. Marbury Faints; but Ceremonies Continue.

By Marion Butler.

St. Marys City, Md., June 15.—Blazing down on ancient Governor's Field, the site of Maryland's first capital, here today, the sun nearly disrupted impressive tercentenary dedication exercises at the opening of the two-day celebration of the 300th anniversary of Maryland.

In the ceremonies, William L. Marbury, chairman of the Tercentenary Commission, fainted from the heat, while young Robert M. Thomas, flag bearer, later toppled from the platform as he carried the American flag.

Mr. Marbury, who was seated with Gov. Ritchie, R. Bennett Darnall, State Senator J. Allen Coad and J. Spence Howard, tercentenary executives; Mayor Howard J. Jackson of Baltimore, and other State and National notables, was carried away by stretcher bearers and treated by the 104th Medical Regiment of Baltimore, in charge of Capt. R. O'Connell.

Ceremonies Continue.

Ceremonies continued, but several hundred persons were forced to leave to seek shelter under shade trees on St. Marys Bluff, inside the newly erected replica of the first State house and on the lawns of Trinity Episcopal Church.

A Governor's salute of 19 guns opened ceremonies at 11 a. m. when Gov. Ritchie and party disembarked from their headquarters aboard the Gov. McLane, flagship of the Maryland Conservation Commission fleet. State police escorted the Governor's car up the steep incline to the Statehouse entrance, where Gov. Ritchie and Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding officer of the Maryland National Guard, greeted friends on the box-bordered walk leading to the Statehouse.

Mr. Darnall, tercentenary executive committee chairman, presided. The Rev. Dr. James Magruder, of Annapolis, offered prayer.

Chief speaker was the Rev. John Elliott Ross, of Virginia, chaplain of the Ark and Dove Society, who spoke on the ideals of the early Maryland colonists, who settled St. Marys in 1634.

"The celebration of Maryland's tercentenary," he said, "should leave a deepening in all hearts to live up to the principles of religious freedom set down by those first settlers."

Presentation of gifts for the new Statehouse replica by organizations and individuals throughout Maryland followed.

Gifts Are Presented.

Among the prominent notables presenting the gifts were

State Senator Lewis Milbourne, president of the Eastern Shore Society, who presented a portrait of George Calvert on behalf of the society; Mrs. Edward Shoemaker, a bust of Leonard Calvert, presented by the Society of Colonial Dames; Mrs. John Franklin Little, who presented a 200-year-old chest on behalf of the District of Columbia; Society of the Daughters of the American Colonists; Walter J. Mitchell, model of the "Freedom of Conscience" statue, by Hans Schuler; Dr. Matthew Page Andrews, an ancient chair given by Mrs. John Wieman; Mrs. H. D. Shephard, of Hanover, Pa., $70 in memory of an ancestor who was a member of the first House of Burgesses at St. Marys City, and Mayor Howard Jackson, of Baltimore, who presented $2,500 on behalf of Baltimore City.

Mayor Jackson expressed the belief that a session of the Legislature in the reconstructed Statehouse would be a fitting commemorative event.

Luncheon for State and tercentenary officials was served aboard H. M. S. Dundee, British warship from Bermuda.

A band concert was given by members of the Maryland National Guard Band, and a parade of National Guard Field Artillery took place on the pageant field. Boys of the American Legion Junior Fife and Drum Corps of Leonardtown also paraded.

John Seeks Clerkship.

Westminster, Md., June 15 (Spl.). Ray Yohn, sheriff of Carroll County, announced yesterday that he will be a candidate for clerk of court, subject to the Democratic primary.

W. J. Werner Ends His Life At Alexandria

Had Been Lumber Firm's Cashier Until Last Month.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 333.

William J. Werner, 55, for nine years cashier and manager of the Wallace & Herring Lumber Co., Alexandria, ended his life with a .32-caliber revolver in his automobile yesterday morning.

Victor Donaldson, proprietor of a store on King street extended, near the Fairfax County line, heard the shot and notified police. Policeman John F. Kelley found Werner's body slumped against the steering wheel of his car.

Dr. Llewellyn Powell, city coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

It was stated yesterday at the Wallace & Herring offices that the services of Mr. Werner had been dispensed with May 15.

Mr. Werner was a native of Virginia, although he had lived several years in Baltimore. His home was at 6 Timber Branch drive, Alexandria. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nannie Werner, and one daughter. He also leaves his mother, two brothers and a sister, all of Baltimore.

2 More Suits Ask $30,000 for Crash

Harrisonburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.). Two more suits for $15,000 damages each were filed today in Rockingham circuit court against Carl Spitzer, jr., of Broadway, as the result of a Valley Pike automobile collision last December.

The claims for injuries were filed by Miss Irene Ring, of Woodstock, driver of the automobile figuring in the crash with Spitzer's machine, and Miss Margaret Piggott, 17, of Purcellsville. Harry Martin, University of Virginia football star, the third occupant of the Ring car, previously filed suit for $15,000, making a total of $45,000 claims in the crash.

The suits probably will be set for trial at the next session of circuit court.

Rites Conducted For Mrs. Hickman

Princess Anne, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Charlotte Hickman, 74, who died Wednesday night at the home of her son, Isaac H. Hickman, at Oriole.

Mrs. Hickman, widow of the late Isaac W. Hickman, and a member of one of Somerset County's oldest families, had been in ill health for more than a year. Her death was due to a stroke of paralysis, suffered Monday evening.

Five children survive: Isaac H. Hickman, Oriole; Luther G. Hickman, Mrs. Pauline Johnson and Mrs. Anna McNany, of Baltimore, and W. Jerome Hickman, Fairmount.

Heart Attack Fatal To Cambridge Man

Cambridge, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—A heart attack, suffered after he had spent most of Wednesday working in his garden, was responsible for the death of John H. Robinson, 79, who died about noon yesterday.

Mr. Robinson was a native of Taylors Island and spent the early years of his life sailing. Later he engaged in farming, and about seven years ago he moved to Cambridge, where he became interested in real estate. His survivors are his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Frank Navy, of Taylors Island; three sisters and one brother, Misses Sallie and Sophie Robinson, of Taylors Island; Mrs. Hicks Lewis, of Lloyds, and Joseph Robinson, of Taylors Island.

Funeral rites will be conducted by the Rev. W. G. Harris, of Zion M. E. Church, tomorrow, at his home.

Bank Receivership Ordered.

Richmond, June 15 (AP).—The State corporation commission today ordered the State commissioner of insurance and banking, M. E. Bristow, to apply for a receivership for the Planters Bank of Keysville, which has been suspended since April, 1933.

Brethren Hold Board Election As Linwood Conference Ends

Westminster, Md., June 15 (Spl.). Election of board members at the forty-seventh annual conference of the southeastern district Brethren Churches featured the closing session last night at Linwood, Carroll County.

In a special program on Sunday school work Miss Grace Byron, of the Brethren French Equatorial African mission in Oubangui Chari, described the Sunday school program at the mission.

Other speakers and the topics were: The Rev. M. A. Stuckey, Ashland, Ohio, "How Jesus Taught" and "The Virgin Birth of Christ;" the Rev. Edward L. Miller, "Sunday School Work;" the Rev. Ernest Pine, "Impelling Motives of a Witnessing Church," and the Rev. John F. Locke, "Keeping the Faith of Our Fathers."

Board members are: Mission board—The Rev. E. L. Miller, Maurertown, Va., treasurer (filling the unexpired term of the late Rev. George A. Copp, Strasburg, Va.); Henry Clay Dooley, Washington, and S. M. Coffey, Roanoke, Va. The Rev. Frank G. Coleman, Hagerstown, was elected president of the District mission board.

Murder Charge Is Filed Against Wendel Miner

Grafton, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Having waived extradition, Michael Hrisick, 74, Wendel coal miner, has been brought to the Taylor County jail here by Sheriff Lee Bennett and Claude Hefner, State trooper, from Homestead, Pa., where he was arrested as a fugitive in connection with the recent slaying of Mike Passako, another Wendel miner found dead in his bachelor cabin there.

He will be arrainged on a murder charge before Magistrate Ona C. Jeffreys.

Rouzerville Home Damaged by Fire

Waynesboro, June 15 (Spl.).—The two-and-a-half story log and frame dwelling owned and occupied by Ernest Harbaugh, Rouzerville, was partially destroyed by fire of unknown origin about 2 p. m. yesterday.

Harbaugh and his son were preparing to paint the exterior of the house when they discovered the fire eating through the partition in the front of the house. Waynesboro firemen were called and extinguished the blaze.

Harbaugh was unable to estimate the damage to the dwelling. Neighbors aided in carrying out much of the furniture.

Dr. Young Named Head Of Loudoun Field Club

Leesburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Dr. S. Taylor Young, of Middleburg, has been elected president of the Loudoun Amateur Field Trial Club, organized here, with R. T. Corbell, vice president, and Jack Thomas, secretary and treasurer.

The next meeting of the club will be held July 9, at 8 p. m. in the home of W. S. Francis, near Purcellville, to formulate plans for the running of a field trial and the holding of a bench show in the county this autumn.

Slander, Assault Charged in Suits

Berryville Garage Man Asks $50,000.

Berryville, Va., June 15 (Spl.). Two suits involving total damages of $50,000 have been filed in Circuit Court of Clarke County here against Alfred M. Kerfoot, Winchester and Berryville business man, by R. F. Jones, local garageman.

Both suits are, said to have been the outgrowth of difficulties arising between the two men as a result of a suit brought by Kerfoot against Jones for alleged damages done to the house of the former while Jones was a tenant there. Kerfoot, as guardian for his son, William Hilleary Kerfoot, had control of the house.

Old Christ Church Marker Unveiled

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—A marker was unveiled yesterday afternoon at Bunker Hill, south of here, a few hundred yards from the site on which stands Old Christ Church, one of the first Episcopal churches established in what was then part of Virginia.

A program was given in the church, the present building being the third which has stood on practically the same spot in the nearly 200 years of the church's history, preceding the unveiling, in which the Rev. Paul L. Powles, Episcopal rector here, who also serves the chapel, sketched the history of the parish. An address was given by Mrs. Gory Hogg, of Lewisburg, W. Va., State regent of the D. A. R., and a program of music given by a mixed quartet, a poem by Miss Mary Bittenger. The program was in charge of Mrs. F. P. Spillman, this city, regent of William Henshaw Chapter, N. S. D. A. R., which provided the marker.

Couple in Danville Called Bigamists

Pair Held at Instigation of First Husband.

Danville, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—A man and a woman whose marriage had never been questioned were arrested here today by detectives, who charged each with bigamy.

Mrs. Minnie Brown is said to have married Ralph Walker when she had a husband, Bernie Brown, living in Greensboro, N. C. Walker is quoted by the police as saying that he, too, was married to a woman he would name only as Matilda at the time he married Mrs. Walker here in 1926.

They were remanded to jail pending further investigation. The arrest was brought about, police said, by Bernie Brown, who traced his wife here.

Fire Fighters Of Maryland Meet June 20

Volunteers From Other States Also Will Join Cambridge Session.

Cambridge, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Firemen from 155 volunteer companies in Maryland, augmented by delegations from Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia and the District of Columbia, will meet in Cambridge on June 20, when the Maryland Volunteer Firemen's Association opens a three-day session in this city.

Convention meetings will be held in the armory and will open with addresses by city officials and Russell P. Smith, past president of the State Association, who is chairman of the local convention committee. The response will be by E. J. C. Raney, the president, who will preside at the convention. Wednesday night memorial services will be conducted by the association chaplain, the Rev. James W. Minter, of Baltimore.

Thursday morning will be devoted to a discussion of fire topics, and at 1:30 p. m. there will be an engine contest and a demonstration of a smoke ejector by the Hyattsville Fire Department. At the night session Sherwood Brockwell, State fire marshal, of North Carolina, and instructor in the Maryland Fire College, will be the speaker.

Chiefs to Attend.

Chief Howard Travers, of the Baltimore Fire Department; Edward H. Warr, head of the Baltimore Salvage Corps; Chief Jesse Fisher, Annapolis Fire Department; Chief Fred Grier, Salisbury; Chief Abe Davis, Harve de Grace, and Chief Hilton J. Bennett, Hagerstown, will participate, with other chiefs and assistants, in a meeting Friday morning in the armory.

In the afternoon a parade of uniformed firemen, auxiliary units, bands, drum and bugle corps and apparatus will pass through the streets of Cambridge. This will be followed by exhibition drills and band contests. Hundreds of dollars will be presented in prizes to the companies in the State making the best showing in the parade, and there will be many awards for out-of-State companies.

Among the prominent speakers to attend will be Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore and A. N. Johnson, dean of the Engineering School at the University of Maryland. Chief N. F. Rusche of the Hyattsville Fire Company will speak on closer cooperation among fire companies, standardizing equipment and educational programs for the various companies. Mrs. Mary Fainter, State president of the Woman's Auxiliaries, will preside at their meetings to be held in the session room of Rescue Fire Company.

Entertainment Provided.

Entertainment will be provided by the local company for the visiting firemen. There will be concerts by Rescue Fire Company's Band, street dances, a crab feast and a boat excursion.

Every day acceptances are being received in large numbers, and, according to George K. Lindsay, of Hagerstown, secretary of the State association, this will be the largest convention in 15 years. Five hundred firemen of Baltimore have engaged a special steamer to bring them to Cambridge.

Russell P. Smith, general chairman, is also chairman of the parade. Other committee chairmen are J. Emory Parks, entertainment; D. Clinton Kinnamon, housing; Philip C. Sterling, prize and contest; Howard J. Sullivan, decorating and lighting; Dr. James P. Swing, reviewing stand; Frank E. Albaugh, traffic; William H. Leonard, jr., transportation; Lyle H. Wright, first aid and public welfare, and Earl N. Bradley and Philip C. Sterling, program.

Farm Loan Officials Will Meet in Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—A regional meeting of presidents and secretary-treasurer of the National Farm Loan Association has been called by the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore in Roanoke next Tuesday.

The purpose is to speed up loan closing and to expedite the program generally, it was said.

Grace Abbott Resigns.

With wisdom, courage, and devoted but tempered zeal, Grace Abbott for the past 13 years has served the Nation as chief of the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. Announcement of her resignation brings with it a feeling almost of unreality. During a period extending from the World War through the depression Miss Abbott has become so closely identified with the Children's Bureau that it is difficult to think of the one without the other.

Called to Washington in 1917 to administer the first Federal child labor law, Miss Abbott succeeded the late Julia Lathrop as chief of the Children's Bureau in 1921 and almost immediately was given the administration of the Federal maternity and infancy act, which was in effect seven years. While strengthening the statistical work of the bureau and increasing its informational and consultation services to States and local communities, Miss Abbott has filled her difficult and controversial position with uniform administrative efficiency and with a breadth of vision and resourceful energy typical of the best that women have to offer in public life. It has often been said of her that she has shown how to be chief of an important bureau without becoming a bureaucrat.

With clear understanding of the functions assigned to the bureau by Congress and a scientific viewpoint toward the close inter-relationship of the various phases of child welfare, Miss Abbott has not singled out any one group of children for undue attention; but, emphasizing the economic basis of child welfare, and the preventive rather than the palliative method of attacking problems of health, dependency, and delinquency, her constructive imagination and tireless effort have constantly sought the removal of the handicaps, troubles, and misfortunes that limit the average American home in its creative task.

Perhaps the most eloquent tribute paid to Miss Abbott was the spontaneous movement in 1930 to have her appointed Secretary of Labor to succeed James J. Davis. The favorable public reaction, as evidenced by editorials in the press all over the country, probably helped to prepare the way for the appointment of the first woman Cabinet member. Be that as it may, Miss Abbott had the great satisfaction of seeing her friend Frances Perkins appointed Secretary of Labor. It is with an expression of complete confidence that the work of the Children's Bureau will have the most sympathetic understanding and support that she leaves to resume an academic career.

Utility Rates And The P. U. C.

Adjustment of utility rates is an extremely intricate task. Under our system of regulated private enterprise the reasonableness of a rate schedule depends upon many complicated factors. The average user of telephones, gas and electric light is utterly unable to determine whether or not the rates charged are fair or excessive. Consequently, it is an essential function of local government to regulate natural monopolies which render public service of this kind.

As has been demonstrated many times, an efficient public utilities commission may save taxpayers many times its cost. Its experts are able to determine the valuation of utility companies, to analyze their earnings and to adjust rates in accord with the public interest, while at the same time protecting the investment of the companies and allowing them reasonable profits. There is good reason to believe that the Public Utilities Commission of the District is performing this function efficiently. Justice Adkins' decision upholding the 10 per cent reduction in telephone rates ordered by the commission tends to confirm this opinion.

The court held that telephone rates in the District have been "unreasonably high and unjust." Under rates prescribed by the P. U. C., Justice Adkins said the company would have earned 6.3 per cent on a "fair value" of its property during 1933. While appeal may be taken to the higher courts, the case has gone far enough to demonstrate that the commission has been very diligent in its efforts to safeguard the interests of telephone subscribers. On the other hand, it does not appear that the commission has sought to undermine the utility.

If the judgment of the District Supreme Court is sustained there will be refunded to telephone users in Washington a sum several times the entire amount appropriated for operation of the P. U. C. next year. Actuated to some extent by personal and political animosities, the House slashed the commission's appropriation from $86,823 to $50,000 and the District supply bill became law carrying that provision. Obviously, such a reduction would cripple the commission in the exercise of its duties.

The Senate has voted to restore this item through the last deficiency supply bill. The telephone case ought to convince House leaders that their short-sighted policy, adopted in the name of economy, may prove very costly to District residents unless the blunder is corrected as the Senate suggests.

An Unsound Principle.

The Administration's housing bill, which has passed the House by a vote of 176 to 19, provides for a form of Federal insurance of individual mortgages up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the mortgaged property. This system of underwriting losses is considered by proponents of the bill to be essential in order to overcome the reluctance of investors to hazard their funds, after the unfortunate experiences of recent years. Instead of relying upon the collective and individual judgment of those who are familiar with conditions in the mortgage field, it is proposed, therefore, to create a market for home mortgage loans by insuring lenders against loss.

Granted that there is a real demand for new housing; granted, too, that there is a lack of confidence on the part of prospective investors, the country certainly would not be benefited by the placement of mortgages upon homes occupied by individuals whose incomes might be inadequate to support the burden of the debt charges. The ultimate soundness and the desirability of these loans should be judged with reference to the ability to pay of the individual borrower. When Government guarantees are made the test of the soundness of a mortgage loan, the chance of loss and the dangers of irresponsible financing are greatly increased.

In the home mortgage field Federal guarantees are especially liable to lead to abuse, because successful lending requires familiarity with local conditions and with the character and earning capacity of borrowers. To transfer to the Federal Government responsibility for losses incurred in connection with a business which calls for a high degree of judgment and caution is a serious matter. Tests based on the appraised value of the property are most unreliable, in view of the wide fluctuations which occur in real estate values. Moreover, in case of extensive defaults, the lender, or the Government that insures the lender against loss, will be left in possession of properties that can not be liquidated except at severe sacrifice.

The experiences of the post-depression years have revealed the dangers of relying upon Government promises and indorsements instead of examining the debt-paying capacity of the people who provide their governments with revenue. If more attention had been paid to these underlying and ultimate tests of paying capacity, the American people would not have lost so heavily in the foreign loan market and they would also have been spared losses due to reliance upon all sorts of domestic guarantees. It is unwise to depend upon government proposals to protect against losses due to errors of judgment or unforeseen contingencies. The assumption of liabilities of this sort is a dangerous proceeding, especially as one form of public insurance inevitably creates demands for others. Carried to extremes, the system is capable of wrecking the credit of any government. And it is certain to increase the risks of loss by encouraging irresponsible practices.

The Munitions Barrier.

Exporters of munitions are discovering that the embargo on the shipment of war materials to Paraguay and Bolivia is no idle gesture. About $600,000 worth of bombs, military trucks, mortars, &c., designed for the Chaco war area, is being held in New York and Norfolk pending an investigation by the Department of Justice to determine whether its shipment would violate the President's proclamation. This prompt action serves notice that the Government will tolerate no evasion of its orders governing arms shipments.

The technical question at issue in this case is whether title to the munitions had actually passed to foreign governments when the order forbidding such sales to the Chaco belligerents was signed. Companies responsible for these shipments may be able to show that they have not violated the letter of the proclamation. But the Government has done well to raise the issue and to insist upon a rigid interpretation of the law and the Executive order.

Too often prohibitions of this sort are regarded as moral gestures to be praised in theory and ignored in practice. If any of the munitions manufacturers and distributors have so regarded this ban on the sale of weapons to Bolivia and Paraguay, an abrupt awakening appears to be in store. Vigorous enforcement of this antiwar measure will be supported by public opinion no less enthusiastically than was its enactment.

Cuckoo And Cock.

Maxim Gorky will probably bring down the wrath of the Commissars upon his venerable head. He has unwittingly revealed that the intelligentsia of Moscow have not been entirely purified by the cleansing processes of communism. In a ringing statement he condemns the young writers, the so-called artists in uniform, for drinking too much and for playing too excessively at the ancient game of rolling the log. His censorious attack had some of the moral fervor of one by our own late-lamented John Roach Straton, directed at the whippersnappers of Greenwich Village.

But although Gorky says the Russian writers drink too much, he condemns them mostly for doing it in public. He suggests they stay at home when they are under the influence of liquor, awaiting the further influence of the muse to move them in praise of a dynamo or a new canal. He is rather more bitter about log rolling. "The cuckoo praises the cock," he said, "because the cock praises the cuckoo, with the result that worthless writers gain the praise they do not deserve." How often that has been said throughout the ages! Communism has evidently advanced Russia little towards a literary Utopia.

Russian writers, Gorky complains, have become individualists carried away by a thirst for leadership. Consequently authors are unable to portray honestly the "disappearance of individualism" among the peasants, which is making way for the proletarian spirit. Rugged individualism among the writers, too much vodka, and the cock praising the cuckoo are traits not held by Russian authors alone. It is doubtful if even the eminent Gorky can bring sobriety and drive out vanity among the artists of the not-entirely-proletarian state.

Not Playing The Game.

Germany's suspension of payments on foreign debts has naturally aroused indignation in creditor countries. But it is curious that nowhere has the reaction been as indignant as in Great Britain. The furious British protests, ironically enough, coincide with the complete suspension of British war debt payments to this country. And they are accompanied by threats of reprisals which are in striking contrast with the objective defense which the British offer for their decision to default on war debt account.

The German situation of course differs from that of Great Britain, since the moratorium applies to private not intergovernmental debts, and covers loans issued under special agreements, and given priority over other debt claims. Nevertheless, if transfer difficulties alone justify refusal to meet the terms of a debt-funding agreement between two governments, Germany has certainly a valid reason for the suspension of interest on private debts, including the Dawes and Young Plan bonds. And her inability to pay is scarcely open to debate, even though she might well have paid over the remnants of her foreign exchange reserves, and stopped the importation of war materials, before calling a complete halt.

Nevertheless, Great Britain and other creditor countries are now preparing to establish compulsory clearing systems that would enable them to apply money obtained from sales of German goods in their markets to the satisfaction of the debt claims of their own citizens. Great Britain, France, Holland, and Switzerland buy much more from Germany than they sell to her, so that they are in a position to demand special debt concessions by threatening to cut off German imports.

Holland and Switzerland have already used this method most successfully to obtain preferred treatment for their nationals. If the British follow this example, the United States will have good reason to protest most strongly against a policy which would deprive us of a fair share of the funds available for payment on debt account. We sell more goods to Germany than we buy from her and can not, therefore, coerce Germany into granting special concessions to American creditors, although our stake in the German private debt is larger than that of European countries. Furthermore, compulsory clearing arrangements in the long run would seriously hamper Germany's efforts to expand her exports and increase her debt-paying capacity.

Greeat Britain has argued persuasively that the war debts should be radically reduced in the interest of world trade and for the ultimate benefit of creditors as well as debtors. The German situation ought, therefore, to be viewed in London with the same detachment, and with the same regard for the long-time consequences of the policies followed in dealing with a defaulter. It is not "playing the game," indeed it is a reflection on British honor, to apply one system of logic to your creditors and quite another to your debtors.

There Was A Fight.

The fight went true to form. Process-servers arrived just before the two men went into the ring. High-priced sports writers from all over the country filled the best seats. Mama Baer, away out West, listened at the radio. A girl in London, responsible for one of the process-servers, prayed with tears in her eyes that Primo would win. The bigger his share, the more certain hers.

Platoons of aspiring journalists awaited the gong, studying their notebooks full of adjectives, similes, exclamation points. A jobless chorus girl, who said Maxie hit her, hoped a judge would give her $50,000 of his slice of the gate. Morse code operators came in carrying their "bugs." Cameramen arrived. Experts gathered at the ringside. Here and there a hip flask flashed. Dizzie dames gasped at Maxie's physique. The usual jokes were made about Carnera's feet.

The fight started. The adjectives began running up heavy wire tolls. The radio announcers began talking about haymakers, with cut-ins on automobile tires. Thousands of middle aged men tuned in their radios and got excited. Their wives wondered secretly how long they would have to stand it.

Mad Maxie, called variously the craziest, looniest, berserkest hombre, to put it mildly, who ever beat another man and banged the adjectives out of the typewriters below his dancing feet, began his dynamic, desperate, dangerous, delirious, deadly assault upon the lumbering lummux who was his opponent. The adjectives danced; the alliteration alliterated; the typewriters tapped and the sports writers scored a technical knockout in every other sentence.

It was not only the battle of the century, but the most beautiful, the most daring, the most most exhibition of somethingorother since the days of the cavemen, a period that sports writers know better than archaeologists. And then the fight was over, the sports writers closed their harrowing, hair-raising, hazardous harangues.

Anyway, there was a fight. At least, we have been told there was. The photographs showed somebody hitting somebody else. Cameras don't use adjectives. And that's why sports writers and photographers never speak to each other.

No "Weaker Sex."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For centuries woman has had to struggle to secure recognition of her rights as a human being. Man either treated her as a toy or a plaything for his lighter moments or else put woman on a pedestal and worshiped her as a superior being when all she desired was to be treated as a human being like himself (neither better nor worse, as far as the individual is concerned), as we know there are good and bad women as well as good and bad men and sex has nothing to do with character.

To be treated as a toy or plaything and classified with morons and imbeciles as women were before they secured the vote was no more pleasant than to be put on a pedestal and given homage that no one could live up to when a mere human being. In my estimation women desire to be treated first of all as human beings, neither inferior nor superior to men as far as soul and intellect are concerned, and physicians now state that in reality women are not the "weaker sex." Even though they lack the muscular strength of men they exceed them in endurance, so people will have to change many obsolete theories held regarding women as being the "weaker vessel", and a "frail reed," &c. These ideas are a holdover from mid-Victorian days. Thanks to a greater outdoor life, women now can compete with men in practically every line and hold their own physically. D. A. D.

Black Gambling Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is difficult to understand how anyone can think that if the Black gambling bill passes it will not increase the gambling outside the Benning track.

This bill does not permit legal betting outside the track, but it can not do anything except to increase the number of handbooks and illegal gambling places in our city, which are even now too numerous. These will do more profitable business and, undoubtedly, increase in number.

Those who have caught the disease—when they can not go to the track—will patronize the handbook men and women. For when the institution for broadcasting germs of the disease of gambling is well under way, all those infected by the disease will not be able to pay the admission fee at the track. There will be more gambling outside the race track than on the track itself.

If Congress desires to discredit the New Deal, it should enact the Black gambling bill, which is opposed by the Washington Federation of Churches, by 69 of the 70 citizens associations, and by the International Reform Federation.

Answering "F. H."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in your issue of June 12 the letter by F. H. in regard to Government owned and operated enterprises in the Canal Zone. The letter itself affords "food for thought" in that it misstates facts well known to anyone conversant with conditions there.

For example: Freight and passenger rates are not "ridiculously low." Quite otherwise. But train service is ridiculously slow—also infrequent. Also the railway company (owned by the Government) is by reason of its charter (which empowers it to do almost anything except stop the revolution of the earth and the lapse of time), a sort of corporate "pooh bah" which carries out the many other "Government" activities alluded to by H. F.

These various enterprises include the commissaries, which do not sell food and supplies at about one-third the cost in the United States, although some items are very low in cost, being exempt from tariff and other taxes. The commissaries also supply most of the shipping, in transit, to the great detriment of local business, and operate hotels at a cost far different from one-half that in the United States. The railway also operates a steamship line, and a considerable part of the "profits" are from Government business; i. e., Uncle shifts the cash from one pocket to another, and it is called profit. This is a reversal of the process, but similar in principle, to the other action of our same good Uncle where he keeps the Postoffice Department in the red by carrying all his official mail and supplies of political propaganda, canning, cookery, dressmaking recipes, &c., free and charges the loss up to the innocent letter-writer in a 50 per cent sales tax on his private correspondence. Washington, June 13.

Congressional Representation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently a member of the House of Representatives introduced a resolution proposing to reduce the number of members from 435 to 96, or 2 from each State, which is also the number from each State in the Senate. He said the present membership is unwieldly. This thought has often been advanced in the last 100 years.

However, just what number would approximate the ideal is only limited to the imagination of the one proposing such an amendment. Historically, the Senate was to be composed of two "ambassadors" from each of the sovereign States. The House membership was designed by the founders of the Constitution to represent the citizenship of minor units within the States—to represent a sort of combination of territorial units and citizenship groups.

In the older governments of Europe the two houses composing the Parliament represented two different interests. The one represented the propertied interests and the other the "people." However, with them, as with us, the two houses, so to speak, were, and are, and ought to be, what might well be termed the negative and positive pole of the battery. It was Washington who said the House of Representatives is the cup and the Senate the saucer. Thus the hot legislative "coffee" in the cup could be poured into the saucer to cool off.

It might be well for all new members of Congress to read the various proposed amendments which have been offered since the establishment of the Nation—some 3,000 of them. One proposed three Presidents and another that each sovereign State should put a Presidential candidate on the ticket. There appears to be no limit to the imagination of a new member of Congress.

It is the humble opinion of the writer that the crux of the problem is not so much the number of members, but the kind and caliber of the members. This conclusion is based on more than a third of a century spent in noting the actions of the members of the House of Representatives. GROVER AYERS.

We Are Sometimes Ironic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am quite sure you made a grave mistake in the Editor's note at the foot of this man J. A. Love's letter in The Post of June 11, when you said "statesman."

He is not even a gentleman to have written such a letter to such a venerable newspaper as The Washington Post. I'll bet if you look up his record you will find he is just a cheap politician.

HARRY I. SCHARR.

"Honor Unaffected."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It would appear from his letter in The Post of June 13 that P. E. B. knows a little about the subject upon which he writes. However, he ridicules the reasons put forth by Britain for postponement of the debts payments, but fails to propound any reason, or reasons, why the debts should be paid now and in full. I would say it is possible to be both firm and tolerant, but abuse is no argument.

I hold no brief for Britain any more than The Post, but I venture to suggest we have a vision which enables us to see a little beyond the mere transfer of such a huge sum of money from one country to another each year.

No self-respecting Britisher would for one moment tolerate repudiation of the debt and it is to be regretted statesmen have been slow to find ways and means acceptable to both countries for settlement. England should pay, must pay and will pay, but it is not to be at the expense or downfall of the world's economic structure.

I have not yet read fully the text of the latest American note to Britain, but a hurried glance through would seem to uphold The Post's leader of June 7, which reads in part, "Britain has again and again tried to get America to consider a revision of the debts settlement." This latest note contains a suggestion, which, I believe, could have been made long ago

Tribute to Gertrude W. Myer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an old friend of Miss Gertrude Walden Myer, who died on June 4, I want to pay a short tribute of respect to her memory. She was the youngest and last survivor of the large family of Gen. and Mrs. Albert Myer.

Gen. Myer initiated the Signal Corps and the Weather Bureau, and had a distinguished record in the Civil War. Fort Myer, Va., was named in his honor. Miss Myer was greatly interested in everything pertaining to Fort Myer, and it was from there that she had just returned on the afternoon of May 30 when she was stricken with what proved to be her last illness.

Several years ago she erected a stone tablet there in memory of her father and this ceremony was attended by a large gathering of friends. Miss Myer worked in the canteen at the Union Station during the war and was decorated by the Belgian government with the Order of Queen Elizabeth.

She was deeply attached to the Cathedral and she now lies beside her brother, the Rev. Walden Myer, in the Cathedral crypt.

Fashions in Names.

A reader of The London Times who patently requires instruction in the use of leisure time has made a study of the Christian names of three groups of 560 boys who have attended a British public school opened in 1859. The groups started from 1859, 1900 and 1930. This analysis shows that the most common names in 1859 were Charles, William, Henry, George and John; in that order; in 1900 they were John, Henry, Charles, William and Arthur, in that order; and in 1930 they were John, Peter, Robert, Richard and William, in that order. The only notable facts that such a limited study discloses are the apparent decline in popularity of such good old English names as Alfred, Edward and William, and the simultaneous rise to favor of the more literary names of Anthony and Peter.

The most stable of names, if this study can be taken as proof, is Robert. There was practically the same demand for it in 1859, 1900 and 1930.

The Post Impressionist

"Peace and Quiet"

Postoffice, Saturday.

IS the "quiet book" really going to perform that feat which its rougher brothers call "staging a come-back?" Some time ago, we discussed the likelihood of a romantic revival—and the likelihood of realism remaining. Now at least one critic seems to see a return of this third fashion—of the modest Anthony Trollope sleeves, the gentle W. E. Norris waist-line, and the "J. P. Mowbray" skirt.

Well, we can hear our youngest admirers asking, "What's a quiet book, anyway?" And that shows how far it has retreated!

Yet, whatever distance it has gone, it has not been absent for a long time, as one counts time in literature. Nor, Trollope and Norris to the contrary notwithstanding—was it even largely a British mode.

Among its earlier American examples stood "Huckleberry Finn," no less, and most of the stories of W. D. Howells, Frank R. Stockton and H. C. Bunner. Rossiter Johnson wrote it for youth in "Phaeton Rogers." "David Harum" was both a quiet book and a best-seller. Arthur Colton did this sort of writing until a few years ago. So did Ray Stannard Baker, while he worked under the pseudonym of "David Grayson" and produced "Adventures in Contentment"—Walter Prichard Eaton until, a while ago, he began to teach Yale the drama. Zephine Humphrey Fahnestock's "Winterwise" had more than a little popularity as late as 1927.

But the easiest way to define a quiet book is to tell what it isn't.

It is not a book that you can read only once. It isn't one which you rush through just "to see what it's about." It may have "action"—witness "Huckleberry"—but it avoids turmoil. Its devotee will say, in the person of essayist Philip Curtiss, that:

"He loves not only happy endings but happy beginnings and happy incidents all the way through." He is embarrassed by the lady who is in love with her butler. He "likes a book (that) touches on things with which he is familiar, when he can constantly check and compare it with his own experience." It is wrong to say that he "will not accept trouble and excitement in his stories," but "he mistrusts or resents them unless they are offset and mitigated by the kindly compensations or the bumbling absurdities which he has observed to be outstanding factors in ordinary life." Especially must a quiet book "feature" anticlimax, "a thing which most (contemporary) readers abominate and abhor."

The latest issue of the Atlantic is the forum wherein Mr. Curtiss takes the floor for the quiet book. There, too, he does justice to its detractors.

Says one of these: "Are you unaware that we have been through the greatest war in history and that the whole world is sorely tried and upset? You personally may wish to hide your head in the sand . . . and read pleasant little pastorals . . . but most readers are made of sterner stuff. Knowing that literature should reflect its age, they find that a grim, writhing world is best reflected in a grim, writhing literature."

Whereto, not forcing the instances of Eaton and Mrs. Fahnestock, Mr. Curtiss rejoins: That "is like saying that a man who was going through a long siege with an ulcerated tooth could no longer be contented outside the dentist's chair—that he would go there and sit for the fun of it, after hours."

Mr. Curtiss thinks the literary rebels, the opponents of the quiet book, have gone as lamentably far in one direction as "popular fiction" has gone in the other. They "have been hammering fiercely both at popular fiction and at what has remained of conservative writing. . . . The gentle reader finds as little to attract him in the brusque styles of the new writers . . . and their general preoccupation with sordidness and sex, as he finds in the plot and action story. If it is difficult for him to be convinced of the reality of Two-Gun Pete . . . it is equally difficult for him to believe that all of Europe and most of America are living continually in sin."

And that faint flicker of hope which Mr. Curtiss detects for those whose taste in reading resembles his own? Behold it here:

"It is highly possible that American writers and American publishers may eventually discover that they have made the same mistake that was made during the boom days by American industrialists . . . that, in the race for huge markets and new consumers, they have forgotten the small . . . group that was their natural, basic consumer class." For, avers Mr. Curtiss, the man who likes the quiet book "is always loyal, and . . . through prosperity and depression, he is always a reader. He needs no spur or inducement to pick up a book"—if he can find his kind of book—"and, in the salesman's phrase, he is a natural repeater."

Now, there is no use calling Mr. Curtiss a soul of sentimental prejudices. If he is the Philip Everett Curtiss we think he is, he has had anything but a sentimental training: he has been a Sorbonne student, a Hartford Times reporter and a captain of infantry. Nor is it correct to dub him an old fogey, for P. E. Curtiss still mocks his forties.

And yet . . .

The case isn't proven!

It is perfectly true—as all Washingtonians are well aware—that a "talkie" called "David Harum" has this season met with large success. But Will Rogers played the "name-part." And if the screenplay bore any likeness to the quiet original, we have met nobody who detected it.

George Peek's Come-Back

NOT overly important, of course, but one of the most interesting stories of the Revolution, I think, is the apparent effort of George Peek to negotiate a come-back with the Brain Trust. I don't think I have ever seen such a transformation in a man.

BARGERON.

He was with them at the outset, you know. He was over there with Tugwell and Jerome Frank right in the midst of things. He was, however, poorly equipped to stay. He was more of a man of action than a theorist. All of his maturity he had devoted to doing things. One particular accomplishment I recall with admiration was the way he got $500,000 out of John Raskob in the 1928 campaign on the contention that Smith would carry the Farm Belt.

He is not what we would call the Brain Trust type, but he was unmistakably over there amongst the Brain Trusters until they kicked him out.

• • • •

It is apparent to me now that he is seeking to stage a come-back, that he has been devoting the months since he was kicked out to the study of meaningless figures and theory so he will again be accepted in the fold. His report on our foreign trade over the past 38 years was his thesis, and to my mind should pass him without any to-do.

For one thing, it is a tribute to his adaptability as well as his persistence.

Here was a man who had been used to getting about, to undertaking one enterprise after another. "Who's Who" describes the wide field of activity in which he roamed. I don't believe, either, that he was happy over there with the Brain Trust. His training undoubtedly made him an ever-recurring discordant note.

But he wants to stay in Washington. After all, it is a fascinating life. And he must have realized after leaving the crowd that the Brain Trust is the fad. His experience has taught him always to face the facts.

So he went off and got himself an office—in the State Department, I believe—and there away from the noise he has been quietly poring over books and figures with a view to equipping himself for the New Deal. If the American College of Meaningless Figures does not give him six or seven DD's for his foreign trade report, then there is no justice in life; it is not the country of opportunity that it was supposed to be.

It is not that his thesis is inaccurate. We have just been kidding ourselves, he reports, that our foreign trade over the past 38 years has enriched us. What it has done is to leave us more than $20,000,000,000 worse off. The only question is "so what?"

I thought it had been pretty well imprinted on the American mind that our exports since the war were purchased with money which we loaned and which, broadly speaking, we haven't got back. I expect if George would go further he would find that the experience of creditor nations that don't want to be paid by accepting imports has never been a rosy one. It was like pulling a punch to confine it to our case alone.

Nevertheless, George's thesis hit the front page of the New York Times under a three-column head—the old Times likes its figures as well as any Brain Truster—and it moved Mr. Roosevelt to admiration. It was apparent when he discussed it with newspapermen that he didn't know exactly what its purpose was, but he did know that it was "interesting."

I'll say it's interesting. It means that it didn't take George long to see how things stack up here. He has gone academic on us, that's what he has done. It's "Doctor" Peek from now on.

The National Gallery

JOHN J. O'CONNOR, Representative from New York. When the House sought a Speaker he went to the post with Byrns, McDuffie and Rainey, but despite Tammany backing missed the money by several lengths. On occasion he plays his own game. This irks the Tiger clan and the tawny beast almost walked out on him. Ranking high on the House Rules Committee, politicos know him as an astute lawyer and able legislator. In Congress since the Sixty-eighth session, he fathered many a beer bill when chances of quenching thirst were slim. But just before they knocked the bung out he grew cautious, pleaded for control and supervision, and charged distillers would gain monopolies. A veteran of New York State politics, he can tie ropes, box the compass, and make a good speech. Chunky, bald, heavy-set, Irish wit lights his eyes.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

Another Letter From a Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise:

One of the fashion authorities of New York says the lady is coming back into style.

If that is true—and I hope it is—credit for the change must be given to those members of your sex who are most annoyingly unlike ladies.

Every action is followed by a reaction, as you know; and the more violent the action, the quicker the reaction follows.

It takes a diet of husks to bring the prodigal back to his father's house; and the more offensive and ridiculous the fashion, the more certain is its doom.

Whether the change comes now or late, it is certain to come unless human nature changes. The public never fails to turn against a thing that becomes a pain in the neck.

Don't think that I oppose "equality of the sexes." Women are people and their rights are equal to man's.

But when they get equal rights and then take advantage of their sex to assume special privileges and powers, they are asking for trouble.

Men still tote the load, and they feel little love for the woman who calls herself man's equal but demands special consideration because she is a female.

It is much as though she should say: "I wish to practice medicine like a man, but because I am a woman you must not require me to stand the examination."

That doesn't make sense, and things that don't make sense are short-lived.

Here of late it has become the fashion for the wives of public officials to behave and talk as though they had official powers. They get by with it because men are too chivalrous to say what they think; but we have no such thing in this country as Governor-by-marriage, and when the voters elect a man to office they do not mean to elect his wife also.

Let her run for office and win power if she can—not assume it because her husband won it. Assumption of power irritates people in a free country.

If you wish to compete with men, climb as high as you can and God bless you. But don't play a man's game and ask men to hit the ball gently because of your sex.

Flag Day Rites Set for Elks

Lodge in Fredericksburg Plans Altar Service on Sunday.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—The Elks Lodge of Fredericksburg will join lodges in every part of the Nation Sunday in observance of annual Flag Day ceremonies beginning at 4:30 p. m. in the high school stadium.

A parade from the Elks home, to be led by a band directed by Roland Leveque, will be composed of units representing the Elks, American Legion, Spanish-American War veterans, and Boy Scouts.

Former Mayor Jere M. H. Willis, a member of the lodge, will give a brief history of the flag, in the stadium. The principal address of the ceremony will be delivered by the Rev. Robert F. Caverlee, of the Fredericksburg Baptist Church.

Lodge officers who will participate in the altar service include Exalted Ruler William M. Jackson, Leading Knight W. Marshall King, Loyal Knight Francis B. Gouldman, Lecturing Knight S. S. Cadot, Esquire Robert S. Garnett, Tiler Carl T. Hill, Chaplain George H. White, Inner Guard John G. Heflin, and Trusees D. Gordon Gouldman, W. E. Long and Charles S. Hunter.

The Flag Day committee comprises W. Marshall King, Leon D. McWane, F. C. Gosnell, W. D. Young, Milton Graves and Mitchell Gallant.

Virginia Legion To Meet in July

Danville, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Among resolutions which will be offered at the annual convention of American Legion, Department of Virginia, at Lynchburg next month will be one calling for election of vice commanders according to districts instead of at large.

Another resolution would put an end to the practice of giving the retiring post commander a full vote on the convention floor.

Woman Who Gave Daughter to Pair Wants Her Return

Richmond, June 15 (AP).—Mrs. Marian Fox, who gave her consent for her little 10-year-old daughter, Constance Russell, to go to live in Los Angeles with Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Coleman, has changed her mind and would like to have the little girl back.

This was revealed here today after dispatches from Abilene, Tex., said that the little girl had been turned over to an Episcopal minister there and was being cared for by welfare organizations.

Constance was the daughter of Mrs. Fox by her first husband. She came here with her second husband about two months ago, when he was unemployed. He later returned to Philadelphia, where he is said to have found work, while Mrs. Fox works for the Richmond Citizens Service Exchange—a barter organization.

Shortly after the little girl left with the Colemans, Mrs. Fox informed Richmond police she had changed her mind and would like help in locating her.

Wolford Again Elected Mayor of Capon Bridge

Capon Bridge, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Ray Wolford was reelected mayor of Capon Bridge at the annual election yesterday, as was F. D. Sirbaugh, recorder.

One new councilman, Harrison Whitacre, was elected. Heiskell Monroe, John W. Ward, Marvin Hook and C. A. Whitacre were reelected to council.

No End of Books

By

Theodore Hall

Touch and Go.

AT a late hour last night I was looking out from behind a mountain of books for this hot weather slump in the publishing trade we hear so much about. But it was, like the rescuer of Bluebeard's wives, nowhere to be seen.

THEO. HALL.

Stifling an impulse to dream of loons calling on a remote mountain lake—in other words, of a good cool place where the population might be totally illiterate—I made notes on the following diverse and entertaining array of nonfiction books. Try them according to taste.

• • • •

Giddy and gaudy, as cheering as three Dubonnet cocktails, is "Color in Advertising" (The Studio Publications, $7.50). Joseph Binder, famed Viennese poster artist, and late of the noted Kunstgewerbeschule, writes a brief and almost too simplified foreword explaining the poster art, its relation with impressionist painting, and its application, for an example, to a definite commercial project—the marketing of coffee.

The body of the book holds 24 color plates, poster and advertising work from England, France, Germany and Sweden. Nothing was more lovely than a dream-like poster of the "Flying Scotsman" puffing its way through the stars (sweet sleep motif); nothing more arresting than Binder's own "Give Books" poster in red, blue, black and white.

All you could reasonably want to know about the practice of sterilization will be found in Leon F. Whitney's "The Case for Sterilization" (Stokes, $2.50). As director of the American Eugenics Society, he has the knowledge to put eloquently and well the complete facts of the matter.

To answer the first possible query, he does not advocate compulsory sterilization. Voluntary sterilization, he believes, will be quite enough to effect a marked improvement in blood lines and human happiness. Very patiently he takes up the usual objections.

No one who wants to look close at the planned society can afford to ignore the basic aspect of eugenics, nor Mr. Whitney's most satisfactory expositions thereof.

• • • •

If you're still cudgeling your brains on the merits of National self-sufficiency versus international interdependence, dip into Kemper Simpson's "Introduction to World Economics" (Harper, $3.50).

With abundant facts and figures, Mr. Simpson shows authoritatively that there can not be recovery in one nation until there is recovery in all. The interrelating economics of England, France, Germany and America are here studied for the first time together.

Mr. Simpson has been a Government economist for many Federal agencies. Now he advises private concerns. The book has a friendly foreword by Senator Edward P. Costigan.

• • • •

With extraordinary attentiveness and scientific conscience, Dr. Curt Thesing, of Germany, describes the mating habits of the entire animal kingdom, from amoebas to aborigines, in "Genealogy of Sex" (Emerson, $5; translated by Eden and Cedar Paul; introduction by Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe).

Utterly explicit in text and illustration, it gives the lay reader lessons in biology and psychology offered by no other work. The famous Dr. Van de Velde comments: "Whosoever finds delight in the creations of Nature will cherish this book."

• • • • •

For 40 years Herbert Elmer Mills taught economics at Vassar. When he was through, he wrote: "For no other career would the writer have exchanged it."

Nor would 40 graduating classes have exchanged anyone for "Milsy." Intense, warm-hearted, keenly aware of all the changing movements of his time, he transformed his subject into all but a total philosophy of life.

Now, in his honor, 12 former students contribute a variety of social-minded essays to "College Women and the Social Sciences" (John Day, $2.50). Margaret Culkin Banning discourses on "Politics and the College Woman," Harriett Bradley Fitt writes "In Praise of Domesticity," Lillian A. Quinn notes the "Contribution of College Women to Social Work," and so on. President MacCracken writes the preface; Prof. Mills contributes two essays; and a final section gives statistical data on Vassar alumnae.

To top off with a parlor game, try "Marriage or Its Equivalent" (Simon & Schuster, $2), by Travis Hoke and Dr. X. A big box holds scores of question sheets and a book to explain the results.

Four games are included—"What's Your Type?"; "Marriage or Its Equivalent;" "How Well Do You Know Him?" and "How Well Do You Know Her?" Questions like these—"Would she be too cheerful at breakfast?" and "Do people fall in love with you more readily than you do with them?"—will give your friends a lively evening, if they don't go home in a huff.

It can be played solitaire, and is best of all as a twosome. But I don't recommend it for sensitive-minded newlyweds.

The Best Modern Language Dictionaries.

For all those who can read even a little of either French or German, a good dictionary is indispensible. It so happens that for each of these languages there is a dictionary for which the word good is too feeble; the dictionary I recommend is ideal. It is the Bellows dictionary.

Let us take the French one, remembering that the German dictionary is on precisely similar lines.

English and French
By John Bellows
(Revised by his sons)

This dictionary was first prepared in 1912 and has been frequently revised, enlarged and improved, in response to the constantly increasing demand for new editions.

The dictionary is handy in size, about the same shape as the ordinary novel. The paper is opaque, and the type so clear that one can read the words without any effort.

But here are the distinctive features: The distinguishing of masculine and feminine and (in German) neuter genders by different types. All nouns are in capital letters; all feminine words are printed in italic.

The French-English and the English-French are on the same page throughout; so that one sees the equivalent of every word in the other language on the same page; though the two divisions are separated, so that no confusion is possible.

The preliminary matters give necessary information as an elementary first book on grammar, declensions of nouns, conjugations of verbs, auxiliaries, irregulars, information on the metric system, money, thermometer—Fahrenheit and Centrigrade—and many other facts.

The arrangement of the whole dictionary is the clearest, most convenient, most useful that I have ever seen, and the easiest for the eyes.

Twenty-four (24) lawyers have been assigned by a Brooklyn court to defend six (6) alleged slayers. This is apparently one instance where no chance is being taken on an acquittal.

It seems there is now an annual prize for the Most Beautiful Bridge of the Year. It was won this year by a Peoria bridge, with Pittsburgh second. We can imagine in the years to come tourists pointing to the Peoria bridge and remarking, "Well, she ain't so hot now, but she was the Miss America of bridges in 1934."

This department's idea of a rather empty honor is to be runner-up to a steel bridge in a beauty contest.

Salesmen Close Elkins Convention

Elkins, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—After selecting Cumberland, Md., for its 1935 meeting and electing officers, delegates closed the thirty-eighth annual district convention of the United Commercial Travelers here today. The district embraces Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky and the District of Columbia.

Trap W. Martin, of Lynchburg, Va., was reelected grand senior councilor, and among the other officers are Robert C. Bowers, of Cumberland, Md., past senior councilor; George F. Brown, of Lexington, Ky., grand secretary; Glen E. Spietler, of Harrisonburg, Va., grand treasurer; W. E. Nash, of Roanoke, Va., grand page, and J. O. Falkenstein, of Fairmont, W. Va., and P. W. Keller, of Roanoke, Va., grand executive committeemen.

Fredericksburg C. of C. Fetes Head

Fredericksburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Officials and members of the Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce last night greeted L. U. Noland, new president of the State chamber, at a dinner given in his honor in the Princess Anne Hotel.

A resident of Newport News with extensive business interests in Virginia and the South, Mr. Noland is the only man in Virginia who maintains his own private airplane for use in transporting him from one section of the country to another.

When he accepted the State presidency, Mr. Noland announced a policy of taking the organization to the Virginia public. He set aside 30 days of his time this year to investigate problems of local areas.

Two Bridges May End Tolls In Five Months

Purchase Price Liquidation Approaches for Spans Over Potomac.

Frederick, Md., June 15 (Spl.).—Elimination of tolls on the Point of Rocks and Brunswick highway bridges over the Potomac River is likely within the next five months, according to word from the State road commission today.

Freeing the bridges of tolls depends upon the time in which their purchase prices may be liquidated through toll payments. At the present rate this should take place about November 1, the commission said.

No funds are available now for the building of bridges across the Potomac River at Whites Ferry, near Poolesville, or at Nolans Ferry, near Licksville. The Whites Ferry project was suggested recently by residents of the Poolesville vicinity.

The Point of Rocks Bridge is the first bridge west of Washington connecting Maryland and Virginia, and is in much use. The Brunswick Bridge is used more for local purposes. It was originally owned by the Berlin & Lovettsville Bridge Co.

The eight-span bridge at Point of Rocks, now owned by the Maryland State Roads Commission and the Virginia State Highways Commission, is a part of Route 15 of both States, a link in the Great Lakes-to-Florida highway passing through central Pennsylvania, western Maryland, Virginia and the South.

The toll on the bridge is 25 cents for a one-seated car and 40 cents for all others, straight fare each ways. The tolls have long been a burden to residents of Frederick and Loudoun Counties.

Va. Insurance Men File U. S. Protest

Staunton, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—The Virginia Association of Insurance Agents today protested against the "injustice" of the Commodity Credit Corporation placing its common insurance with only three agencies and directed its president to send a letter of protest to President Roosevelt.

James J. Izard, of Roanoke, was reelected president of the association. Other officers are W. J. Perry, jr., Staunton, first vice president; B. W. Sebrell, jr., Lawrenceville, second vice president; F. S. Blanton, Farmville, reelected secretary-treasurer. The executive committee and chairman of the committees will be selected by President Izard.

Road Bids Opened By West Virginia

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—State highway projects costing around $400,000 will be started in seven eastern and northern counties of West Virginia as the result of the opening of bids by the State road commission.

The projects and the low bidders follow:

Hampshire County—Grading, draining and paving the Capon Bridge approaches, Echols Bros. Construction Co., Alderson, $19,920.20. Berkeley and Jefferson Counties—3.94 miles of the Opequon-Middleway road, paving and resurfacing, Echols Bros Construction Co., Alderson, $87,842; 5.1 miles of the Martinsburg-Jefferson County line road, grading and paving, Pendleton Construction Co., Wytheville, Va., $107,736.60. Preston County—1.27 miles of the Kingwood-route 24 road, grading, drainage and resurfacing, George N. and O. J. Yono, Cameron, $4,909.30. Wetzel County—3.82 miles of the Hundred-Coltonwood road, cement concrete paving and concrete culvert, Price Construction Co., Huntington, $95,588.76. Marion County—Concrete arch, 120-foot span with six 30-foot concrete deck girders for the Buffalo Creek Bridge, C. C. Dodd, Somerset, $74,176.56. Harrison County—Concrete arch and two 86-foot spans for the Stealey Brides, Criss & Dye, Parkersburg, $36,777.81.

Court Will Decide Railway Auto Tax

Richmond, June 15 (AP).—The question of whether a railway corporation should pay automobile license taxes goes into court at Portsmouth Monday, with counsel for the receivers of the Seaboard Air Line Railway contending a railway is exempted from such license levies by section 177 of the State constitution.

J. Warren Topping, assistant attorney general, representing the motor vehicle division, is arguing that automobile registration is a safety measure, that the use of the highways is a privilege, not a right, and that should section 177 be construed as giving railways a special exemption from automobile license fees, the State itself would be violating the fourteenth amendment of the Federal Constitution.

Section 177 says that every railway and canal corporation shall pay a franchise levy and other specified levies, "in lieu of all other taxes or licenses."

W.Va.Gross Income Law Is Held Valid

Legislation Is Effective as of Jan. 1, 1933.

Charleston, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.). West Virginia's much-disputed gross income tax was declared constitutional today by the State Supreme Court, which also ruled that it was applicable to all incomes beginning January 1, 1933, although not enacted until May 26, 1934.

The ruling was handed down in a test suit filed by John Laing, Charleston coal operator, to restrain tax collection. A chief objection raised by Laing was that the income tax was unconstitutional in providing exemptions for farmers, but on that point the court held that such exemptions are "not in conflict with the Federal or State constitutions."

The income tax law requires payment of 1 per cent on all gross incomes above $600 annually, with exemptions of $1,000 for married men and $200 for each dependent.

Health Officer Favors Group Insurance Plan

Danville, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Group insurance to meet the average hospital needs was advocated today by City Health Officer Richard Garnett, who said he conducted a survey on the subject. He distributed 3,000 questionnaires among families; 90 per cent favored group insurance.

Garnett favors the development of a group plan through which the insured would pay a monthly premium. He is working on a municipal plan.

Further Gain In Trade Seen In Hagerstown

$500,000 Construction Program Under Way Next Month.

Hagerstown, Md., June 15 (Spl.). A half-million dollar building program other than PWA projects here, was expected by business leaders to act as a further tonic to sales, which have been unprecedented in some lines this spring.

This building program will get under way within the next month and will include a new hospital, costing $400,000, an addition to the Elks Club, and an addition to the Southern Shore Co. plant.

Work also is expected to start later in the summer on a new postoffice here, a site for which was purchased last year by the Government.

Some merchants reported business this spring has not only equaled that of 1928-29, but in several cases has been the best in history. Many merchants complain they can not keep in stock, so great is the demand.

One merchant, who put on additional employes to meet NRA requirements, was forced to employ more clerks because of the increase in business.

Additional distribution of dividends by two banks that closed two years ago to depositors also has helped trade.

Officers Elected At Y. P. U Meeting

Chambersburg, Pa., June 15 (Spl.).—At the concluding session yesterday of the forty-fourth annual convention of the Young People's Union, Pennsylvania conference of the United Brethren Church, officers for 1934-1935 were elected and installed as follows:

President, the Rev. R. R. Ziegler, Windsor, reelected; vice president, the Rev. R. J. Tyson, Wintersham; recording secretary, Miss Kathryn Gabler, Chambersburg; treasurer, the Rev. George C. Daugherty, Hanover, reelected; chairman executive committee, the Rev. M. R. Fleming, Red Lion, reelected; the Rev. Earl Redding, Shepherdstown; the Rev. J. Stewart Glen, Chambersburg; the Rev. P. E. Shannon, Dallastown; junior superintendent, Miss Estella I. Hoffman, Red Lion.

Intermediate superintendent, Miss Theresa Beck, Mechanicsburg; missionary superintendent, the Rev. Russell C. Oyer, Myersville; efficiency superintendent, Wier E. Bock, New Cumberland; stewardship, the Rev. Paul Rinehart, Dillsburg; quiet hour, Miss Rachael Hoffman, Hanover; education, the Rev. Paul E. Cooper, York; anniversary day, Gordon W. Haverstock, York.

Methodists Plan Special Services

To Be Held at Brightwood Next Monday.

Culpeper, Va., June 15 (Spl.). Special services will be held on Monday in the Bethsaida Methodist Episcopal Church, Brightwood, celebrating the sesquicentennial of Methodism in America.

The program for the day has been planned to show the development and expansion of Methodism in Madison County and sections of adjoining counties from which is drawn the congregation.

All churches in Brightwood, Rapidan and Madison charges will participate. Talks will be made by the Rev. R. L. Fruitt, the Rev. T. E. Johnson, the Rev. W. J. Craddock and the Rev. Daniel T. Merritt, D. D., presiding elder of the Charlottesville district. Brightwood, as host church, will entertain the visitors at lunch, served on tables under the large trees surrounding the building.

88,000 Get Jobs In West Virginia

FERA Director Reports 239,000 Applications.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Approximately 88,000 persons have been placed in employment in West Virginia by the FERA offices in the State, according to a report just made by James H. McGinnis, State FERA director.

Men and women to the number of 109,440 are still seeking jobs through the service, McGinnis reports. Since its establishment, 239,000 persons have registered for work. Of the number placed, 48,000 were put in regular jobs, while 40,000 were placed in temporary work, including CWA and other relief jobs.

McGinnis will become director of the West Virginia Employment Service on July 1, but he will continue as State FERA director. His salary as State director will be only $1 a year, but his salary in the Federal capacity will continue to be paid by the Federal Government.

Scouts, Scouters and Scout dads are invited. The program will consist of observation of the camporee teams, games, father and son events, closing with a campfire of stunts and stories.

Troop 18 Lawn Fete.

Troop 18, Church of the Brethren, Fourth and North Carolina avenue southeast, held its third annual lawn fete Friday evening.

At a meeting of Eagle Scouts held at George Washington University this week, Richard Miller, of Troop 54, was chosen president; Reisner Lindsay, of Troop 20, vice president; Fred Waite, of Troop 5, secretary, and Harry Barnett, of Troop 69, treasurer, of the new Eagle Scout Association.

Troop 33 Goes Ahead.

The meeting of June 8 was opened by Tommy Kane leading in the Scout oath, law and salute to the flag. Scouts Magathan, Goodman and Gardner discussed the Camp Roosevelt excursion which they attended, and others told of their experiences at the cathedral service and Decoration Day service at Arlington.

There was considerable discussion about the trek June 23 to 25, inclusive. After announcements, both platoons joined in a Scout pace competition.

Radio Waves and Ripples

"EVERY radio star has his pet obsession," writes one of their press agents, "but contrary to what you might expect, the average radioite's main worry has, for the most part, nothing to do with radio."

For example, "Clementine Heinneman, beautiful blonde calliope player of those Dixie Circus broadcasts, Mondays, over C. B. S., lives in continual dread that the kiddies of the cast will stop up the pipes of her calliope and spoil the broadcasts."

So far it's all been in fun and nothing more serious than paper hats has been found in the pipes. Just to play safe, though, Miss Heinneman probably should count the kiddies before and after callioping.

And, it seems, "the Revelers, radio's most famous quartet, shrink from extreme cold weather," and "live in constant dread that they will again be reduced to a trio."

But "Marjorie Anderson, star of those Beatrice Fairfax heart counsellor dramas on the N. B. C. red network, says she is afraid of only one thing—sharks."

Sissy!

A 150-watt power boost for daytime broadcasting was granted WOL by the Federal Radio Commission yesterday.

That's all Boss Leroy Mark asked for his American Broadcasting System station, being satisfied, for the present, to operate on the old 100-watt basis after 6 p. m. But he wishes he hadn't been so conservative.

His application was approved within 24 hours of its filing, probably an all-time commission record.

Need we say that these are Burns and Allen, the goofiest, the dizziest, the wildest—or have we been reading too much about Mr. Baer and Mr. Carnera? They finished with C. B. S. this week, but you'll find them on the Earle Theater screen shortly.

A very sick little girl in Children's Hospital today has an even chance to live, thanks to WJSV.

Yesterday the chances were about ten to one against her. She needed blood, a very rare type. None was available. Someone at the hospital called WJSV Manager Harry Butcher. An appeal was broadcast. Thirty came for tests. Three gave the girl their blood.

Henry Ford—know the name?—who gave 70 musicians a summer job by engaging the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for 12 weeks in the Ford Gardens at the World's Fair, has presented Columbia with a program series.

C. B. S. wires will carry the first concert to WJSV tonight at 8:30—Mendelssohn's overture, "Ruy Blas;" Weber's "Invitation to the Dance;" Saint-Saens' "Bacchanale" from "Samson and Dalilah;" "Nocturne" from Grieg's "Lyric Suite," and a "Pagliacci" medley.

Munich and Amsterdam have been added to N. B. C.'s international broadcast list, a list that already is beginning to assume proportions of an atlas index.

One of the most famous of Bavarian orchestras, the Siegedorf Peasant Orchestra, comes today from the city where beer and culture long ago reached a working agreement, a program of folk-song music. WRC is taking it at 1 p. m.

The first anniversary of the sending of a short-wave program from Holland to Dutch citizens throughout the world will be celebrated in a special Amsterdam broadcast which National will pick up Sunday, June 24.

From the air and the banks of the Hudson, C. B. S. will follow the oarsmen of Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Navy, Syracuse, Washington and California in the annual Poughkeepsie Regatta this afternoon. Graham McNamee will be at the finish line for N. B. C.

Ted Husing will fly to the regatta from a reporting of the Princeton invitation track meet, where the Nation's greatest milers — Bill Bonthron, of Princeton; Glenn Cunningham, of Kansas, and Gene Venzke, of Pennsylvania—renew rivalries. National also is sending an announcer to Palmer Stadium.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Princeton University Invitation Track Meet, 4 p. m.; Famous Acts of the American Theater, De Wolf Hopper, Fritzi Scheff, Gus Edwards, Cissie Loftus, Donald Brian, Ethel Jackson, 9:30 p. m.; One Man's Family, 10:35 p. m.

WMAL—Hands Across the Border, Guy Lombardo, 7:30 p. m.; Eddie Duchin's Orchestra, 8:30 p. m.; National Barn Dance, 9:30 p. m.

WJSV—The NRA has a birthday, Gen. Johnson, Donald Richberg, 2 p. m.; Poughkeepsie Regatta, 6:30 p. m.; Detroit Symphony Orchestra, 8:30 p. m.

Photos of Indian CCC Work on Display Here

An exhibition of photographs depicting major works accomplished by the Indian conservation camps during the first year of the emergency conservation program has been placed on display in the main lobby of the Commerce Department.

The Indian camps, located on reservations, together with the CCC and smaller contingents in Puerto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska, are directed by the Emergency Conservation Work Organization. Actual work in establishing the Indian camps has been done by the Office of Indian Affairs.

St. Andrew Brotherhood To Visit Historic Sites

Hiking over the trail to Historyland, men and boys of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, of the Episcopal Church, will leave on the twelfth churchmen's pilgrimage to Jamestown and Williamsburg, Va., today, and return tomorrow. The Right Rev. Frederick D. Goodwin, Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of Virginia, will be celebrant at corporate communion at historic Robert Hunt Memorial Shrine, on Jamestown Island, where the first Episcopal services were held in this country.

Under the local chairman, B. W. Anspen, of St. Andrew's Church, College Park, Md., a large delegation from Washington and nearby Maryland will join the journey. Preparatory services will be held in old Bruton Parish Church, Williamsburg, by Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin today at 8 p. m.

State Liquor Store Planned.

Danville, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—The State liquor control board will open a dispensary in South Boston, near here, around July 1.

Divorce Suit Is Lost By Mrs. Lorleberg

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday dismissed a suit for absolute divorce filed by Nancye M. Lorleberg against Richard Lorleberg, musician.

Justice O'Donoghue indicated there was insufficient evidence to support Mrs. Lorleberg's contentions. Two months ago Mrs. Lorleberg recovered a $30,000 verdict against Mrs. Marie DeBeanvais, Richards because of alleged alienation of the affections of Lorleberg.

Army Couple Are Married At Residence

Father Performs Ceremony on Anniversary of Own Wedding.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Several years ago at Fort Logan, Colo., two children of Army families met and soon parted, the young man to enter West Point and the girl to continue her studies at finishing school.

In that short time of companionship a romance started that was to last through the four years the youth spent at the Military Academy, and culminated in the wedding of Miss Mary Frances Brasted, daughter of Col. Alva J. Brasted, chief of Army chaplains, and Mrs. Brasted, to Lieut. Louis Lee Ingram, U. S. A., son of Maj. and Mrs. Sherman R. Ingram, of Fort Ringgold, Tex., which took place yesterday afternoon on the twenty-fourth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

The attractive Floral street home of Col. and Mrs. Brasted was the scene of the ceremony, which was performed by the bride's father at 4 o'clock in the presence of the two families and intimate friends. White roses and peonies were arranged in clusters in the drawing rooms.

Gown of Ivory Satin.

The bride was attired in ivory satin fashioned on long, graceful lines, the skirt flaring out into a fan-shaped train. The long fitted sleeves were finished at the wrists with wide bell cuffs. The neck was finished with a standing collar which was particularly becoming to the bride. Her veil of ivory tulle was simply arranged in cap fashion and fell to the end of the satin train. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Ingram, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a frilly garden frock of pale green mousseline de soie, and carried ping snapdragons and orchid sweet peas.

Lieut. Harry Hillyard served as best man for his classmate. Following the ceremony there was an informal reception. Mrs. Brasted was attired in ashes of roses chiffon and wore a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Leave on Wedding Trip.

Later Lieut. Ingram and his bride left by motor on a wedding trip, the latter wearing a smart navy blue ensemble trimmed with touches of white, and white accessories. Upon their return they will be with Col. and Mrs. Brasted until the second week in September, when they will go to Lieut. Ingram's first station.

The bridegroom was graduated from West Point on Tuesday and has chosen the Infantry as his branch of the service.

Young Mrs. Ingram was graduated from the Colorado Woman's Junior College two years ago, after which she attended Miss Wood's school in Minneapolis.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Maj. and Mrs. Ingram, parents of the bridegroom; Miss Dorothy Ingram and Miss Elizabeth Pettis, of Fort Hayes, Ohio; Miss Eddrea Lowell, of Falls City, Nebr.; Mrs. John Dobson and Miss Ruth Dobson, of Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Asmath announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Minnie Louise Asmath, to Mr. James Corbin Cheseldine, on June 14, in Washington.

Mrs. E. R. Carl and Mrs. William L. Hayward, both of whom maintain apartments at Wardman Park Hotel, closed them yesterday for the summer season and have journeyed northward together. Mrs. Carl will spend part of the season with relatives at Milton, N. Y. Mrs. Hayward is at Plainfield, N. J., for the present.

Luncheon Is Given At 'Exedra' Estate

Mrs. Franklyn Kenworthy Party Hostess.

Mrs. Franklin Hartman Kenworthy, of Washington and Purcellville, Va., entertained at a luncheon Wednesday at her country home, Exedra, near Purcellville, in honor of Mrs. Kate Saison Laurie, of Saison, N. C.

Washington guests included Mrs. Marion Butler, Mrs. Harry Perry, Miss Edna Patton, Mrs. Lois Weller and Mrs. Kate Eicker. Other guests were Mrs. John B. Neill, Mrs. Blackburn Smith, Mrs. Tessier, Mrs. Goodwin Williams, Mrs. Frank Whiting, Miss Margaretta Whiting and Miss Mamie White, of Berryville; Mrs. J. A. Welbourn, Leesburg; Mrs. J. A. Speer and Mrs. Mary Stuart Dabney, of Purcellville.

Water lillies formed the decorations for the dining room and bowls of pink roses and delphiniums were arranged throughout the large drawing rooms. Additional guests came to tea later.

De Recinos Honor Senora de Sacasa

Senora de Sacasa, wife of the President of Nicaragua, was the guest in whose honor the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos entertained at a reception yesterday afternoon from 5 until 7 in the Legation on Eighteenth street.

Senora de Sacasa and Mrs. Ralph W. Close, wife of the Minister of the Union of South Africa, were the guests in whose honor Mrs. Thomas H. C. Reed entertained at a luncheon yesterday in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue.

Mr. Harjes Will Marry Joan Blake

Engagement Links Noted Families; Bride-to-Be Deb This Year.

An engagement of interest to Washington was announced yesterday, that of Miss Joan Blake, daughter of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, of Agua Caliente Ranch, Tucson, Ariz., to Mr. Henry Herman Harjes, son of Mrs. H. Herman Harjes, of Chateau d'Abondant, near Paris, France, and the late Col. Harjes.

Miss Blake is a daughter of the late Mrs. Duer Blake, and through her mother is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William A. Duer, and a great-granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William R. Travers. She is a descendant of Maj. William Alexander, who was on George Washington's staff; of Rufus King, one-time Minister to the Court of St. James; of Beverdy Johnson, also Minister to Great Britain at one time; Philip Schuyler Livingston, lord of the manor; Lady Kitty Duer and William Alexander Duer, one-time president of Columbia University.

Miss Blake attended the Nightingale Bamford School, in New York, and was introduced to society last winter with her sister, Miss Katherine Blake, at a tea dance given by their cousin, Mrs. Henry Wise Miller. Miss Blake is a half-sister of Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, Mrs. Irving Berlin and Mr. John W. Mackay.

Mr. Harjes, through his mother, who is the former Frederica V. Berwind, belongs to the famous Berwind family of Philadelphia.

During the World War the late Mr. Harjes was chief liaison officer for the A. E. F. and commissioner of France for the American Red Cross. He was commander of the Paris post of the American Legion and was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal, Croix de Guerre, Commander of the Legion of Honor, Grand Order of St. Sava (Serbia) and Officer de la Couronne de Belgique.

Mr. Harjes attended Radley College, England; Magdalene College, Cambridge, England, and Harvard University. He resides with his mother in France. His two brothers, Mr. John F. Harjes and Mr. Charles Berwind Harjes, also reside in France.

The Misses Blake will go to Southampton, Long Island, today. They have taken a cottage there for the summer. Mr. Harjes arrived in New York last Tuesday aboard the Ile de France and will spend some time in this country, later returning to France, and in the early fall he and his mother will return to New York, where it is planned that the wedding will take place.

Pretender's Sister Weds New Yorker

Mr. Chanler and Princess de Braganza Marry Near Vienna.

International marriages are always of interest to Washington society, since so many cosmopolites make the Capital their home for many months out of each year.

The most recent of such marriages is that of Princess Marie Antonia de Braganza, a sister of Dom Duarte Nuno, pretender to the throne of Portugal, to Mr. Ashley Chanler, of New York. The ceremony was performed Thursday at the castle of Seebenstein, on the Braganza estate, near Vienna. Following a wedding trip the couple will make their home in New York.

The bride, who is related to several royal houses of Europe, is the sister-in-law of Princess Miguel de Braganza, of New York and Newport, R. I., whom she visited for some time during her year's stay in America. The princess arrived in this country last summer to attend the wedding of Miss Agnes Clark, daughter of Mrs. Tobin Clark, to Mr. Alexander Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Albert, of Berlin, Germany, whose marriage took place on July 23, in San Mateo, Calif. Later she visited Miss Phyllis M. Byrne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Byrne, at Bar Harbor, Me.

Princess Miguel de Braganza was formerly Miss Anita Stewart, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart, and the present Mr. William Rhinelander Stewart is her brother.

Mr. Chanler is the son of Mrs. William Astor Chanler and the late Mr. Chanler, who was at one time Representative in Congress from New York, and was also a well-known explorer. He is a descendant on his father's side of the original John Jacob Astor, and he is a nephew of Mrs. Richard Aldrich, of Mrs. John Jay Chapman, of former Gov. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, of the late Robert W. Chanler, artist, and of Mr. John Armstrong Chanler, of Cobham, Va. His mother was before her marriage Beatrice Ashley, well known on the New York stage as Minnie Ashley. Mr. Chanler attended St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and was graduated from Harvard University with the class of 1929. He is a member of the Knickerbocker Club of New York.

Mrs. Bradshaw Hall Swales entertained at a supper dance in the garden of her home on Albemarle street Thursday evening in honor of Miss Margaret Westmore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Westmore. The guests numbered 30.

Magna Carta Day Observed With Dinner

Descendants of English Baronial Colleagues Are Hosts.

A group of scions of forbears who were English barons, knights, crusaders, sages and patriots, gathered with their guests last night at the Hotel Lafayette to celebrate Magna Carta Day. Mrs. M. de Clare Berry, president of the District of Columbia branch of the International Magna Carta Day Association, and a member of the National Society of Magna Carta Dames founded in Washington in 1909, presided.

Mrs. Berry spoke of the birth of the Magna Carta on November 20, 1214, and showed stones from the high altar at Bury St. Edmonds, Suffolk, England, where the Magna Carta was placed by its author, Stephen Langon, Archbishop of Canterbury, who had summoned there the barons, who swore to defend it.

Senator William H. King, of Utah, made the opening address. Others who spoke briefly during the evening were Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma; Vice Admiral Harry P. Huse, Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, Brig. Gen. Perry Miles, Mrs. J. Cook, a member of the National Society of Magna Carta Dames; Mrs. David Pearce Penhallow, Mrs. Augustus Kempton, Mrs. Custis R. Perry, Mrs. Redwood Vandergift, of the Society of 1812; Dr. Richard L. de Saussure, of the Society of Cincinnati; Mr. Angus McLean, assistant Solicitor of the Department of Justice, and Mrs. John Walker Holcombe, who spoke as a past officer of the D. A. R.

Among others present were Mr. Walter Davidge, Mr. John Walker Holcombe, Mrs. H. P. Huse, Mrs. Perry Miles, Mrs. Angus McLean, Gen. Hugh Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund B. Montgomery, Mr. Per Wijkman, of the Swedish Legation; Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Mahin, Col. and Mrs. David Porter and Commander and Mrs. Archibald Davis.

Miss Bayard Sets Wedding June 25

Miss Elizabeth du Pont Bayard, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Thomas Francis Bayard, of Wilmington, Del., has selected June 25 for the date of her marriage to Mr. William Stone Weedon, son of Mrs. William S. Weedon, also of Wilmington.

The wedding will take place at 4 o'clock at Bohemia Manor, the summer home of the Bayards near Chesapeake City, Del., and will be followed by a large reception.

Xi Luncheon.

XI CHAPTER, Beta Chi Sorority, will hold a luncheon meeting at 2 o'clock today at the Lowenkeller, 1118 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Mrs. Bernice Ellis, president, will preside. Guests of honor will be Miss Lucy Bonucelli and Mrs. Dorothy O'Brien, delegates to the sorority convention, which will be held Wednesday through Friday at South Bend, Ind.

Sorority Barbecue.

After the business session today, a formal dinner and dance will be given tonight. The convention will close with a tea tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Geneva Fleitz is chairman of the national board of directors. Numerous representatives from the local chapters are attending.

Members of the Curley Club will make a pilgrimage at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to the Capuchin Monastery at Catholic University.

The Rev. Father Urban Adelman, of St. Francis Capuchin College, Brookland, will conduct the tour through the monastery.

Miss Mary L. McGee, in charge of arrangements, is assisted by Miss Dorothy Barrett, president, the Misses Mildred Matimore, Nonie Daly, Irene Boehlert and Monica Gordon.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the District of Columbia Dental Society will give a dinner dance Wednesday night on the roof garden of the Army and Navy Country Club. Members and guests of the auxiliary and of the Dental Society are invited.

Mrs. Charles D. Cole, president, has appointed the following committee in charge of arrangements: Mrs. Stephen C. Hopkins, chairman; Mrs. Chester Smith, Mrs. Francis Murray, Mrs. James J. McGuirk and Mrs. Manly Michaels.

The proceeds will go to the support of the evening clinic maintained by the organization at Children's Hospital to give dental care to underprivileged children unable to attend the day clinic.

The Junior Guild of St. John's Church has disbanded for the summer months, to resume its weekly meetings in September.

The guild was started four months ago by the ushers of the church and some of the younger members of the congregation for the purpose of raising funds for charitable work.

The officers this year were Ingham Mack, president; Miss Catherine Jornson, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Walker, treasurer, and Joshua Evans, secretary.

A "kid party" will be given by Group No. 6, of the Soroptimists Club tonight at Twenty-third and Washington Circle. Miss Genevieve C. Bearmore will be the leader. All members are requested to come in costume.

THE UNITED STATES Marines did more than help straighten out Nicaraguan political affairs. They brought the South American republic such emanations of North American civilization as hot dogs and taxi dance halls, says Senora de Sacasa.

Horseback Flights to Hills Pictured for Radio Audience

By Margaret Sangtry (The Radio Reporter).

IN ADJOURNING its "First Ladies of the Capital" interview series for the summer season yesterday, The Washington Post's broadcast from WMAL introduced the charming "First Lady" of our neighbor republic, Nicaragua.

Senora de Sacasa, wife of Dr. Van B. Sacasa, the Nicaraguan President, made her bow to the ether waves for the first time. She was heard over a National Broadcasting Co. coast to coast network extending the greetings of her country to the people of the United States.

Speaking with a delightful accent, she paid tribute to this country for the friendly cooperation and helpful interest that has effected for the first time in many years peace and stability in Nicaragua. Her account of the effect of North American influence upon the old world life and customs of Latin-America was also a highly diverting feature of her chat with the radio reporter.

Beautifully gowned in a sheer, gayly patterned print costume and picture hat over her pale golden curls, Senora de Sacasa's smiling animation before the microphone, gave little hint of the peril and danger her life has been subject to in her native country in the years before her husband became Minister to the United States.

Tells of Trials.

Senora de Sacasa's bright delight in the many social events in her honor which have marked her present visit to Washington to see her son graduate from Georgetown University, revealed no indications of the hardship of exile she has endured in the past. Something of these trials she unfolded to her hearers.

Senora de Sacasa: "Our life in Nicaragua before my husband was appointed Minister to the United States was very trying. We were often in danger of our lives, and spent much time in exile. On one memorable occasion when my husband was Vice President, a coup d'etat forced him to dash from the country on horseback for his life—across mountains and through perilous jungle. I was left alone with the children."

Miss Santry: "But weren't you in great peril as well?"

Senora de Sacasa: "My greatest fear was that they would take our son who was 16—and hold him as hostage for the return of my husband. So I too fled from the country with my children and joined my husband in San Salvador. Later we went to Guatemala, where we remained for three years in exile."

Miss Santry: "Has President Sacasa always been in public life?"

Senora de Sacasa: "No, he comes of a family of physicians, as I do. But they have always been interested in the political welfare of our country and active in public life. His father was a doctor and a former president. My husband conducted a private practice before he took office, and was dean of the Medical School at the University of Leon. He received his medical education, you know, at Columbia University in New York."

Miss Santry: "I understand it is through your husband's efforts the people of your country enjoy the right to vote in the elections without coercion."

Marine Supervision.

Senora Sacasa: "For some years before my husband became president, Miss Santry, we had no free elections in Nicaragua. The people were forced to vote in the way the government in power dictated. My husband devoted all his property and personal fortune to the cause of liberating the people from this persecution. In 1919 he came to Washington to bring to the attention of the Department of State the outrageous conditions of the country. The United States Government sent an observer, who recognized these facts, but it was not until 1927 that peace was made with the stipulation that the elections be supervised by the United States. The first free expression of the people's desires in voting was made possible in 1928. The second presidential election in 1932—also supervised by the United States Marines—resulted in my husband's election as President of Nicaragua."

The presence of United States Marines on Nicaraguan soil also had a marked effect on the social life of her country, Senora de Sacasa revealed. Five-cents-a-dance palaces, baseball, golf and movies were a few innovations that found their way into the lives of her people during and after the American occupation.

Senora de Sacasa: "Indeed your American Marines, officers and their wives influenced our social life remarkably. Our women were never very active in sports; now we have become golf and tennis players. Your Marines made baseball a national sport craze, and when visiting teams from Cuba played in Nicaragua recently, 5,000 fans made a long excursion from remote parts of the country to Managua, the capital, to see the game.

U. S. Dance Steps.

"While dancing has always been a part of the social life of the upper classes, now we have numerous five-cents-a-dance palaces where the lower classes dance every night. All the popular American dance steps are quite the rage."

The upper classes, she said, still adhere to the rigid forms that have marked Nicaraguan social life in the past. While there is some greater freedom between the sexes than before, now as in the past young girls do not go out alone with young men. Nor does a young man take a girl to a dance. She goes with her parents or some other married couple. Dancing is still very formal—and dance programs the order of the occasion.

Senora de Sacasa: "A girl usually has her program well filled before she arrives at the dance. Often, if she does not—rather than risk an evening seated along the wall with her chaperone, she will prefer to remain at home."

Miss Santry: "That's one way to avoid being a wallflower! But does your Nicaraguan girl enjoy any more freedom when she marries?"

Senora de Sacasa: "Formerly she retired largely from social life to occupy herself with her new duties as housewife and mother. If she did attend a ball she danced only with her husband. But now there is more broadmindedness, although the married woman must observe the utmost discretion and does not accept invitations without her husband, nor is she ever seen in public with another man."

JOURNALISM LOST a promising columnist when Miss Margaret Santry, above—The Post's "radio reporter"—elected the microphone rather than the typewriter for the expression of her gift of depicting people. Miss Santry is adjourning her "First Ladies of the Capitol" radio series for the summer.

"First Ladies" Series Stops For Summer

Vacation Exodus of Prominent Washingtonians Necessitates This.

PROSPECTS of an early adjournment of the Congress and the inevitable exodus of many families from the Capital for all or part of the summer makes necessary the conclusion of The Washington Post's series of "First Ladies of the Capital" broadcasts.

The many thousands of Washingtonians who have heard the voices of Margaret Santry and her distinguished guests in the past three months have never had the opportunity, of course, of going behind the scenes of preparation for the few brief minutes twice a week on the air.

Like any other radio broadcast, The Post's interviews must be carefully planned, accurately timed and the dialogue between Miss Santry and her guest carefully balanced and checked and rechecked over and over. Since the "first ladies" presented in the series have come from the foremost ranks of professional, governmental and social circles, it has been imperative that plans be developed well in advance of sach broadcast date because of countless engagements of The Post's guests.

Letters have come to The Post from almost every State in the course of the series, letters agreeing or disagreeing with the opinions of the prominent Washingtonians presented. Careers for women formed one or more controversial interview subjects as reflected in the large number of letters from over the country.

Many Radio Debuts.

The Post series marked the first appearance on the air of many of those interviewed. The networks provided by the National Broadcasting Co. made it possible for their voices to be carried into almost every metropolitan area in the United States.

Capitol Hill was represented in the series by Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, wife of the Speaker of the House; Hon. Mary T. Norton, member of Congress from New Jersey; Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President of the United States; Mrs. Florence Prag Kahn, member of Congress from California; Mrs. William H. King, wife of the Senator from Utah; Mrs. Otha D. Wearin, wife of Representative Wearin, of Iowa; Mrs. Thomas Pryor Gore, wife of the Senator from Oklahoma, and Frances Parkinson Keyes, wife of the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mrs. Jouett Shouse, wife of the former chairman of the National Democratic committee, introduced the "careers for women" theme, her views producing numerous ayes and nays from women from coast to coast.

The Cabinet was represented by Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce. Official Washington was represented by Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming and now Director of the Mint; Mrs. Mary Rumsey, chairman of the Consumers' Board, of the NRA, and Mrs. Elisabeth Smith Friedman, crytanalyst of the United States Coast Guard.

Diplomatic Washington was represented by Mme. May, wife of the Belgian Ambassador. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman gave thousands of women over the country an intimate glimpse of one of the Capital's best-known weekly social events. And Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, jr., Capital social mentor, explained the joys and sorrows of presenting daughters to society.

"Radio's Girl Reporter"

Margaret Santry, who conducted the interviews, is known to radio listeners from New York to San Francisco as "radio's girl reporter." As an undergraduate at New York University she elected a career in journalism and on leaving school went into newspaper work, ultimately being attracted to radio through the roundabout route of social service work. A New York radio station needed a woman's voice and a woman's touch in a series of programs. Miss Santry's social service work, plus active newspaper training, made her the logical candidate.

Journalism through this relatively unimportant at the moment out-of-working-hours job lost a promising columnist. From that first assignment Margaret Santry quickly "took" to radio and, quite as important, radio—through the applause of listeners, always the measuring stick of radio success—"took" to her.

Man's Vocations Offer Girls Good Opportunities

Engineering, for Instance; a Famous Feminine One Describes the Possible Successes Due to Girl of Initiative and Ability.

Tradition bars the way to success for many a woman who wants a career. She has a talent for a certain kind of work, but thinks, "I can't do that. It is man's work." Yet, women are daily achieving success in jobs that only yesterday belonged to men. This, the last of a series of articles on careers for women, tells of vocations where women are still pioneering.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

WOMEN are in the economic world to stay. Their new job is to invade territories now sacred to men.

The girl with initiative and courage, who wants to enter a profession where few women have succeeded would do well to take stock of her talents and abilities and then consult Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, director of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations at the North Carolina College for Women. Mrs. Woodhouse has done extensive research in this field and has collected an invaluable supply of information on vocations for women, new and old.

She has consulted outstanding women in every profession, and through the institute gives expert advice to the girl who is deciding on a career.

Few Attempt It.

Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, undoubtedly the best known woman engineer in the world, says in regard to women in engineering:

"So far very few women have gone into engineering, partly because of the mistaken idea women are not wanted or welcome. In this country women in the professions have had only the most kindly and cooperative treatment from the men in the field, and have been given every opportunity for training, for advancement, and for participation in all the activities of the profession."

Miss Ethel Bailey, successful engineer, points out that often the woman engineer can use her woman's background to develop a unique turn to her profession. This is true of Olive Dennis, woman engineer for a large railroad company. She is responsible for many innovations in the dining cars of her company, the individual ventilators at the coach windows, and other devices designed for comfort.

Special librarianship is another new field recently opened for women. Miss Ruth Savord, of the Council of Foreign Relations, sponsored by the Special Libraries Association, tells of this work, through Mrs. Woodhouse's institute.

"The field of special libraries is almost unlimited," she says. And, in spite of the thousand or more well-established libraries, the surface has only been scratched. There is a potential opening for such specialized service in every bank and investment house; every chamber of commerce, and every trade, professional, religious or labor association; every insurance, public utility, manufacturing, engineer and advertising firm; every museum, foundation, publishing house and newspaper—in brief every field of human activity.

"The woman who considers special librarianship as a career should first check up on her qualifications. She should possess native ability, a sense of humor, mental curiosity, quickness of comprehension, accuracy, resourcefulness, breadth of vision, initiative and tact."

Miss Savord advises the girl who wishes to enter the special librarian field to begin in industry, in a public library, or as an assistant to a special librarian.

Nursery schools, Mrs. Woodhouse believes, hold the greatest future for the girl who is interested in teaching or research.

"There are now nursery schools in 121 cities, in 35 States," she says. "More than three-fourths of these have been organized since 1925. They offer a new field for teachers and research workers on such lines as nutrition, psychology and other phases of child development."

Gertrude Stein, director of the Vocational Service Agency in New York City, gives this advice to the college girl who considers employment work as a profession:

"Get a knowledge of stenography. Then get real experience, such as working with the State employment bureau, or do industrial research. Then get out in the industrial world and work a while.

"Once a girl has completed this training, she has three courses open to her. She may do personnel work in a large commercial organization, get a position with a private employment bureau or with a noncommercial bureau, such as the Y. W. C. A. operates.

Hotel Opportunities.

"She should consider it her obligation to combine vocational guidance with her employment service. And she should have a professional point of view."

Hotels offer many opportunities for young women, Mrs. Woodhouse points out. New and interesting work is that of convention managing for large hotels. This is a work women, with their passion for detail, are particularly suited for.

Women agriculturists were unknown a few years ago, says Mrs. Woodhouse. Today many college graduates are running poultry farms, dairy farms, raising flowers and fruits. One successful woman agriculturist makes a large salary managing a cattle ranch.

Science attracts many women, and is profitable and creative. Women have been especially successful as chemists and botanists. Astronomy, which is one of those realms in which men have reigned unchallenged, recently honored Annie Jump Cannon, of Harvard University, whose catalogue of stars is used by astronomers all over the world.

"The college woman is wise who finds her greatest reward in her work, however," Mrs. Woodhouse says, "for, as a rule, she is not a receiver of high financial rewards."

Poor Wives Held Result Of Chaperons

CLEVELAND, June 14 (U.P.). Closely-chaperoned girls usually make poor wives. So observed Dr. J. Edgar Park, president of Wheaton College, Norton, Mass., in a talk before college club members here.

"Boy friends and plenty of them are necessary if a girl is to know how to select a husband. A girl who never has been taught to swim can't be expected to keep her head above the water when thrown into a sea," Dr. Park put it.

The college president said he had been asked at every turn about modern "dangers" of the automobile. "Eve," he answered, "got into trouble without a buggy or an automobile. Virtue that can not survive the automobile doesn't amount to much."

Dr. Park said if mothers would treat their children like animal pets and give them less attention they would thrive on it.

Underwood & Underwood.

AS MONEY MAKERS college women are not outstanding, says Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, director of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations at Greensboro, N. C. But they can find work that is interesting and creative, she adds.

"The Portia of Maryland" Recalled in Celebration

Margaret Brent Carved Herself Lawyer's Career Back in the Times When Women Just Didn't Do Such Things.

THE world at large thinks of the Maryland of the past largely in terms of the Calverts. It also recalls the injunction in "Maryland, My Maryland" to:

Remember Carroll's sacred trust.
Remember Howard's warlike thrust——

But it seldom, if ever, thinks of Margaret Brent, the first woman lawyer in America and one of the most remarkable figures of Colonial times.

Maryland itself, however, though a State steeped in conservatism, has not forgotten to pay tribute to this woman who carved a career for herself in an age when the average woman dared not raise her voice outside her home circle.

Events in her life that caused her to be known as "The Portia of Maryland" are included in the huge land and water pageants constituting the most impressive part of the tercentenary celebration that began yesterday at St. Marys City and will continue through today.

Acting wisely in time of stress, this energetic, able woman who was born in England and died in Virginia, remains one of Maryland's most revered historical figures. She is to Maryland what Anne Bradstreet and Priscilla Alden are to New England.

Arriving with her sister, Mary, and her two brothers at St. Marys, among the earliest settlers, Margaret Brent had not been long in this country when her name was entered in a legal document. With her sister she took out a patent for property known as the "Sister's Freehold" to take care of indentured servants brought from England.

In Defense of Ward.

This first reference to her was by no means the last to be officially recorded, for from 1642 to 1650 her name was inserted in provincial court papers no less than 124 times.

Of the many important cases in which she demonstrated her ability none is more singular than the one concerned with her special ward, the Indian princess, Mary Brent Kittamaquund.

Believing her protege had been unlawfully deprived of property through the misunderstanding between the Jesuit order and Lord Baltimore, Margaret Brent sued for 7,000 pounds of tobacco for the price of 11 head of cattle, due from the estate of her kinsman, Leonard Calvert. She won the case.

It would seem, however, that Calvert's loss was in inverse ratio to his respect for Margaret Brent. For on his death bed he appointed her sole executrix of his will, leaving no instructions except "take all and pay all."

As administratrix and designated attorney for the proprietary estate it would appear Miss Brent's high position was established. But such was not the case. Those in power—principally Gov. Greene, whom Leonard Calvert had named as his successor, and his followers—were openly distrustful of her ability to discharge the duties of an administrator. Consequently, she appeared before the General Assembly of the province, called attention it had been ordered at the last court that she was to be received as his lordship's attorney, and requested a vote in the house for herself and for her voice also.

Gov. Greene, however, denied she should have a vote of any kind in the house and, according to records, was astounded when she protested against all proceedings of the Assembly unless she could be present and have the votes she had requested.

Better Arrangement!

Capt. Brent Browne, an eminent Maryand commentator, wrote in regard to this: "In view of subsequent occurrences, one is tempted to think that if he (Leonard Calvert) had reversed his testamentary dispositions and made Greene his executor and Mistress Brent his governor, it would have been a better arrangement."

In the light of what happened soon after the Maryland Assembly event, it would appear the commentator was justified in his statement. One of the first things Margaret Brent did, as Calvert's executrix, was to begin paying soldiers compensation for their services according to promises made by Leonard Calvert when they came from Virginia to help him regain control of the Government.

But although Gov. Greene had been distraught because the dissatisfied soldiers were threatening to rebel, he resented that Margaret Brent—a woman—came forward of her own initiative, asserted her position as Calvert's executrix, and quelled the ominous revolt by paying every soldier what he had been promised.

Severly criticized by Greene for meddling in his affairs, Margaret Brent again appealed to the Maryland Assembly, which this time testified in her behalf, and insisted she must be admitted and declared his Lordship's attorney.

From then until she moved to Virginia during the trouble attendant on the Puritan regime in the province, Margaret Brent was one of the outstanding women in this country and one of Maryland's leading lawyers.

Park Bench Loafers Turn Book Worms

PHILADELPHIA, June 14 (Spl.).—A movement has been started here to make park-bench idlers culture conscious.

The Federation of Women's Clubs started the experiment by sending a cartload of books and magazines to Washington Square with the announcement they would be lent to anyone for the asking. Each borrower was permitted to take a book or a magazine for the day merely by leaving his name.

Business was so brisk the clubwomen decided to continue the experiment.

Mrs. William E. Lingelbach, president of the federation, explained, "to give those who use our parks an opportunity to read good literature is in line with some of the aims of our women's organization."

What Today Means

"Gemini."

If June 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. and from 8:45 p. m. until midnight. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m., from 12:45 to 2:45 p. m. and from 6:45 to 8:45 p. m.

On this June 16 in the morning business hours will be mostly taken up by more or less routine detail office work. Very little new business will be transacted. Money will be spent, but very little made, except by retail stores and lines of transportation. Be very careful you are not remiss in the prompt acceptance or the declining of invitations of a social nature. If you are late for an engagement, the expecting party may be seriously inconvenienced as well as annoyed, so do not permit this to occur. If subjected to "guying," be a good sport, and take it good naturedly. Surly resentment will only make you unpopular. Sentimental couples will probably have things all their own way, and their flustered hearts will be contented and start pit-a-patting normally again.

If June 16 is your birthday and you are of the fair sex, you have very little to worry about regarding personal charm and ability to attract ardent admirers. Avoid flirtations, as you would a pestilence, for no matter how harmless you might intend them to be, trouble usually follows in their wake. Curb any tendency to be demanding or extravagant, for it you live conservatively, you will have peace of mind and ample means to meet your requirements. Most women born on this date are fortunate in their marriages, both from a financial veiwpoint as well as in regard to happiness. Do not permit any woman to dominate your life by telling you what you should or should not do in matters pertaining to your domestic affairs. Remember you have your own life to live, and no one but yourself can solve your individual problems. Above all things avoid being influenced by superstitions or quacks. Apparently the future holds a great deal of good for you.

Women Advised to Try Politics While Paying Work Is Scarce

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 15 (Spl.)—While paying jobs are scarce, women should devote themselves to politics, according to Dr. C. Mildred Thompson, dean of Vassar College.

"Women looking for jobs in the next ten years would do well to devote themselves to statecraft," Dr. Thompson said recently at a luncheon of the New York State Division of the American Association of University Women.

"Women must do something useful, even if they don't get paid for it. Today is the most opportune moment for women to release their own resources in a way that will help the community."

Dr. Thompson further pointed out comparatively few women had become active in politics, considering the fight they had waged to gain suffrage.

"I was always too much a realist to expect women to make politics purer," she said, "for I don't believe women are any better than the men they associate with. Wives are no better than husbands, sisters than brothers."

Women, she explained, were no more interested than men in the government of their country, and American men on the whole had been more interested in making money than in government.

"I think we are entering a new phase of our National development," she continued. "When the pioneering is ended and the physical structure of our National life is completed, we shall turn, as they have turned in England, to the perfection of the State. We may expect a slight lowering of our standard of living so far as the consumption of goods is concerned, and a higher standard of living in the realm of ideas and civic usefulness. Then every community will benefit by the intelligence and steady participation of its women in government."

Prohibition Gave Rise to Fine Jellies

By Ruth Ann Davis.

DURING the dark days of prohibition a New Jersey wine merchant found himself with a great bounty of flavors, but no outlet for them. Being a man of much ingenuity, he decided to manufacture wine jellies, reasonably within the law. His first batch turned over so quickly he put the blues away and turned his attention to making a success of this new venture. Stores, restaurants and hotels all over the country gave him orders. His name came to stand for delectable jellies.

And then came repeal, and the lure of wine again. Straightaway he abandoned the manufacture of jellies and went back to his old trade. The stock already on hand he sold at "give-away" prices. In turn, the stores sold them the same way.

That is the story behind the marked-down prices on the counter of jellies in a local food shop. There are five flavors at a very tempting price. Six jars for 40 cents!

Hospitality Tray.

Few hostesses have seen the hospitality trays and not longed to own one. But most budgets couldn't stretch to the $15 or $20 cost.

Realizing this type tray would have an extraordinary sale if it were placed at a practical price, the manager of a downtown store kept his eye open for such a one. Just the other day he found it, and immediately put in his order.

Now even the budgeted hostess can take advantage of an ample tray, which includes a bread board and bread knife, six glass relish dishes and a toaster—the entire outfit only $5.95.

Make It at Home.

Homemade mayonnaise has always enjoyed a reputation of being the "best ever," but is usually associated with an unusual amount of trouble. Lately, however, an enterprising manufacturer has come out with a mixer which makes a generous pint in 90 seconds. Truly an age of speed!

This mixer would make an efficiency expert's head swell with pride, as every bit of energy is utilized. While one hand whips, the other pours. A cup top regulates the flow of oil, the "mesh" dasher whips. And, presto, the mayonnaise is made.

A recipe stamped on the jar suggests 1 pint of a certain oil. One egg. Two tablespoons of lemon juice or vinegar, one teaspoon each of mustard, salt and sugar. A dash of pepper. Put all the ingredients except the oil into the mixer. Put on the top and dasher. Then while whipping the dasher up and down with one hand, pour in the oil—as fast as the mixer cup top will take it. When all the oil is in, a dozen extra strokes of the dasher and the mayonnaise is finished. There are further directions for making it sharper or firmer.

House of Hams.

Washington boasts a "house of hams"—and in this instance "hams" isn't slang. Just a few doors off Connecticut avenue are the offices. Don't go in before luncheon. The baked hams in the show window exert a terrific appeal to the appetite. One can see right through the cellophane wrapping how deliciously they are baked. And if one looks long enough, it's hard to resist "just a nibble."

These hams were first introduced into Virginia by either the first colonists or the American Indian. (The point is still in dispute.) Since that time they have graced many banquet tables and made many a hostess famed for her delicious fare. Now that the company which prepares them for National shipments has offices here it's a simple matter to drop by and take one home. You may buy them raw and prepare them yourself. Or baked, and ready to serve.

Prepared Ham.

The same concern puts out little jars of prepared ham all ready for the omelet, the hors d'oeuvres, the croquettes or any number of other appetizing dishes.

One cup of this prepared ham, one cup of flour, two spoonsful baking powder, salt and pepper, a little onion juice, one egg, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one cup milk and some frying fat will make ham fritters that melt in the mouth. Here's how:

Add parsley to the ham. Make a batter with the egg, milk, baking powder and flour, add ham, stir slowly until well mixed, drop spoonfuls in hot fat, serve hot with gravy sauce, if desired.

Butter Wafers.

There's been no popularity contest for butter wafers, but the consensus of opinion in a downtown store is that a certain kind carried there would be hard to compete with. As fast as they come in they sell out—to the tune of 30 dozen packages a week. They may be used with oysters, soup, cocktails, or to nibble on between meals.

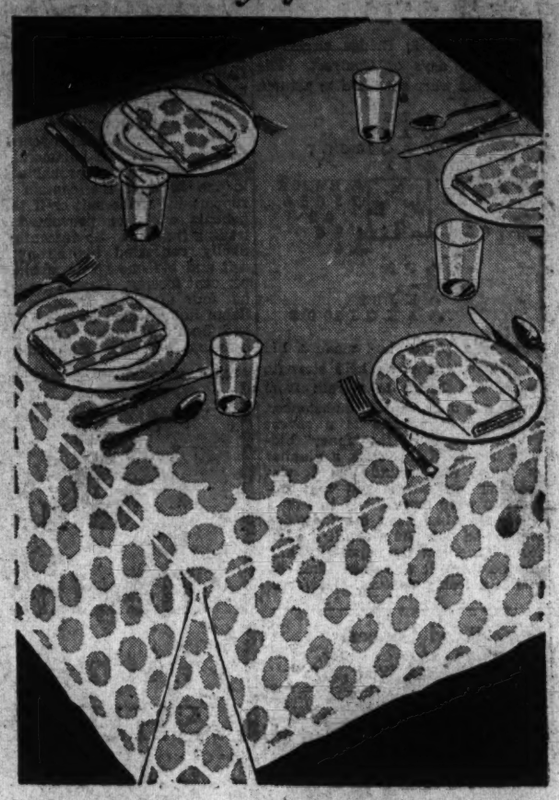
Formal Table Linens Put Away for Summer



By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Not all the brightness of summer housekeeping is confined to great gay parasols in the garden, gracious gay awnings at the windows and gleaming gay sun porch furniture. In the dining room, too, formal white cloths are being whisked off and tables turned into brilliant backgrounds for summer meals.

And just as the garden parasol and the sun porch furniture have more or less "gone modern," so have many of the summer table linens. Gone modern both in color combinations and in designs.

Dots, often as big as balloons, are used in many different ways. In the cloth sketched on the table these big dots form a border which extends around two sides only of the plain colored center.

Plaids are as gay as the many plaids in smart summer dresses. Checks run from the gingham size up through the big checker-board blocks you used to see on kitchen, and still see on cafe tables. The cloth at the top left shows one of these smaller checked patterns.

Then there are stripes. Fine stripes and medium stripes in borders. And very wide ones, too . . . really bands of color rather than stripes . . . which may form borders or run over the entire cloth.

Shadowed effects . . . shadings from one color to another . . . are done in quite bold shades or more subtle ones. Conventionalized leaf and fruit designs, too, are used in a geometric way.

This gay use of color and design is found not only in table cloths but in the mat sets which are always popular in warm weather. One cheery one depicting figures and animals, is shown at the center left, and is guaranteed to put you in good humor for any meal.

(Copyright, 1934.)

Summer table linens of the types described are available in Washington in all the better linen shops and department stores.

Judges Decide Winner of Post Mystery Prize

Talking Sparrow Murder Solvers Announced on Sunday.

THE judges in "The Talking Sparrow Murders" contest, held in connection with the serial of that name recently concluded in The Washington Post, have completed their work. In Sunday's Post the winners will be announced to a mystery loving public.

Judging was a lengthy task, due both to the number of solutions received and because each answer had to be checked and rechecked to discover which ones agreed in the most minute detail with the concluding chapters of the story as Darwin L. Teilhet, the author, unraveled the plot.

The murder of the newsboy proved a stumbling block to many contestants, yet many solutions were correct on this point; Spalger, as readers who completed the story know, killed him. Some solutions were very close in the essential details. When two manuscripts rated alike, but one stated that Carlson was the master mind and shuffled the letters of his name to make "S. N. LaRoc," that one was given precedence over another that simply identified Carlson as LaRoc without explaining the anagram.

As announced in the rules, the basis for judging was the accuracy with which the contestants' solutions checked with that of the author. Manuscripts were easily seeded out in the preliminary stages of judging the major points; after that the judges worked laboriously to make their decisions on the score of minor details.

Many contestants wrote that they had enjoyed the story immensely, and that the contest was fun whether or not they won a prize. The cleverness of contestants in following the clues and drawing their deductions was amazing in many instances, yet no one was able to anticipate the denouement precisely as the author presented it. Names of the 34 winners will appear in all editions of The Post on Sunday.

Cool Drinks For Hot Days Next Contest

WHAT are you ideas for a long cool drink on a hot day? Next week's recipe contest will be on the subject of summer beverages. Send in your ideas to Susan Mills at The Washington Post. Please send typewritten recipes if possible, and if you send in more than one sheet be sure your name and address is on each one.

All contributions should be received on or before Thursday next week. There is no limit to the number you may send in.

Mrs. L. Rude Wins Tomato Contest Prize

A Chutney Is Her Offering, and for This Recipe She Gets $3.

By Susan Mills.

WHAT with National Tomato Week and the contributions in this week's recipe contest, the tomato has been wonderfully glorified.

First prize, $3, goes to Mrs. Lillian Rude, Tilghman, Md. It is for Tomato Chutney. Second prize, $2, for a salad, is awarded Miss Elizabeth Owens, 802 Philadelphia avenue, Silver Spring, Md., and third prize, $1, is given to Miss Elizabeth Smith, care of Miss M. J. Talbott, Apt. 240, 1630 R street northwest.

The prize-winning recipes follow in order:

Tomato Chutney.

2 quarts tart apples, chopped
2 quarts green tomatoes, chopped
1 pound raisins
3 cups brown sugar
Juice of 6 lemons
Pinch cayenne
2 cups vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
½ ounce ginger root
1 large onion, chopped

Pare, core and chop apples. Mix in other ingredients and let stand over night. In morning boil for two and one-half hours, or cook over hot water six hours. Pack in hot sterilized jars and seal.

Capital Tomato Salad.

4 medium firm tomatoes
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup whipped cream
2 tablespoons finely chopped mint leaves.
Shredded lettuce

Peel tomatoes, set away to chill. Whip cream and add mayonnaise. Mix well and fold in the mint. Slice tomatoes in ¼-inch slices, place three slices on a bed of shredded lettuce. On each slice place a portion of the mint dressing.

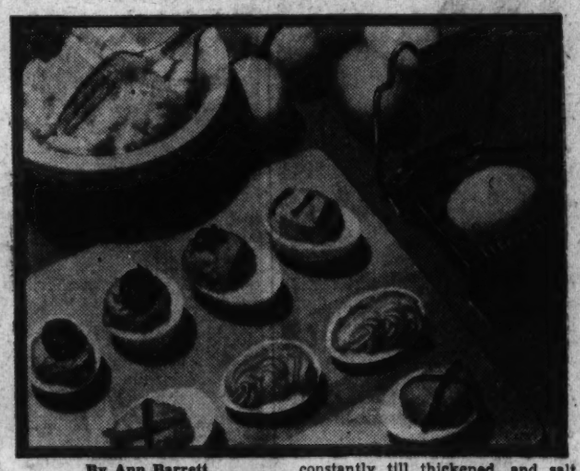
Tomato Cups and Saucers.

Cut the tops from large ripe tomatoes, scoop out insides with small spoon. Keep this for sauce to be used later. Mince cold roast beef or mutton, moisten with rich gravy, season to taste and half fill the hollowed tomatoes with this mixture. Set same in a covered roasting pan and bake 20 minutes in a steady oven. Strain the tomato pulp, heat, thicken with two teaspoons each of flour and butter, rubbed to a paste. Season to taste.

Toast rounds of crustless bread, lay these on a platter and pour the tomato sauce over and around them. Keep hot until the tomatoes are ready. When tomatoes have cooked for 20 minutes remove cover of roaster and drop into each half filled tomato a raw egg. Replace cover and bake just long enough to "set" the eggs. Upon each round of toast lay a stuffed tomato, sprinkle with pepper and salt. Garnish with green pepper or parsley and serve.

Hard-Cooked Overstuffed Eggs Excellent Served Hot or Cold



By Ann Barrett.

HARD-COOKED and overstuffed. According to screen star Irene Dunne, that's the egg's best role any day. But especially good in summer. Because stuffed eggs are so easily prepared—whether in simple picnic form to be eaten cold; or glorified with an elegant sauce to be served hot.

Here is the basic recipe (serves four): Cut 6 hard-cooked eggs in half (crosswise or lengthwise). Carefully take out the yolks and mash them (with a fork). Then mix in 1½ teaspoons vinegar, 1/3 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1/3 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons salad oil. Put this mixture back into the egg-whites, and decorate with bits of green pepper, strips of canned pimento or curled anchovies. Chill and serve plain, or on lettuce with salad dressing.

Variations.

There are many delicious variations on this basic recipe. For instance, use mayonnaise, cooked dressing, melted butter or ¼ cup tomato catchup instead of salad oil. Add 1 tablespoon grated onion or minced green pepper. Or 1 teaspoon anchovy paste or 1 tablespoon mashed sardines. Or ¼ cup minced olives, or cooked chicken, or ham, or veal, or crab, shrimp or lobster.

Baked Stuffed Eggs.

For a delicious dish of baked stuffed eggs with mushroom, start with the basic recipe above, only omit the vinegar, and add this mixture to the yolks: ½ cup minced mushrooms and ½ teaspoon minced parsley cooked three minutes in 3 tablespoons butter. Then stuff the eggs and put them in a shallow, buttered baking dish.

Next, make the following sauce: Melt 2 tablespoons butter, blend in 2 tablespoons flour, and slowly stir in ½ cup rich milk and ½ cup chicken stock (or all milk). Stir constantly till thickened, and salt to taste. Then pour this sauce over and around egg, sprinkle over ½ cup fine, stale bread crumbs (first mixed with 1 tablespoon melted butter). Put under the broiler or in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) till browned.

Send for Vegetable Recipes.

Vegetables are another cooking subject most people like to specialize on during the summer. My newest bulletin, "How to Cook Green and Leafy Vegetables" not only gives general hints, but 16 recipes. SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

Three men complicate the life of Martha Blaisdell, New York society girl: Gerald Gerrish, her attorney, who has advanced her funds on her own securities and then spread word that he was supporting her; Herbert Cranston, explorer, whom she is considering marrying, and Dr. Peter Baxter, who provided transportation when a taxi in which she was riding had an accident. She is at a house party on Long Island when this chapter opens.

CRANSTON had called for Martha about 3, and at 5 they were swimming in the Lemming pool. They dined with the Braleys, had pleasant bridge afterward, and on the way home a breeze had sprung up.

And now, on this Saturday morning, the breeze still endured. From her pillow Martha could see whitecaps on the Sound. It had been worth a week of discomfort to achieve, at the end, so gorgeous a day. She pressed a bell that would cause breakfast to be fetched to her, and went to her bath. Twenty minutes later, fresh and fragrant, she greeted the maid who brought her orange juice, coffee and toast.

"In bed? I think I'd rather have it on the porch," she said.

The maid nodded cheery assent and placed the tray on a table on the screened porch. Martha took a quick look in the mirror. Her blue pajamas were becoming; her hair glistened; her creamy skin pleased her, and she wore just enough lipstick. Yes, she could stand the scrutiny of the morning sun.

She sat down at her table, and from the croquet lawn voices floated up to her. She called a gay hello.

Faces were upturned. There were Cranston, and Bob Lemming, and Mrs. Dan, and Millie Cragin, and Trudie.

"Hello yourself, you lazy thing," called Bob. "Every one else has been abroad since dawn. Only you, slothful one, lie abed——"

"I'm not lying abed," Martha defended herself. "I'm up, rosy and lovely, in pajamas that are divine——"

"Are you receiving in them?" asked Cranston.

"I'm receiving in them, Mr. Cranston," she called.

"Oh, hang," cried Bob Lemming, "now we never will get to golf. And I want another cup of coffee myself. Let's all go."

It was gay, up there on the porch. Every one discovered a new appetite, and the maid was busy bringing fresh coffee—and for Bob and Dan Treman fresh pancakes—for the next quarter hour.

Guest Announced.

The maid came out upon the porch, this time bringing no dishes.

"Dr. Baxter has arrived, ma'am," she said to her mistress.

Trudie looked at her husband.

"There, Bob! He's yours, not mine. You go down and receive him."

Lemming smiled at his wife.

"You don't mean that, my dear."

"Of course I don't." She returned her husband's smile.

"Ah-ha, a slight rift in the Lemming lute," said Mrs. Dan. "Who is the unwelcome guest?"

Trudie flushed, ashamed of her momentary faint ungraciousness.

"He's not a bit unwelcome. He's an old friend of Bob's. He telephoned yesterday asking if he could come out. Bob hasn't seen him for years, but—you know Bob."

"Surely. And we know Bob's friends, too," said Millicent. "They're all swell, and we need another man, anyway. What's the matter with this—what's his name?"

"Baxter. Peter Baxter. Nothing in the world the matter with him. According to Bob, he couldn't be nicer. He's a doctor. Runs a clinic downtown somewhere. Gives his life to the poor, and that sort of thing."

Was Yale Tackle.

"He doesn't sound exciting," said Dan Treman.

"No? You found him pretty exciting once," said Lemming. "Age has dulled your memory, kid. Run your hand over your collar-bone, young feller. Remember the Yale tackle that broke it?"

"You don't mean Pete Baxter? Do I remember him? Well, I'm a son-of-a-gun if I ever forget him."

He was gone from the room like an arrow from a bow. Two minutes later, while the others buzzed, Treman returned, literally dragging after him an embarrassed but smiling Peter Baxter, who went through the introductions gracefully.

Martha held out a hand to him.

"We know each other," she said.

"I suppose," said Bob scornfully, "that you're one of his patients."

Professional Call.

Unaccountably, Martha found herself coloring.

"I called him in last Sunday," she said.

Baxter smiled.

"I'm afraid Miss Blaisdell exaggerates. I haven't reached her heights. Her cook was ill. That's as close as I've got to the rarefied atmospheres of chic and finance and culture that you all frequent."

"O-oh, a mean cracker," said Treman. "As tough in a boudoir as on a football field."

"Tougher," grinned Baxter. "You look fat, Dan."

"Is th-at so?" drawled Treman. "Well, doc, I'll take you right down to the tennis court and run some beef off you."

"I haven't played for six years," said Baxter.

Make It Doubles.

"Then let's make it doubles," said Millie Cragin. "Martha, you'll play, won't you? Don't play singles, Dr. Baxter."

"Call him Pete," said Treman. "That'll be a relief to him after the things I called him last time I saw him."

Millicent Cragin whistled gently as the men departed.

"He's suh-well," she breathed.

"Trudie, you needn't be alarmed about him spoiling your week-end. For my own part—my health has been a matter of concern to me lately. I need care and attention from a red-headed man. Don't you love those freckles? Tell us about him. Who is he?"

"Bob knew him at Yale," said Trudie. "His grandfather was old Whelan Baxter, ambassador to somewhere or other once, and his father was a great old beau in his day. But this young man—knew everybody, went everywhere, as a boy. Then—he quit running into New York, quit raising Cain with the other fellows. And when he graduated, he went in for medicine. Nothing strange about that, but it was strange the way he went into a charity clinic; hasn't seen anybody at all, simply slaves, like a fanatic, for the poor. Nothing of a prig, though, is he? Martha, you know him. What about him?"

Martha shrugged.

"I've only seen him twice in my life."

"And that's enough," cried Millie.

It was after the tennis, in which, considering his lack of practice, Baxted did remarkably well, that Martha exchanged her first words with him.

"I hope you don't mind my coming out here," he said.

"Mind? Why should I mind? Isn't it rather a happy accident?"

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

A Busy Day at the Mountain House.

By the time that Dr. Coon got through with separating Benny and Jenny it was about dark, and everybody had had such a hard day of it they decided to let the wagon alone until tomorrow, and not try to unload it tonight. So Jocko took Hee-Haw back to his house and gave him his supper, and then after all the Creek Folks had their supper they went to bed.

Next morning everybody was up early, and Bettie said that she was not going to cook another bite of anything till she got some things out of the wagon. Well, she needn't to have worried, for there was plenty in the wagon to suit most anybody, as you already know. About the first thing that Bettie found was the big sheepskin for her coat, and she wrapped it around her and danced about till you would have thought she was no older than Jenny. She was just plain tickled to have it, and she ran to Blackie and gave him a great big bear hug for bringing it to her. And all those grapes and apples and chickens! Woof, woof, she had never seen such a lot of things.

It seemed like they never would get her to cook any breakfast, and Grandma Bear had to do it most all. But they did get something cooked after a while, and after breakfast there was plenty for them all to do. Blackie had to fix a place to put his hive of bees that were to make him some more honey, and there was a fence to build to keep the little lambs from running away or getting lost. And there were those great big red chickens—real, live chickens—that had to have a place to live in and some nests to lay eggs in. And potatoes, and walnuts and lots and lots of things. Hound Dog and Howler came in mighty handy in lots of things, for they could scratch up straw for the potato beds, and could carry boards and things around in their mouths. Everybody worked, and long before night they had everything fixed and were ready to go down to the pond and take a swim. And they really needed it, for they had not had a bath in days and days.

It was another night for a big supper, and Grandma and Bettie certainly did fix it right. Roast lamb and gravy and hominy, and corn cakes with honey. Then big red apples and grapes. If they hadn't all been so happy and taken so much time to eat it, some of them might have been sick from eating so much, but they took a long time for their supper, and all the men folks had a lot to tell about the trip to Uncle Joe's house. There was plenty to tell, as you know, and Grandma and Bettie had a good time listening to all the things that the boys had done. They ate so long and talked so much that it was time to go to bed before they knew it, and Bettie said she wasn't even going to wash the dishes tonight, but would leave them till next morning. So the men folks all had a short smoke, and then everybody got off to bed.

SURRENDER TO THE DEAD...
A BESIEGED ENGLISH STRONGHOLD SURRENDERED TO BERTRAND DU GUESCLIN — FRENCH HERO — AFTER HE WAS DEAD!
-1380-

Bertrand Du Guesclin, constable of France and the most noted French fighter of the middle fourteenth century, won one of his great victories after he was dead. To him, even though he was dead, the commandant of the fortress of Chateauneuf-Randon surrendered.

Strange as it seems, Du Guesclin gave no promise of greatness as a child. He was dull when it came to book learning, and never did learn to read or write. His natural talent was for fighting. His first fame came in 1338 when, at the tournament at Rennes, he won over some of the most famous competitors.

After that he led a band of soldiers of fortune in the war between Charles of Blois and John de Montfort, allying himself with Charles. He took part in many historic campaigns on the side of France against England, and was captured twice as a prisoner of war, but was ransomed both times. At one point in his career he marched his followers to Spain to join Henry of Trastamara against Pedro the Cruel.

He returned to France in 1370 at the command of Charles V, who made him constable of France. For 10 years Du Guesclin occupied himself by driving the English out of the south and west of France.

Culbertson on Bridge

Stealing a Slam.

The bid of a suit in which a player dose not hold strength was very popular in Bridge circles in the early days of Contract. The opponents were supposed to assume because a player had made a bid in the suit that he held strength in it, and hence to refrain from leading it under any circumstances. However, experience is a severe teacher and when the "fancy" bidders had tried this trick a number of times, they found that it was reacting on them and that opponents were more likely to lead a suit which had been bid than one which had not. As a result the bid for a time lost its popularity and anyone using it was quite likely to find it a losing venture. However, if one has a proper change of pace, there is no question that occasionally such a bid does pay, as it did, for instance, in the case below, which occurred at the Franklin Bridge Club of Philadelphia, with Capt. Fred G. French sitting North and Dr. I. H. Shelly, South.

North, Dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

When Capt. French opened the bidding with one diamond, Dr. Shelly visualized a probable Slam in the hand if the captain could support the spade suit or if the opponents could be prevented from leading that suit. So reasoning, Dr. Shelly concealed his strong club suit and bid one spade, a bid 99.44 per cent forcing. Capt. French now bid four diamonds, a Jump trump Rebid not justified by his holdings, and South abandoned all idea of showing his own club suit and raised the contract at once to six diamonds. East was in a quandary as to the selection of a lead and naturally enough with his holding chose the unbid heart suit. With this lead, seven, of course, was made.

While the ruse succeeded in this particular instance, I do not believe that such bidding ordinarily wins. In the first place, the spade response to a diamond call is dangerous, for with normal distribution North is much more likely to be able to support spades than in this case, club and as there is a fair probability if North does have spade support that the bidding may reach entirely too high a level and get entirely out of the control of the South player. I record this instance as a happy accident. I have made such bids myself, but have not always been as fortunate as Dr. Shelly was.

Cronin Star, Driving In 4 Tallies

Pounds Homer in First; Bonura's Clout Ties Score in 9th.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post.)

THE Nats beat the White Sox after a fashion yesterday—a fashion set by the bludgeoning bats of Buddy Myer, Joe Cronin and Cecil Travis, a terrible trinity up there at the plate. Bearing the entire burden of the Washington attack, they accumulated enough runs to beat the Sox, 8 to 7, in the game that completed a clean sweep of the four-game series.

Those eight runs, and the Nats needed them all, obviously, were the exclusive handiwork of Myer, Cronin and Travis, who were driving each other around the bases all day in compiling ten of the 13 hits the Nats collected. And they didn't waste any of those ten wallops. Every blow drove in a run or was converted into a run.

Bonura Hits 17th.

But despite the heroic efforts of the three infielders with their bats, Al Crowder had succeeded in dissipating a 6-3 lead and the Nats found themselves in a 7-7 tie in the ninth, with the shrieks of the ladies' day guests having been stilled by Zeke Bonura's seventeenth home run of the season with Haas on base that deadlocked the game.

Joe Heving had relieved ancient Sam Jones back in the eighth inning and he was the final victim of the Nats. He dug his own pitfall when he passed Myer to open the ninth and that little incident became the winning run.

Johnny Stone advanced Myer

Baer Bids Mother To Visit New York

"He's Good to Everyone," She Says, Packing.

Denver, June 15 (AP).—Mrs. Dora Baer, mother of the new champion, started packing a suitcase today a few minutes after she received a message from Max inviting her to New York.

"I'm leaving just as soon as I can get started," she said. "You see, Mickey thought about his mother the minute he won the championship. That's one reason he won, because he's so good to everyone.

"Another reason is that he's always lived right. He eats good wholesome food and no junk. You should see all the bread and 'am he used to eat when he was a tiny boy. That's what makes his muscles so tough."

Mrs. Baer was visiting a sister-in-law here.

Camilli Hits Homer to Tie in 9th; Bartell's Fly Is Decisive.

CHICAGO, June 15 (AP).—After Dolph Camilli, whom they secured from the Cubs this week, tied the score in the ninth with a home run with Johnny Moore, another former Cub, on base, the Philadelphia Nationals defeated Chicago, 4 to 3, in two innings today to gain an even split in the four-game series.

Dick Bartell's fly to Chuck Klein scored Irvine Jeffries with the winning run. Jeffries forced Haslin after the latter had opened the tenth with a single, and advanced on Relief Pitcher Curt Davis' single and a wild pitch by Lon Warneke.

Yankees Win; MacFayden Slab Star

Hurler Allows 5 Blows as Browns Bow, 6-3; Race Lead Kept.

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP). Danny MacFayden made a comeback today and pitched the Yankees to a 6-to-3 victory over St. Louis that kept them on top of the American League.

MacFayden, who hadn't won a game since April 25, held the Browns to five hits, including a home run by Irving Burns that opened the ninth. He granted only two walks and whiffed six.

Ben Chapman figured in both of the day's oddities that helped to produce Yankee runs. In the second inning he pulled a beautiful and daring bit of base running to tie the score.

In the sixth, when the Yanks put the game away with a 4-run rally against Buck Newsom, Chapman turned an attempted sacrifice into a double that brought home one run and paved the way for another.

St. Louis, June 15 (AP).—Outfielder Charles Philip ("Chick") Fullis has been obtained by the Cardinals from Philadelphia in a trade for Outfielder George Davis, Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, announced today.

Regular out fielder for the Phillies last season, Fullis has not played much this year, but Breadon was assured he is physically fit to play.

Caldwell Defeats Overton To Win Columbia Tourney

ERNIE CALDWELL, 25-year-old Hillendale Club golfer, won the Columbia Country Club invitation tournament yesterday.

The lanky Baltimorean, with the lazy swing, defeated another Hillendale companion, bespectacled Spencer Overton, 4 and 3, in the finals, after making a daring comeback and Garrison finish to conquer 16-year-old Billy Dettweiler, of Congressional, 1 up, on the nineteenth hole, in his morning semi-final match.

As far as the Caldwell-Overton battle was concerned, there were few thrills, for Caldwell took the lead on the first hole, shot birdies on the fifth and sixth to boost his advantage and went to the turn in command of a 5 up lead. Overton rallied gamely on the stretch. He won the tenth and thirteenth, and almost captured the fourteenth, but here Caldwell matched his rival's brilliant 15-footer for a par 4, with an equally as brilliant 20-footer.

Army-Navy Beats Columbia Women

Chevy Chase Wins Default in Golf Team Play.

With Chevy Chase winning 12 points from Washington by default to boost its total to 56½, 14 ahead of Congressional and Kenwood, Army and Navy showed unexpected strength by walloping Columbia, 9½ to 2½, to move up in the first team matches yesterday.

Kenwood defeated Beaver Dam, 1 to 2; Indian Spring won from Woodmont, 8 to 4; Congressional defeated Manor, 7½ to 4½.

Miss Leo Walker, of Kenwood, with 86, was low for the day. Mrs. J. F. Dowdall and Miss Helen Dettweiler, of Congressional, had 88s each.

Sports Fans in Italy Dumbfounded at Loss

Rome, June 15 (U.P.).—Italian sports followers were dumbfounded today, following the reverse suffered by their fighting idol, Primo Carnera, the majority considering the result of Carnera's title fight with Baer "mysterious."

Carnera's sudden lamb-like attitude, public opinion holds, was inexplicable. Innuendoes may cause the Italian Boxing Federation officials to take action immediately after receipt of reports of the fight.

Baer Hewed To Plan of Dempsey

"Hit 'Em in Stomach, on Chin, in Stomach Again," Slogan.

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP).—A few years ago there was a lean, thunderous rawhide champion of the world named Jack Dempsey and his fighting slogan was:

"Hit 'em in the stomach, hit 'em on the chin, hit 'em in the stomach again. They'll all come down."

Today there was a new heavyweight champion, Maximilian Adelbert Baer, a new black-haired, lean, iron-fisted destroyer, and his slogan was the same as Dempsey's because that's the way Dempsey told him to fight—less than an hour before he shattered Primo Carnera in 11 rounds last night to win the title.

"We talked it over—Baer, his manager, Ancil Hoffman, his trainer, Mike Cantwell—in the taxicab going out to the Madison Square Garden Bowl," said Dempsey today as his California protege busied himself about town having a half-dozen suits made and catching up with his social obligations, disorganized during two months of training.

Hit Low, Then High.

"We decided that was the way to fight Carnera—to hit him in the body until his guard dropped," the old champion explained, "then hit him on the head 'til his hands came up again, then down below, then up, until it was over. Baer fought a perfect fight. He did everything we planned. He never did make a single mistake."

The new champion, with only a slightly discolored eye to show that he had been in a fight, was once more the gay Lothario, the gallant, giddy pride of the night clubs, as he embraced his new laurels in dazzling style. New suits to fit the role were his first obligation, even to the point of disappointing a couple of young ladies who roamed his hotel corridors disconsolately, claiming

U. S. Women Top British At Tennis

Score Upset by Winning Both Singles Battles; Bow in Doubles.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 15 (AP).—British tennis hopes received a sharp and totally unexpected jolt today when American women stars swept both singles in the first day of International Wightman Cup matches on Wimbledon's famous center court and put up a thrilling fight before succumbing in the lone doubles encounter.

Some British experts had gone so far as to predict a clean sweep for the home forces in today's matches.

Plucky Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, Mass., supplied the greatest upset of the twelfth series with a spectacular three-set triumph over Dorothy Round, England's first-ranking star, 6—3, 3—6, 8—6, after which Helen Jacobs handed Peggy Scriven an unmerciful drubbing, 6—1, 6—1.

Doubles Team Bows.

Only the babies of the American team and newcomers to Wimbledon—Carolyn Babcock and Josephine Cruickshank—failed to come through. They bowed in two tor-

Fair Billy Moves Up in Stretch to Win Charles Town Feature Race by a Nose

Gelding Goes Wide but Scores

Anna V L Is Second and Voco Third; Victor Pays $9 Mutuel.

By Walter Haight,
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 15.—The combination of Owner W. I. Newmarch and Trainer H. G. Bedwell added another victory to its long string by taking today's feature race on the program of the Shenandoah Jockey Club here in the mountains. The horse was Fair Billy, a 4-year-old gelding, whose papa, Fair Gain, and whose mama, Speedy Girl, once successfully flew the colors of the Bedwell Stable on Maryland tracks a few years back.

Young Francis Weir, who is becoming something of a jockey sensation hereabouts, had the mount on Fair Billy and he registered his nineteenth victory of the meeting, getting his horse home a nose in front of Anna V L, which had an advantage of some three lengths over Voco. However, it was no particular credit to Weir that Fair Billy won, because he allowed his charge to run wide at the final turn and narrowly missed defeat.

Catches Flying Filly.

Fair Billy broke behind Anna V L and just in front of Voco, and the three were the only ones that figured in the prominent running. Weir held Fair Billy just off the pace set by Anna V L until reaching the far turn, where he brought the gelding up. Fair Billy was about to take the lead entering the stretch, but swung far to the outside. However, Weir straightened him out and he had enough left to catch the flying filly.

The big shock of the day came in the second race, when Flying Start scored a nose decision over the favored Black Dreams to pay a $195.80 mutuel. Flying Start was ridden all over the course by one J. Steen, but the veteran kept going long enough to take the purse. The daily double, with Noras Grace and Justa Sunbean figuring, paid a $22.40 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NORAS GRACE, $11.80, $5.80, $3.20; DUTIFUL, $4.00, $2.60; GLISK, $2.60.

NORAS GRACE, quickest away, took command from the outside, saved ground on the rail and just lasted. DUTIFUL closest to the leader and on the outside of her, closed gamely and, wearing her down, just failed to set up. GLISK moved up stoutly near the end.

SECOND RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Water Lad. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:33. Winner, H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING START, $195.80, $18.00, $5.60; BLACK DREAMS, $2.60, $2.40; SAMBO G., $2.80.

FLYING START, away in the first flight, took a short lead on the back stretch, came over on BLACK DREAMS midway of the back stretch, went wide and just lasted. BLACK DREAMS, well up throughout, was bothered slightly by the winner, came through on inside entering stretch and just failed to set up. SAMBO G. raced evenly and closed well.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:58. Off at 3:02. Winner, Mrs. H. E. Taylor's blk. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUSTA SUNBEAM, $4.00, $2.40, $2.40; UNFAIR, $2.40, $2.40; STEELTON, $3.20.

JUSTA SUNBEAM, away well, assumed command while racing wide, continued in front and wide in stretch and held UNFAIR safe. Latter, rated off the early pace, was bothered when making her bid, secured racing room on inside and finished stoutly. STEELTON lacked early speed and closed with a rush.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $22.40.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:29. Winner, E. Carver's b. f. (4), by Happy Time—Lope. Trained by L. Carver. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:01 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY LOPE, $7.20, $3.60, $3.00; SMALL CHANGE, $3.80, $2.80; WISE MOLLIE, $2.60.

HAPPY LOPE, fastest away, took command at once, shook off the challenge of WISE MOLLIE and had enough left to hold SMALL CHANGE safe. Latter had good early speed, was taken back off the pace of the leaders, and came again in the stretch. WISE MOLLIE raced outside HAPPY LOPE in the early stages.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:59½. Winner, W. L. Newmarch's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR BILLY, $9.00, $3.60, $3.20; ANNA V. L., $6.20, $4.80; VOCO, $4.00.

FAIR BILLY, away well, raced lapped on ANNA V. L. and, on the inside, was taken up on the back stretch, came around ANNA V. L. and was up in the final stride. ANNA V. L. had good early speed while setting the pace and held on stubbornly when challenged. VOCO raced evenly and saved ground on the inside.

SIXTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:23½. Winner, C Beal's b. f. (3), by Mackenzie II—Truthfulness. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:15, 1:21 3-5.

DAY PAST	112	5	2	8h	9	9	9	9	Gaither	64.00

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VERITAS, $8.40, $4.20, $3.40; CANTROUD, $4.00, $3.20; STAR QUEEN, $5.20.

VERITAS, away forwardly and going in her best form, took command at once, was rated in front throughout, and held CANTROUD safe. The latter, slow as usual in the early running, went wide while far back at the first turn, moved up with a great rush on the back stretch, continued gamely, but could not reach the winner. STAR QUEEN, well up throughout, faltered at the finish. GOLDEN CASTLE made up some ground and finished well. BABY CHINK showed some good speed. BURLEIGH could not get up.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:47. Off at 4:49½. Winner, Mrs. R. Newman's b. m. (6), by Catalan—Medler. Trained by C. Newman. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:24, 0:49 1-5, 1:16, 1:42 1-5, 1:48 2-5.

MISS CATALAN	111	6	5	5½	4h	4h	1½	Gaither	$3.80

BUCK'S DAISY	103	1	2	6h	7	7	7½	Quattlebaum	81.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS CATALAN, $9.60, $4.00, $3.00; FOREST FAUN, $5.40, $3.40; DUNAIR, $6.40.

MISS CATALAN, reserved from the early pace, moved into closer contention on the far turn, was carried wide entering the stretch, and finished stoutly to wear down the leaders. FOREST FAUN, a forward factor at all times, bore out entering the stretch, but finished well. DUNAIR had good speed to set the pace, saved ground throughout, but weakened. HOSAIN, well up throughout, hung on well. ARMAGEDDON closed well. The others were outrun.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

First race—Sand Bell appears to have found another spot where he can race successfully. The veteran is in grand shape. Consummation's last was a fair effort. Should be no worse than second. Clocker Mike will try to chase home En Passant and may do it if the mud comes. Star Queen also would go well on an off track.

Second race—We might do worse than go to Nay Nay in this sprint. This one has shown me his speed and a good ride would find him on top at pay-off time. Silver Arch and The Gen appear to have the edge on the others.

Third race—Now that Hacky H. has a victory under his belt perhaps he will win regularly. Seems to have regained some of his old form and will be dangerous, although he carries top weight. The Washington Smiths will try to win with Repeal. Pink Post for the third money.

Fourth race—Tristrap goes for the Bennings dough here and we expect to get a fair sort of mutuel. Appears to be outclassed at first glance, but can run with this kind. Holland's last stamps him as the one to beat. Mordrum can better that last.

Fifth race—This may be Silverdale's turn to beat Vacillate. The order was reversed the last time they met. Anything that beats them will pay a heavy mutuel. Jane Porter gets in with 102 and has a fighting chance of figuring in the major pay-off.

Sixth race—This has all the earmarks of a three-horse race with Manager Bill, Bonsoir and Barcelona Pete fighting it out. Clocker Mike says Justa Teacher is the sleeper.

Seventh race—Modern Times seems to have found a race that fits her. Jim Moss, a consistent one, to take care of the place award. Wandrel for the show.

Eight race—Royal Charge is the grand "go home" special, according to Clocker Mike. I'm going to let him have the say here. I'll take Royal Lassie and Angry Lass for the other money positions.

Stocks Display Quiet Strength; Up 1.4 Points

Bright Outlook for Strike Settlement Aids; Sale, 735,583 Shares.

New York, June 15 (AP).—Stocks reverted to a display of quiet strength today as the market continued to move in the narrow range it has occupied the past week.

Improvement in the tone of the market was ascribed chiefly to a brighter outlook for settlement of the steel labor controversy. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel and National Steel rallied for net gains of more than a point on the news that President Green of the A. F. of L. had proposed at least a ten-day postponement of the threatened strike.

The German debt moratorium had little effect upon speculative markets, although it focused attention on the German financial situation and brought additional liquidation in Reich bonds, both private and government issues.

Speculation Is Low.

Speculative activity remained at low ebb while Wall street went ahead with preparations to adapt itself to Federal rule of security exchanges starting July 1 and changes necessitated by divorce of banking and underwriting businesses of large investment houses and banks, effective tomorrow.

Trading increased a little, however, as the market firmed. Sales on the Stock Exchange totaled 735,583 shares, compared with 632,486 yesterday.

The market recovered about what it lost in the preceding session. The Standard Statistics Co. average of 90 stocks rose 1.4 points to 81.4. The market has moved within a range of about 2 points since a sharp rally topped off last Saturday.

Motor Shares Up.

Motor shares rose with the market, despite fear that a price cut announced by Ford on some models would intensify competition in the industry and reduce profit margins.

Auburn steadied and finished fractionally higher after touching a new 1934 low. General Motors closed a point higher.

American Smelting, Dome Mines, Howe Sound, U. S. Smelting and other metal shares rose 1 to 3 points. Such issues as American Can, American Telephone, Santa Fe, General Electric, New York Central, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Pennsylvania Railroad sold fractionally to about a point higher.

London—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet. German bonds recovered substantially following the chancellor's statement in the House of Commons regarding the method to protect holders' interests. Gilt-edged securities were firm, while gold mines were weak and transatlantic issues remained unsettled. Home rails and oils were dull. The closing was irregular.

Paris—Prices on the bourse were steady during a quiet session today. Young bonds were steady on reports that a service will be assured by a clearing-house arrangement. Rentes advanced while gold shares were off slightly on London selling. The closing was inactive.

Berlin—The boerse opened irregular, but later showed an optimistic trend, and closed sustained. Meaning is somewhat the boerse will remain closed on Saturdays during the summer months.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Business Analysts Are Almost Unanimous in the View That the Government Will Markedly Increase Its Spending This Fall.

By Ralph West Robey.

Among business analysts the factor in the outlook upon which there is the greatest agreement is that of Government expenditures. They are, it appears, almost unanimously of the view that between now and November the average daily rate of outlay will be materially increased. Only when one gets into the questions of the manner in which money will be pumped out, the probable aggregate amount, and the effects of the spending upon business, does one encounter much difference of opinion.

By and large the method that is favored as most likely to be effective in getting more money into circulation is some form of direct relief. This includes, on one hand, the expenditures through the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, and on the other hand, drought relief and such other schemes as may be devised of this general character. The reasons advanced for laying such emphasis upon this type of relief are, first, that it has been by all odds the most certain way yet formulated for getting huge sums pumped out in a short time, and secondly, its effect upon the volume of business activity is more immediate and visible than in the case of funds given to producers.

Housing Program Not Highly Regarded.

The housing program, upon which the Administration seems to place so much reliance, so far as I can find, is not highly regarded as a business stimulant by the analyst. This is true even in the case of some of them that view the program with favor and sincerely hope that the bill will pass in more or less the form in which it was introduced.

The argument here is that when it comes to the actual making of loans there will be the same hesitancy and delay that have characterized the public building program. To some extent this may be offset, it is conceded, if the man in charge of the organization throws all caution to the winds and converts the program into a glorified grab-bag. Most analysts, however, even under this condition think that the total that can be got out between now and the end of the year will be substantially less than the figures customarily mentioned in Administration quarters.

$400,000,000 a Month Now Frequently Mentioned.

On the question of amounts it is extremely difficult to get any definite answers. Since Dr. Keynes proposed $400,000,000 a month this figure frequently is mentioned, but no particular emphasis is placed upon it as a probable amount. Rather, it is viewed merely as a figure that has been given the President by one in whom he has shown considerable confidence. The dominant factor in determining the actual rate, it is believed, will be the trend of business—the greater the tendency of business to slump the greater the efforts of the Administration to hold it up by pouring out money.

Upon whether the Government will be able thus to support business there is almost no agreement. Perhaps the majority at present is of the opinion that at least it can prevent any substantial recession. Others, however, are just as firm in their belief that this will not be possible and that if the Government starts another huge spending program it will undermine confidence further, and consequently tend to have a deflationary effect upon all portions of the business structure that are not more or less directly the beneficiaries of the Government's philanthropy.

Regardless of which of these various views appears most logical, nevertheless, there is one point upon which there is little ground for a difference of opinion. This is that such a spending program will add further artificiality to the economic system, and as yet we have no evidence indicating that it will enable private business to pick up the tab of carrying recovery.

Bond Market Moves Higher; Germans Drop

Government Issues Steady; Sales Decrease to $11,861,000.

New York, June 15 (AP).—Renewed weakness of German issues was the only adverse element in the bond market today.

Prime investment loans and speculative domestic corporate bonds were higher, with few exceptions, and the Government list was steady, but trading was less active.

Transfers totaled $11,861,000 par value, compared with $17,306,000 on Thursday, and the index of 60 domestic corporate bonds prepared by Standard Statistics Co. advanced one-tenth of a point to 86.5. The turnover in Government issues totaled $2,700,000, compared with $8,100,000 yesterday.

Sinking of German Bonds.

The further sinking of German bonds was said by brokers to be due to moratorium developments, especially the steps taken by the British government to safeguard its interests in German transfers and credits in England.

Dawes 7s led the decline with a drop of nearly 2 points. The Young 5½s closed unchanged at 37¾ after sinking to 36½ in earlier dealings. A sharp drop in Italian 7s, which lost 3¼ points, coincided with the meeting between the heads of the German and Italian governments for private talks.

New high marks for the past year or longer were reached by a number of domestic high grade investment bonds, including American Telephone sinking funds 5s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s and Santa Fe adjustment 4s.

Others in Advance.

Others advancing one to two points included some loans of the B. & O. Railroad, Chesapeake Corporation, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, National Dairy, Goodyear, Tennessee Public Service, Cincinnati Gas and Illinois Central.

Among other gainers were obligations of Chicago & Northwestern, St. Paul, Colorado Fuel & Iron, Cuba Railroad, Denver & Rio Grande, Havana Electric, Interborough Rapid Transit, Laclede Gas, New York Ontario & Western, Paramount-Publix, Seaboard Air Line, Walworth Co., and Warner Bros.

The Government list was mixed. Farm mortgage and home owners loan bonds were 1-32nd to 3-32nds higher, but the majority of the Liberties and Treasury issues yielded minor fractions on a comparatively small turnover.

Curb's Prices Rally Slightly In Late Trading

Irregularity Gives Way to Quiet Upturn; Sales, 166,000 Shares.

New York, June 15 (AP).—Early irregularity gave way to a quiet rally on the curb exchange today and the list generally closed moderately higher. A few scattered soft spots persisted, however.

Volume showed a slight increase on the upturn, transfers approximating 166,000 shares, compared with 129,000 for the previous day.

Parker Rust Proof dropped sharply on small offerings, to finish off 4¼ points, at 55. Gulf Oil ended a shade lower after having rallied nearly 2 points net at one time. Humble Oil also was easy.

Technicolor, which has been establishing a succession of new highs again pushed into new territory for a gain of more than a point. Commonwealth Edison and Dow Chemical rose 2 and 3 points, respectively.

Advances of fractions to around a point were shared by Aluminum Co. of America, American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, International Petroleum, Standard Oil of Kentucky, Greyhound Corporation and Swift & Co. Metal shares were narrow.

Declines	128	421
Unchanged	139	121
Total issues	608	626

Stocks—Further strength was displayed by stocks and the market climbed 1.4 points. Possibilities of steel strike settlement aided the advance. Sales jumped in volume to 735,583 shares.

Bonds—Weakness of German bonds was the only adverse feature in the market. Nearly all other issues advanced. Sales volume declined to $11,861,000. Prices averaged one-tenth of a point higher.

Curb—Early irregularity gave way to a quiet rally and curb lists closed moderately higher. Volume of trading increased to 166,000 shares.

Wheat—Renewal of speculative buying sent wheat prices up. Germany's ban on exports of foodstuffs was a factor, since it indicated a probable increase in European demand. Oats gained, corn lost. July wheat sold at 94⅝, September at 83⅜.

Cotton—Prices finished about unchanged in narrow and irregular session. October sold at 12.18. The general market ended steady, 2 points lower to 1 point higher. July sold at 11.93.

Sugar—Raw sugar was 10 to 15 points higher at 3.00; refined sold at 4.65.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Santos No. 4 sold at 11¼, Rio No. 7 at 10¼.

Gold—Bar gold sold in London at 137 shillings 8½ pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar was steady on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.05½ to the English pound; 6.60½ cents to the French franc and 38.20 cents to the German mark.

Cotton Prices Change Little In Dull Session

July Closes at 11.93 as Market Is 2 Points Off to 1 Higher.

New York, June 15 (AP).—Cotton finished about unchanged today after a session of narrow and irregular fluctuations. October sold off to 12.10 at the start, then advanced to 12.26, but lost part of the gain in the late trading under realizing, closing at 12.18. The general market ended steady, 2 points lower to 1 point higher.

For a time after the opening the market ruled several points lower on liquidation and foreign selling followed relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of more favorable weather in the Eastern belt.

December selling off to 12.23 at the start, showed a reaction of 33 points from the high of last Wednesday. This recession appeared to bring in an increased demand from the trade on old buying limits. There was also covering or rebuying by recent sellers.

July advanced from 11.84 to 12.02, while December sold up to 12.32 during the afternoon, making net gains of about 3 to 8 points.

At this level the advance met a renewal of realizing or liquidation and closing quotations showed reactions of 6 to 9 points from the best.

Some buying was attributed to apprehension that the Gulf storm would work up into the belt, and some evidently thought that if so, it was likely to bring further rains in the East.

Exports today, 26,611, making 7,145,121 so far this season. Port receipts, 6,708. U. S. port stocks, 2,668,903.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was generally steady today in sympathy with the strong hog market and the firmness of crude oil. Final prices were 2 points lower to 1 point net higher, with commission house buying absorbing scattered local liquidation. Sales were 46 contracts, including exchanges from September for January at 28 points and September for October at 7 points. Bleachable spot, nominal; July closed 5.38; September, 5.62; October, 5.69; December, 5.86; January, 5.90.

AAA Modifies Curb Rules In Acreage Uses

Hagerstown, Md., June 15 (Spl.). Washington County farmers, about 400 of whom have entered into contracts with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for reduction in wheat and corn acreage and hogs, have been notified that the administration has modified the ruling relative to the use of contracted acreage, which now permits the pasturing and harvesting in 1934 of pasture and forage crops except corn and grain sorghums on any land covered by such contracts, including rented or contracted acres.

Under the ruling contracted acreage selected in a hay or grass field may be either grazed or cut for hay for work stock. This same ruling is applicable to the corn-hog contract.

County Farm Agent Milton D. Moore also has been notified that the second wheat benefit payments for 1933 have been increased from 8 to 9 cents per bushel. This second payment will be made to those farmers taking land out of wheat production as soon as supervisors complete inspections of wheat and contracted acreage, and the contracts are approved by the allotment committee.

Farmers received the news of the new ruling with much satisfaction as the use of contracted acreage will be a great help to many farmers, due to the fact that additional pasture and hay was needed to feed stock.

Bond Offerings Rise.

Fredericksburg Teams Open Summer Baseball

Fredericksburg, Va., June 15 (Spl.).—Following several days of team organization and election of captains the Kiwanis summer baseball program began yesterday under direction of Johnny Fenlon, Fredericksburg High School athletic director.

The three teams of the Junior League, the Braves, Indians and Tigers are captained, respectively, by Clifford Ingalls, Harry Wheeler and Bill Payne, of the high school varsity baseball team.

The Midget League's four teams, the Yanks, Senators, Cardinals and Giants are guided, respectively, by Robert Bellomy, Buddy Ingalls, Billy Herndon and Chris Brown.

New Market Is Facing Two Week-End Games

New Market, Va., June 15 (Spl.). The local Valley Leaguers, trailing the five-club Shenandoah circuit by being defeated in three successive games, will have two hard battles here this week-end, meeting Culpeper Saturday and Harrisonburg Sunday.

The locals have lost to Harrisonburg, Woodstock and Charlottesville. Their meeting with Culpeper Saturday will be their first encounter with the Piedmont club.

Bass Season to Open; Virginia Issues Rules

Winchester, Va., June 15 (Spl.). The bass season west of the Blue Ridge Mountains will open on July 1.

Regulations issued by the Virginia Department of game and inland fisheries require that the bass be 6 inches long to be taken from the water. The bag limit for one day is 15, and 150 for the season.

Persons using a minnow-haul seine to obtain bait must procure a license for same. Seins are unlawful in Rappahannock County or in any other county where the Virginia commission has stocked the waters.

JOIN AN EXPEDITION
Extensive plans are now being arranged for conducting a high-grade expedition into Yucatan, Central America, Java and India, in the well-considered effort to solve the mystery of the lost Mayan civilization and write its history—the history of the Americas before Columbus came. Different from other expeditions. Investments in the enterprise will be secured and repaid with profits. You can join this expedition by becoming a part of it, by taking a limited interest in its associated publishing syndicate, in which there will be a few openings for activity. The publishing syndicate is being formed as the base for a large general publishing company with headquarters in Washington. It is the most important factor of the expedition. Only financially responsible replies are sought. Take an interest in this sound and unusual enterprise and help to win fame and give America its history before A. D. 1492. For full particulars, apply to THE CAPITAL PUBLISHING SYNDICATE, 948 Shoreham Building, Washington, D. C.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — What, Hartford Himself! — By Harry J. Tuthill

HELLO! PEGGY BUNGLE? YES...
YES, JUST A MOMENT, PLEASE. I'LL CALL HER.
PEGGY.... QUICKLY.. UPSTAIRS.... ON THE PHONE..!
MONTGOMERY EL DORADO....I RECOGNIZED HIS VOICE. HURRY! HE'S WAITING!
PEGGY! THE IDEA OF YOU RUNNING UP THOSE STAIRS SO SLOWLY. HURRY!
OH.... THOSE STEPS... I'M SO OUT..OF BREATH.... APOLOGIZE FOR.....THE DELAY. ASK HIM ABOUT HIS AUNT.
HELLO! WHO.? OH REALLY!
MY STARS, HARTFORD OAKDALE!
WHAT! THAT GIMLET-EYED SHEIK! HIM! I DID ALL THAT GALLOPING FOR HIM? HIM?

THE GUMPS — On His Way

OF ALL THE TERRIBLE BACKWOODS PLACES TO TAKE UNCLE BIM- SHADY REST IS THE WORST- I CAN'T SEE WHY YOU'RE TAKING HIM UP THERE—
WHAT DO YOU MEAN? SHADY REST IS THE GARDEN SPOT OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE-
GARDEN SPOT IS RIGHT- FULL OF BUGS AND WEEDS- HOW DO YOU SUPPOSE BIM IS GOING TO LIKE THAT AWFUL FOOD AND THOSE HARD BEDS? HE'S SUFFERED ENOUGH THIS YEAR-
WELL- BIM AND I GO TO SHADY REST REGARDLESS-
THEN MOVE UP TO SHADY REST- STAY UP THERE FIFTY WEEKS A YEAR- SPEND TWO WEEKS AT HOME- IF YOU'RE SO CRAZY ABOUT SUN BURN- MOSQUITO BITES- AND BAD COOKING-
DON'T TELL ME WHAT TO DO- I'M STILL THE BOSS OF THE HOUSE- I'LL NOT BE ORDERED AROUND LIKE AN EDUCATED POODLE-

DICK TRACY — Into the Basement

SCOTTY- YOU STAND GUARD BACK HERE BY THIS SHED WHILE I GO UP AND LOOK IN THAT BASEMENT WINDOW. I'VE GOT A HUNCH WE'RE GOING TO LEARN SOMETHING.
BY GAD! HE'S- HE'S CHOPPING SOMETHING.. HE'S DESTROYING A CART! WE MUST GET IN THERE AND STOP HIM BEFORE THE EVIDENCE IS BURNED UP.
HEY- SCOTTY, COME HERE..
COMING, OLD THING.
WHAT'S UP?
I'LL EXPLAIN LATER- RIGHT NOW WE'VE GOT TO GET INTO THIS BASEMENT. . . . THAT CHOPPING NOISE WILL MAKE IT POSSIBLE FOR US TO JIMMY THIS BACK WINDOW WITHOUT BEING HEARD. COME ON!

Walt Mason, Himself

An Unhappy World.

There is a wave of discontent throughout the world, and people say, "Oh, let's abolish government, and give red anarchy full sway." I know that government has faults that need correction bad enough, and to the polls we ought to waltz, with righteous aims, and do our stuff. If government is full of holes, it is because we don't support the worthy statesmen at the polls, but let the cheap skates hold the fort. We fall for tinhorn candidates who have no assets but their nerve, they're running the United States, and so we get what we deserve. But still we've government to burn, such as it is it helps a lot; a man may keep what he can earn, and safely till his garden plot. A man may have his tree and vine, to sit beneath at eventide, and go to bed at half-past nine, and not be taken for a ride. The government will send its sleuths, along the sinners' trail to pant, and gather in the reckless youths who try to steal your maiden aunt. Although we beef around and chafe, and say that all things are a wreck, we still feel reasonably safe because the government's on deck. Without it we would be afraid to step outdoors without our gats, lest someone hit us with a spade, and robbed us of our shoes and hats.
